

CALENDAR for MARCH with dates 1 through 31.

RIGHT WILL PREVAIL.

Base betrayal and inexcusable treachery were in evidence at Salem during the recent legislative session. The people's rights were trampled under foot as though there could be no day of reckoning. They seem to have forgotten that there is a God in Israel.

No condition existed in Oregon that warranted the sacrifice of legislation and the desecration of the people's rights. A government could not stand if the scenes at Salem were of common occurrence, because there could be no such thing as a government under such conditions. Common and constitutional law does not contemplate that the exigencies that create it shall destroy it, otherwise there is no such thing as law. It then has force only when it suits a faction and has none when it does not.

Aside from constitutional reasons why H. W. Corbett should not be seated as senator, which are not recited above, the principle involved should alone decide the matter. Riot, murder and arson are wrong because of violation of natural laws of right and justice, out of which has been evolved laws for the guidance of civilized people. The violation of natural laws was one of the features at Salem. The grinning mob of recalcitrant legislators who violated their trusts, would ask gleefully, "What are you going to do about it?" while a phlegmatic old governor sat back in his private office, upholding and abetting the outrage, finally completing his part of it by usurping the rights of the people's representatives by making an illegal appointment of the last man in Oregon that the republicans would have chosen as their representative in Washington, and one who would certainly please but a very small portion of other political parties.

The republican senatorial caucus and that of the allied forces have already indicated that Mr. Corbett will never be seated. This is as it should be. To seat him would disgrace Oregon beyond redemption. The pope allowed themselves to be led into Simon's camp and then the wily little chief of the allied forces made them the principal scapegraces of the "rump" appointment. Corbett is a "goldbug" banker who doesn't believe in international agreement or in silver in any form as money. Of course Corbett will not be seated, but the responsibility of his appointment belongs to the populists more than to any other organization, because there were more populists in the deal which Simon worked than members of any other party. They were the principal factors of obstruction in the house because they were in the majority in the ranks of the hold-ups and the responsibility must belong to them.

The Oregonian and Simon were afraid that J. Bourne, Jr., would contaminate the republican party last summer and they openly urged his ousting as secretary of the state central committee. Did you hear of Simon, or any other member of the gang, complaining that the association of republicans with pops, dems and Bourne, up in the Eldridge block, Salem, was hurting the principles of these few republicans? O, no. The facts are that Simon hasn't a principle beyond that involving Simon's interests.

The Oregonian refers to the editor of the Gazette as "one of Congressman Ellis' managers." While the editor of the Gazette is ever true to his friend, Ellis, for whom he has the utmost regard, yet the editor does not claim the honor of being one of Mr. Ellis' managers. However, whenever the Gazette can help Congressman Ellis, or any other personal or political friend, it will esteem it a pleasure to do so.

The populist party in Oregon now consists of Simon men and "middle-of-the-roads."

JOE SIMON and the Oregonian will find out that there are "other cans upon the trash pile."

THE newspapers are making ex-Senator John H. Mitchell a candidate for U. S. circuit judgeship honors. The people of Oregon want Mr. Mitchell back in the United States senate.

THE Portland Chronicle is very jubilant over the appointment of Corbett, and calls it a victory. Better wait till the old man gets his seat before you crow, my friend. We'll wager that Corbett never again warms a senatorial chair.

AND now the caucus of democrats, silver republicans and populists say in senatorial caucus that Mr. Corbett cannot take his seat. With both republicans and coalitionists against him he has no show whatever to complete in the senate the outrage committed in Oregon.

THE death of Hon. J. N. Dolph at Portland last Wednesday removes one of Portland's ablest men. He was but human, but Oregon has much to thank him for. During his incumbency in the U. S. senate he was ever alert in his desire to help Oregon and the West.

IT appears that Simon has promised to make Lord senator to succeed McBride. Can he deliver the goods? The governor has no doubt earned the support of Simon, but Simon is a small fish in the republican party. He may be able to do some business, with the pops and a few democrats helping him, if he can still handle them.

