Then, by some sort of an apparent understanding among them, the worms changed the direction of their march and ceased to advance upon the demesne of the bugs. The latter, shortly after this took place, scattered back among the potato vines and resumed their usual occupation thereon. There were to all appearances but few casualties among the bugs, although many of them were caught in the crush of the advancing worms and smothered or trampled to death.

One day lately hundreds of people from all over Pike and adjoining townships came to view the results of this strange battle. Mr. Eckenrode estimates that the dead worms will probathem for fertilizing purposes .- Philadelphia Press.

Well and Pump Account.

One of the curious features of the appropriations made by the Brooklyn aldermen is the "well and pump account." The account comes down from the days when the various aldermen of the city received certain sums of money annually to expend on the wells from under him an' leave him ter look and pumps of their respective wards. When water mains and hydrants succeeded the more primitive method of to prmit the account, to which they had become so attached, to die, and by easy gradations the account was made to apply to curbstones, gutters and crosswalks. English visitors to Tilly-sur-Seulles having satisfied their curiosity, turn to Caen, where lie the bones of an Engcated at Eton, where he made a name for social aplomb, readiness of repartee and fastidious neatness in dress. He went to the Oriel college, Oxford, for a years. He was presented with a coronetcy by the prince of Wales in the Tenth Hussars, and for some years enjoyed the friendship of the prince, who was quarreled, but "Beau" Brummell held his own in society until gambling losses made him flee the country. In 1830 he was appointed British consul at Caen. His creditors closed round him, and in May, 1835, he was cast into prison. His spirit seemed to have been broken, and in 1837 he showed signs of imbecility, and died at the Asylum of the Bon Sauveur, Caen, in March, 1840.
