GREAT SEVEN SERIALS

A New Life of Grant by Hamlin Garland The first authoritative and adequate Life of Grant ever published. (Regims in December.)

Rudyard Kipling's first American serial, "Captains Courageous." (Begun in November.) Robert Louis Stevenson's "St. Ives." The only novel of Stevenson's still unpublished (Begins in May.) Charles A. Dana. "Recollections of War Time." Mr. Dana was for three of the most critical years of the Civil War practically a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, and is probably better fitted than any other man living to give an authoritative history of this period from his pictures of Palestine. Specially taken under the editor's direction.

Stories of Adventure. A serial by CONAN DOYLE, in which he will use his extraordinary-talent for mystery and ingenuity which have, in the "Sherlock Holmes" stories, given him a place beside Poe and Gaboriau.

TEN FAMOUS WRITERS

IAN MACLAREN. All the fiction that he will write during the coming year, with the exception of two contributions to another publication which were engaged from him long ago, will appear in McClure's Magazine. JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS. A series of new animal stories in the same field as the "Brer Rabbit" and the "Little Mr. Thimblefinger" stories.

RUDYARD KIPLING. Besides "Captains Courageous," Kipling will contribute to McClure's all of the short stories he will write during the coming year. OCTAVE THANET is preparing for the MAGAZINE a series of short stories in which the same characters will appear, although each will be complete in itself.

The muzzling order has now been so long in operation that one is able to see its practical results, at all events so far as London is concerned, says the London News. They are really very remarkable, especially from a point of view not likely to be immediately taken.

EFFECT OF MUZZLES.

Their Enforced Use Has Changed the Breed of London Dogs.

The supremacy of the fox terrior is gone. One misses the little, vivid white Michigan senator. She had several spots that moved about so quickly and nice dogs of fancy breeds, and I noticed and, it must be admitted, noisy. Most of these dogs were mongrels, and, being of no appreciable value, and probably of no clearly defined ownership, they passed quickly in a wholesale way into the lethal chambers. London is rid of them, but at all our towns the white terrier with the odd markings is still in a few necessaries and started. I was the ascendant.

On the other hand, here in town we have the Irish and the Scotch. These are as yet pretty pure; they keep rather to themselves, after the manner of the provincials, but in a couple of years mongrelism will assert itself, and London will be overrun. Asit is, the hardy little Aberdeen, with his long body, short legs and nondescript markings of black and gray and mustard, holds the street, and the Irish terrier loafs about, social and easy-going.

They are both excellent in their own way, but, for all that, one misses the sharp, quick vitality of the fox terrier. Even as a mongrel he seemed to concentrate in his active little body all doggy qualities, especially fidelity and hatred

HIS CREDITORS FOUND HIM. Mr. Jones Had Been Unable to See Them During a Long Search.

George Washington Jones, a colored gentleman, was sad, very sad. He was a calciminer when he had work to do, says Harper's Round Table, but, as he expresses it:

LIQUOR FROM GAS BURNERS:

Device of a Portland. Me., Hotel for Evading the Prohibition Law. Everybody who visits Maine has different story to tell on his return of his experience in getting drinks, says the New York Sun. The champion story is, perhaps, told by a well-known traveling salesman. He says that when he asked for a drink at a Portland hotel, he was shown into a room, which had nothing in it but table, on which were a pitcher of water and several tumblers, and a few chairs. Over the table was a chandelier, with apparently half a dozen gas burners. When the cocks were turned, however, not gas, but liquor came out of the burners, which were horizontal, on the tips being unscrewed. From one burner came whisky; from another, rum; from another, gin. Each burners supply pipe connected with a cask of some one of these liquors in the room above.