GREECE seems inclined to fight Turkey to a finish for the possession of Crete, and despite any advice given by the supposedly more formidable powers. Greece is patriotic and will follow their ruler, let him go where he may. This old Spartan spirit contrasts strangely with that manifested by Turkish soldiers, who are corrupt, cowardly and have little respect for the sultan.

Beaming With Smiles

Are the countenances of people who have found speedy and thorough relief from malarial, kidney, bilious, dyspeptic or nervous troubles through the aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Such countenances are very numerous. So are letters from their owners attesting the efficacy of the great family medicine. Among the signals of distress thrown out by the stomach, bowels and liver is a state of disorder, sore sick headache, heartburn, nausea, loss of appetite, allowing of the skin and eyeballs, and an uncertain state of the bowels. They should be headed at once. If the Bitters are resorted to, the woe begone look which accompanies sickness will give way to cheerful looks produced by renewed health. If you are drifting on the coast of disease, throw an anchor to windward by summing up the Bitters to your assistance. It will keep you in safety.

A CHALLENGE

I hereby issue a challenge to any one in Oregon to run a foot race any distance from one to twenty-five miles for any reasonable purse desired. Address 205 Morrison street, Portland, Oregon. 3-17 MACK J. McDERMOTT.

Points in Good Housekeeping.

A woman who looks well to the ways of her household should know how long, under ordinary circumstances, certain supplies, such as tea, coffee, butter, sugar and coal should last. It is by no means a proof of a niggardly housewife to do so, but it is her duty to herself and family to know what use is made of those articles which she provides. This duty may be done so tactfully that no maid could dream of taking offense, or in a way to antagonize. When accounts are kept, that is, when the mistress writes down in her ordering book the exact quantity she wishes, with the date of the order, the matter is easily managed.—N. Y. Post.

—Fudding Sauce.—Four tablespoons of fine, white sugar, two tablespoons of butter, one tablespoon of flour, stir them together to a cream, beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth and add it, then pour into the dish a gill of boiling water, stirring very fast; flavor with lemon or vanilla.—Boston Globe.

Sciatic Rheumatism

It Shortened the Patient's Leg Two Inches, and so Affected the Nervous System That He Continually Shook as With the Palsy.

After Six Years of Torment He Succeeds in Finding a Remedy for the Horrible Disease.

From the Egyptian Press, Marion, Illinois.

There is no name in this section of the country, connected with the medical world, that is better known to the public than that of Mr. Monroe Peterson. He is situated in a nice, comfortable home, with a good farm, about four miles west of Johnson City, Ill. He is now fifty-eight years old, in a healthy condition, and weighs one hundred and ninety pounds. Not a more upright and honorable citizen does our nation afford, and he looks upon with wonder, because of his healthy condition after so long a period of misery and suffering.

The cause of Mr. Peterson's long suffering was a hurt which he received in a fall, while running a drill in 1861, being a soldier at the time. He has been crippled in his right leg ever since that date. Sciatic rheumatism then set in, and his leg began to slowly wither away and draw up in the joint, and now it is about two inches shorter than the other. It began to grow worse and, finally, his whole body began to shake like a person with the St. Vitus' dance. His first severe attack was about six years ago.

There is no disease in the power of human endurance more awful in its pains and afflictions than sciatic rheumatism. Sometimes its pain may be a slow, steady one, while at other times, it comes with jolts and wrenches that seem to twist the body out of all shape of recognition. It seems to contract the muscles, drawing the body almost in a knot. While this is probably the worst stage of sciatic rheumatism, it is sometimes found in milder forms. So it was with Mr. Peterson, but with it was associated a feeling and condition almost as uncomfortable and unbearable. The body was in a continual shake, rendering it impossible for him to do anything. He had lost all control of his muscles. On application to a physician for relief, he was told that the affliction might last him all his life, or, on the other hand, it might leave him entirely at an unexpected moment.

