Freshness of feeling is one of the most charming characteristics of a middle-aged man or woman. We are all familiar with men and women, not out of the 20's, who have the air of having exhausted all the resources of delight. They appear to have been through the whole round of human interests and to have explored them so thoroughly that they cannot be surprised or greatly moved. Children of wealthy parents introduced too early to the life of their elders, often betray this unlovely characteristic. The zest of work they never knew and the zest of amusement and diversion has palled upon them. On the other hand, those who have worked too long or SEVEN those who have worked too long or intensely in a single line often exhaust their power of taking interest in other things, or of being strongly moved by The business man on a vacation, though confronting him is the loveliest landscape, sees nothing but stock quotations, or the clergyman sees nothing but the heads of sermons. It is doubtful if anything but a profound upheaval of the inner life can impart freshness of feeling to the man who has drunk so freely of pleasure that he stirred up a muddy and impure sediment in the very fountains of happiness. But most of us have it wholly within our power by moderate living. by wholesome recreation, by occasional change of scene, and by cultivating every day a variety of interests, to preserve that emotional responsiveness which enables us to greet the light of the morning and the glories of the heavens with keen delight, to enter into the joys and sorrows of others, to welcome the appearance of a bright book, or to refresh ourselves with the conversation of

McClure's Magazine For 1897 GREAT SERIALS

New Life of Grant by Hamlin Garland The first authoritative and adequate Life of Grant ever published. (Begins in December.) Rudyard Kipling's first American serial, "Captains Courageous," (Begun in November.) Robert Louis Stevenson's "St. Ives." The only novel of Stevenson's still unpublished (Begins in May.)

Charles A. Dana. "Recollections of War Time." Mr. Dana was for three of the most critical years of the Civil War practically a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, and is probably better fitted than any other man living to give an authoritative history of this period from his recollections and correspondence.

Portraits of Great Americans. Many of them unpublished. In connection with this series of portraits it is intended to publish special biographical studies under the general title of MAKERS OF THE UNION from Washington to Lincoln.

Pictures of Palestine. Specially taken under the editor's direction. Stories of Adventure. A serial by CONAN DOYLE, in which he will use his extraordinary talent for mystery and ingenuity which have, in the "Sherlock Holmes" stories, given him a piace beside Poe and Gaborian.

TEN FAMOUS WRITERS

IAN MACLAREN. All the fiction that he will write during the coming year, with the exception of two contributions to another publication which were engaged from him long ago, will appear in McClurg's Magazing. appear in McClork's Magazine.

JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS. A series of new animal stories in the same field as the "Brer Rabbit" and the "Little Mr. Thimblefinger" stories.

RUDYARD KIPLING. Besides "Captains Courageous," Kipling will contribute to McClork's all of the short stories he will write during the coming year.

OCTAVE THANET is preparing for the Magazine a series of short stories in which the same characters will appear, although each will be complete in itself. Bret Harte Anthony Hope Stanley Weyman will all have stories in McClure's for the coming year.

stomachs if not actually harmful to

Infants who are brought up artificially, on cows' milk, are peculiarly subject to constipation. The milk is often found to curd in lumpy flakes, which pass through the intestines undigested. In such cases the milk should be given in a more diluted form, with perhaps the addition of a little lime water. Cream and butter are to be recommended on porridge and commeal. Oatmeal gruels should form part of the dietary of older children, who should also be encouraged to drink as much water as they crave. When constipation is found to be peristent, the child's diet should be regulated with a view to counteracting it. For children of three years and older, bread made of unbolted flour, bread and molasses-not sirup, stewed prunes, orange juice, honey and bread, olive oil and olives, codliver oil, peaches, fresh vegetables, baked apples and gingerbread should be occasionally parts of the bill of fare.

A judicious administration of this class of foods will avoid all necessity for castor oil, rhubarb and other household remedies, which are often given to a harmful extent with out the family doctor's orders or knowledge.

Abdominal massage is a useful method of overcoming attacks of constipation in infants. It should be performed three or four times a day, very gently and with a warm hand. The best time for it is while the infant is feeding, when the abdominal wall is soft and relaxed.

A little-dry salt, followed by a glass of water, is often relished by a child, and is beneficial in cases of constipation. A sufficiency of fresh air and regular exercise, when combined with a proper dietary, will rarely fail to avert the

The skipper rigged up a lot of stalls on deck and at high tide the horses were driven on board. It was late in the afternoon before the last one was barred in, and, being about feeding time, the trew opened a bundle of hay and fed the horses, first on one side and then on the other. Then the strangest thing happened. The horses were hungry, and they were not long in sticking their heads into the feed. Those that had been fed first began to eat first, of

HE REFUTED THE LIE. Turned Over Only Five Times After He

Jumped Bill Haw was an awkward, ungainly young man, whose life was spent on a Kansas farm, says the New York World. He lived near the little station of Hackney and on one occasion came from a near-by town on the train. It dashed up toward the platform at a high rate of speed. The engineer tried to apply the air-brakes to stop the train, but they refused to work. He whistled for the hand brakes and the brakemen and the conductor began twisting them as if their lives depended upon stopping the Bill saw that something was the matter and concluded that he was the cause of it. The train was past the station and he feared he would be taken past his home. Standing on the lower platform he gave a wild leap off the train. In describing Bill's descent afterward the postmaster at Hackney, who had seen Bill's flight through the air, said: "I thought some one had thrown a saddle off the train. Bill rolled off all in a bunch. When the dust settled down Bill emerged from the confusion with his clothes nearly torn off him, his face and hands skinned and an appearance of terror on his face. He actually turned over eight times after he jumped before he stopped."

"That is a lie!" exclaimed Bill, who had listened to the narration, "I never turned over eight times. I turned over I counted 'em."

During the contest over the will of John B. Haskin, who was known in polities as "Tuscarora" Haskin, one of the witnesses gave testimony to show that failure to properly play the game of poker is an evidence of insanity, says a New York dispatch in the Providence Journal. Mr. Haskin left an estate valued at over $1,000,000, most of which he bequeathed to his son. His daughter and grandchild contested the will, Benjamin F. A Forbidden Game

"Barsa Ka Salta" is a peculiar game which is much played in India, and it has recently been prohibited by the government. The game consists in bets being made on miny days whether little or much rain will fall. Upon the roofs or terraces of many houses in India there is a water tank provided with a waste pipe. Through this tube the water escapes if a certain amount five times. I reckon I ought to know, of rain has fallen. The point of the game is to try and guess when a rainstorm will begin and at what time the rain water in the tank will be so high that the waste water will begin to flow out of the discharge pipe. Cigarette Smoking.

Cigarette smoking in England dates back to 1844. The great impetus to their increased use was caused by the Crimean war of 1854-56, when numbers of military and naval officers adopted this method of smoking from the inhabitants of Russia, Turkey, Malta, Levant and other parts of Europe,—Detroit Free Press.

Instead of being a mere aggregation of anthers or pollen cells oo simple scales, those of the oak are possessed of distinct starlike, hairy calyces, each marked off into six or seven lobes, and containing ten slender stamens, with two-celled anthers. Then the female flowers, which are usually two or three, near each other, but not connected, consist each of an ovary, with three short-curved styles, and in vested by a calyx that adheres closely to it and becomes the husk and shell of the acorn. The whole, except the styles, is held in a cep formed of many small over-lapping scales, which afterward lose their individuality and shrink into mere roughness on the outside of the cup that holds the acorn.
