McClure's Magazine For 1897 GREAT SERIALS

A New Life of Grant by Hamlin Garland. The first authoritative and adequate Life of Grant ever published. (Begins in December.)

Rudyard Kipling's first American serial, "Captains Courageous." (Begun in November.) Robert Louis Stevenson's "St. Ives." The only novel of Stevenson's still unpublished (Begins in May.)

Charles A. Dana. "Recollections of War Time." Mr. Dana was for three of the most critical years of the Civil War practically a member of Lincoin's Cabinet, and is probably better fitted than any other man living to give an authoritative history of this period from his Portraits of Great Americans. Many of them unpublished. In connection with this series of portraits it is intended to publish special biographical studies under the general title of MAKERS OF THE UNION from Washington to Lincoln.

Pictures of Palestine. Specially taken under the editor's direction. Stories of Adventure. A serial by CONAN DOYLE, in which he will use his extraordinary talent for mystery and ingeauity which have, in the "Sherlock Holmes" stories, given him a place beside Poe and Gaboriau.

TEN FAMOUS WRITERS

IAN MACLAREN. All the fiction that he will write during the coming year, with the exception of two contributions to another publication which were engaged from him long ago, will appear in McClure's Magazine. OEL CHANDLER HARRIS. A series of new animal stories in the same field as the Kabbit' and the "Little Mr. Thimblefinger" stories. RUDYARD KIPLING. Besides "Captains Courageous," Kipling will contribute to McClure's all of the short stories he will write during the coming year.

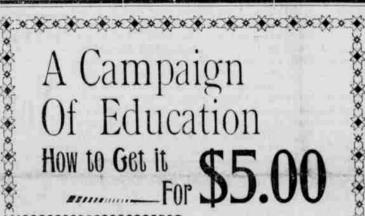

OCTAVE THANET is preparing for the Magazine a series of short stories in which the same characters will appear, although each will be complete in itself.

Anthony Hope Frank R. Stockton Bret Harte Robert Barr Stanley Weyman will all have stories in McClube's for the coming year.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES SAY.

The Portland Chronicle has its hands apon the lever that controls the universe. The cowardly, though natural, instinct of self preservation, prevents the Gazette from engaging in a hopeless combat with such a powerful enemy .-Corvallis Gezette.

That prophets are not all dead can be gathered after studying this vision, painted by Senator John H. Mitchell in the United States Senate in March, 1893: "Suppose at the end of my present term should be a canous candidate for reelection. Suppose that the republican party should have a majority of the legislature of the state of Oregon. Suppose that some man with unlimited wealth should induce a minority of the legislature to prevent an organization, thereby preventing the legislature from performing its functions. Suppose the man of wealth should be on intimate terms with the governor of Oregon and that it should be arranged between them that the governor should appoint the man who corrupts the legislature in order to prevent an election. Suppose that then the governor should appoint the rich man in spite of the will of the on, D. C., correspondence of the New people to the contrary. Should such a York Sun, under the date of March 24th. man be seated in this senate? I say Senator McBride, of Oregon, and most emphatically, no!" These words been inspired.-Portland Tomahawk.

Sixty-six republicans of the Kentucky legislature are voting for a republican there is no law by which you can com- as well as the fillibustering tactics to defeat any election at all, are fully endorsed by the Oregonian. Possibly this republican organ has hopes that if there is a failure to elect, the governor may appoint Carlisle to fill the vacancy. This would be almost as good as a position in the treasury department, for which he was recommended so strongly and ought to satisfy a man whose former supporters would not hear him in bility, however, is that the fusion of Cleveland democrats, Blackburn populists, and two bolting republicans will not be a success in the Corn-Cracker state. The only comfort that republican fusionists in Oregon can derive from the senatorial contest in Kentucky is that committee on privileges and elections are combining with the pops and democrats

> The republican editorial writer of the Oregonian fears the "moderate protectionist" who presides over those colamns will be taken for what he really is, a free trader, and so he attempts to explain the matter to the readers of that paper who are for America for Americans. But no explanation was necessary.

It appears from reports from Salem that the commissions are not the only public officials whom the secretary of state refuses to recognize. The clerical force in the various departments come under the ban. These persons are necessary to the transaction of the business of the state, and the secretary would surely not be exceeding his authority to audit their claims for wages and permit them to make the best terms possible in the disposition of the same. Because be