For over three years he was not able to write a word, so severe was his shaking. He could not even sign his vouchers, thereby having to make his mark and witness it. At this time he could not walk a step without aid, nor even sit down in a chair without assistance. So severe was the shaking of his head that it almost caused him to go blind. He could not distinguish a person a rod's distance in front of him. He came very nearly losing his mind, and his friends thought, as a last resort, that he would have to be taken to a hospital. When he was taken to town for examination by a physician, he had to be examined in the buggy, so difficult was it for him to get out. Oftentimes it would seem that life was nearly extinct, and his feet and hands would have to be bathed in warm water and rubbed in order to restore the circulation. For two years he was not able to feed himself at the table. His ever faithful and dutiful wife put the food to his mouth. At night he would take smothering spells and would have to be lifted up in bed that he might regain his breath and strength. At this critical period he was not able to put on his clothes, not able to do anything but eat and suffer his miserable life away.

One physician gave, as his decision of the case, that his leg would have to be placed in a vice and stretched to its original length, thereby extending the contracted sciatic nerve which was the seat of trouble. Mr. Peterson, unwilling to subject his body to such severe treatment, objected, thinking that it could be made better, if not cured, in some more humane way. All kinds of patent medicines had been tried. At times he thought he was enjoying the comfort and pleasure of a partial relief, but soon he would be back in the same old rut, making his life one of misery and affliction. Instead of life being one of improvement and joy, it was one of continual toil and suffering. Electric currents, which have gained such a foothold among the remedies for rheumatic and neuralgic pains, were tried with only partial relief for a while. He was treated by nearly every physician in the county. All kinds of medicines were tried without avail. Much money had been spent in vain. Still was this disease like a vampire sucking away at his miserable life. The doctors finally gave him up, saying nothing could relieve him. They had tried every remedy known to the medical world, and now they thought it best to keep the money which was being spent for doctors' bills and medicines and make his last days as pleasant for him as his miserable condition would allow.

He was placed before a State Board of pension examiners and was told that it would be useless to spend any more money in this direction or to try to improve his health, for it was an impossibility. As he now thought the calamity had been reached, but not to be baffled by despair, he still sought means by which his miserable life could be made more happy. "As long as there is life there is hope." He saw an article in the paper which stated that a distinguished lumberman in Michigan had been cured of a case resembling his own by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He then renewed courage to try again. He ordered one half dozen boxes, and by taking pills one day rested the following night better than he had rested for years. So severe was his case that he took them nearly six months. He began to gradually mend and is now a hale and hearty man. He now goes anywhere on the farm that he desires, and is now able to write a good, plain hand and sign his name to his vouchers, and is able to do his chores about the house. While he is too old to labor hard, he is in such a condition that he can spend his last days here on earth in peace and comfort.

These pills were not known to this section of country till Mr. Peterson tried them, and now they can be had at any drug store. Hundreds of boxes have been sold on account of the reputation of this one case. At least half of the people, not knowing the name of the pills, call for "the kind Mr. Peterson tried."

Signed: MONROE PETERSON. Subscribed and sworn to before me on the 25th day of May, A. D., 1896. JOHN H. KOPP, [SEAL] Justice of the Peace. T. C. AUBREY ONCE MORE

Tried Some of His Smooth Work Up in Washington Under the Name of T. J. Foley.

Last fall, says the Oregonian, a report reached New Whatcom that T. J. Foley, who had sought the nomination of county clerk before the populist convention, in Whatcom county, had been drowned while crossing the Gulf of Georgia, at Blaine, Point Roberts. The story told by Smith Hodges, who was in the boat with him, was that Foley had been suffering all day with heart disease, and that he suddenly stood up in the boat and said "Smith, I'm gone," and toppled over the side of the boat into the water and disappeared. The wife made application for $1000 insurance which he carried in the Order of Foresters. While the claim was in course of settlement, news reached New Whatcom that Foley was living at Lexington, Morrow county, Or., under the name of T. C. Aubrey. Officials went to work, with the result that several days ago County Attorney Romaine, of Whatcom, swore out a warrant to arrest Foley, charging an attempt to defraud, etc. Governor Rogers was requested to issue requisition papers on the governor of Oregon for Foley's arrest. On the advice of Attorney-General Winston Governor Rogers refused to issue the papers saying that Foley could secure release from the Oregon courts, as he could not be held on such a charge.