The man who tells this story says that the indictment papers against the hotel in question for selling liquor would fill a bushel basket, but none of them will ing, and not weaking, small but, effective—such are the qualities of DeWitt's has been yet. Since adopting this de-

"Had I known for what purpose I was needed I would not have responded, but being on the ground I was too nervy to refuse. The case was that of a dog belonging to the wife of a made streets and thoroughfares gay, that one of them acted strangely. The telephone directory of that day had my name well up on top in the list of dentists, and I presume that is why I was called. It is no unusual thing for dentists to be called to the houses of patients who are sick or otherwise unable to go to the dentist, and I packed up met at the door by the lady, who spoke of the sufferings of Madge. I took it that Madge was either a child or a favored servant, and tripped as softly as I could upstairs to the room to which I was directed. I noticed there were two or three little pug dogs in the room, but did not dream that Madge was one of them. In a few moments the lady came up and picking up the dog spoke sympathetically of Madge's sufferings. I was in for it, and in a short time had a towel tied in Madge's ests of Simon and the Oregonian. He mouth, and the next thing Madge knew she was three teeth short. I was asked my fee, but as I had never performed such a service for money I did not know exactly what to charge. THE OLDEST SPORT. Hunting and Fishing Were Means of Live-lihood to Primitive Man. Somebody has asked which is the oldest sport and started a discussion that has already put the antiquity of games beyond the middle ages. Hunting and fighting were primitive man's Nimrod, Noah's great-grandson, was a "mighty hunter before the Lord," and as he was a "mighty one in the earth" he probably hunted for pleasure. This is the oldest record of a sport.

The stag and its kind, which make the greatest demand on the skill and endurance of the hunter, would probably be the first animal pursued for pleasure. To hunt the lion was kingly sport from the earliest times. The Egyptian monuments show that all kinds of hunting, as well as fowling, were followed for pleasure. The Olympic games were probably the oldest athletic sports and their origin is lost in antiquity. They are said to celebrate Chacier, Jupiter's defeat of the Titans. What are Schilling's Best baking powder flavoring extracts and spices

James N. Davis, the "late speaker of the Davis house" at Salem, bas apparently recovered from the shock of his ests of Simon and the Oregonian. He has resumed practical business in other lines. Last week he went to Spokaue, purchased a 60-acre block of the town and ordered it to be platted and put on the market immediately. Mr. Daviswell, Mr. Davis is all right, if his "house" wasn't .-- Portland Tribune.

A dispatch from Washington, sent out on St. Patrick's day, the day the other Corbett received his quietus, states postively that the senate will not seat Mr. Corbett of Oregon. One senator, in disoussing the Oregon case, made a very good point when he stated that, if the men in the senate, by refusing to go ernor the sole official to shoose U.S. senators. The statement of that senator Two ragged little newsboys came up being correct, to have seated Mr. Corprecedent fatal to our whole political fabric, and which would involve the the girl bought a paper from each of them. Sorely though Mr. Corbett's vote may be needed by the republican party, to seat him under existing conditions would be too dear a price to pay tor it. We can far better afford to lose his vote than to have a precedent established that an unlawful minority should rule over a lawful majority. That policy would be nothing short of anarchy, which, though bloodless at first, would very soon develop a crimson tinge .- Fossil Journal.

It is told of one of our local populist politicians, who has a cob pipe, and an impediment in his speech, that he has taken a great interest in the great intellectual contest to come off at Carson, Nevada, and also the one recently closed at Salem. The other day he was informed that Corbett had been appointed by Gov. Lord to the position of U. S. senstor. He cogitated for a moment, then, removing his pipe, ejaculated: another whiff at his dudine, he asked innocently, "W-w-ond-e-r if he-'ll g-g-go abend with the fight n-n-ow?"-Ashland Republican senstors have decided not to press the admission at the extra session of the senators appointed by the governors of Oregon, Kentucky and Florids, as it has been found the silver members will oppose their admission. This is right. It would be a bad precedent to establish, allowing governors to appoint United States senators while it is the daty of the legislatures to elect, especially when it is known that eleven members of the Oregon state senate could tie up the legislature and prevent the election of a senator.-Hood River
