System Broken Down and Hope Almost Abandoned—Nephew Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For fifteen years I have suffered with catarrh and indigestion and my whole system was broken down. I had almost abandoned any hope of recovery. I purchased six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and its effects have been marvelous. It has made me feel like a new man. I am able to sleep well, have a good appetite, and I have gained several pounds in weight."

JAMES WILDER, Oroville, Wash.

"I had a scrofula swelling on one side of my neck and ulcerated sores in my nostrils, caused by catarrh. I also had small, itching sores on my limbs. I bought three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and began taking it and the sores soon healed. My blood is purified, and the scrofula has disappeared."

O. D. McMANUS, Mission, Washington.

Slight eruptions on the head, chapped hands and lips, cuts, bruises, sores, burns are quickly cured by DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is at present the article most used for piles, and it always cures them. Conser Broek.

BY ROUNDS.

Two of the Gazette's Neighbors Mix up Some—Twas Stopped.

Tuesday last, Heppner's denizens who happened to be in the locality of J. W. Vaughan's store were treated by an incident of some sort between Dr. B. F. Vaughan, the dentist, and C. C. Sargent, who runs the City hotel. The Gazette did not learn the cause of the difficulty, but it occurred over some bill that Dr. Vaughan claimed Sargent owed him.

Our informant recorded three rounds, the first consisting of some sharp words, the second of a quick exchange of blows, but before much damage was done friends interferred. The third round was with the municipal judge, Walt Richardson. Dr. Vaughan, following the elegant example of his friend, the Gazette editor, pumpled up a ten and never said a word, but Mr. Sargent successfully resisted a charge of using profane language in J. W. Vaughan's store, yesterday before his honor, Judge Richardson.

Os Bureti is over from Granite to shear.

It's out today, first of the season. Hop Gold Book beer. 38 41

Morris Abrahams is in Heppner today looking after his customers.

Has Muir surprised his wife recently with an elegant present in the shape of a piano.

Chas. Robinson is over from Monument. Chas. intends to open a saloon in Lone in the near future.

Those having issues of the 13th and 16th of April will oblige the Gazette very much by bringing them to the Gazette office.

Mrs. Chas. Tryon, nee Miss Ethel Boyer, is here from Aberdeen. Her husband is expected here in the course of a few weeks.

Frank Kahler, nephew of W. M. Kadio, has been appointed postmaster of Long Creek. Frank is a good boy and deserves his success.

Thursday, April 29th, the ladies of the Episcopal church will give an "apron social" at the opera house. Further particulars in next issue.

Frank Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Jones, is back from the East looking well and happy. He will return in the near future with horses.

Rev. Father Briddy, of St. Mary's church, Condon, writes to the Gazette that he and other priests will be here Sunday to hold a mission. All are invited to be present.

The justice case, Z. Denny vs Ben Swagart, was tried yesterday before Judge Richardson and Swagart won, the latter handling his own case. Denny and Swagart are expected to be due.

Mr. Jesse Hobson, formerly of Newberg, Or., is canvassing this section for an excellent American history of six volumes. He is an old friend of Mr. and Mrs. Maris, who live up on the John Q. Wilson place, on Hinton creek.

Grant Co. News: Mejer Magone, who left here two or three years ago, has not written to his old friends for some time, and it has been stated that the gallant old major is dead. However, we have not been able to obtain definite news concerning his demise.

Those of our Heppner people who got up early enough yesterday morning found ice in water buckets. The noble Neverwest, Pap Minor, is our weather reporter, and none were ever more accurate in every detail nor have they a greater affinity for a good, hot stove on a cold day.

By the census of 1900, Oregon ranked the 38th state in population. By the figures of the U. S. department of agriculture, however, she now ranks 4th in number of sheep; 12th in number of cattle; 23rd in number of horses; 28th in number of swine, and 37th in number of milch cows.

Antiseptic Qualities in Coins.

It is a well-known fact that paper money is liable to transfer bacteria from one person to another, and thus to spread contagious diseases. It also is supposed that coins, which are more in circulation than notes, might similarly act as agents for spreading disease, and investigations in that direction were made at the Vienna university when Austria changed its currency to the gold basis. A report about his observations was recently published by Dr. Vincent in the Vienna Medical Gazette, in which he states that metals act, so to speak, as antiseptics in regard to bacteria, or microbes, the fact being that these microscopic organisms have but a very short lease of life while on metals. The destroying influences of metals increase with their temperature, and also with the close touch of the micro-organisms with the metal. At a temperature of 95 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit, which is common in the pockets where money is carried, the destruction of microbes occurs within three hours. The various metals used for coins are somewhat different in this respect, silver being the most antiseptic and gold the least. Copper and bronze hold about the middle between the two more precious metals.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Went at Their Own Looks.

An American photographer who penetrated into the wilds of Siberia, and spent considerable time in taking pictures of the people and country, included one of his native servants to sit for his photograph. The man had probably never even looked into a mirror; at any rate, he had no conception of his own ugliness, and he manifested considerable gloom when he gazed on his picture. The other man- servant evidently supposed that he was a far superior being and sat for his photo with great pride; but when he saw the result, he almost wept. Both men then retired to the house in a thoughtful mood, and presently one came out and borrowed a pair of scissors. When they emerged again, scarcely a vestige of hair remained on their heads, and they asked to have their pictures taken again. The camera was to them a veritable tree of knowledge.—Golden Days.

Sure to Be.

"See that they caught the fellow who broke out of jail last week," said the boarder who was looking over his paper. "Of course," said the Cheerful Idiot. "A fellow who breaks out is sure to be spotted."—Indianapolis Journal.

A STORY OF LI HUNG CHANG.

How He Interested Himself in Two Chinese Women.

Something over a year ago a Chinese Christian girl named Marguerite Wang came to America with the intention of obtaining an education. She remained here a year, and was just about to enter a woman's college when she received word that her father had betrothed her to a man whom she had never seen. Under the consular regulations she was forced to return to her home, foregoing her education, to marry this man. Miss Hartford, one of the principal workers in the Foo-Chow mission, who was here on a visit, accompanied her on her return.

On the same ship with them was Li Hung Chang and his suite. The vicerey noticed the Chinese girl, and sent his secretary, Lord Li, to inquire about her. A day or two later he sent word he would like to talk with Marguerite and Miss Hartford. They went to see him and told him the story of the girl's attempt to obtain an education. The vicerey was much pleased with his countrywoman and seemed to take a great interest in her. He told her and Miss Hartford about the woman's congress, which is to be held in London in 1898, and said that he wanted the women of China to be represented at the congress.

After a little talk he told Marguerite that he would appoint her to represent China and its women at the congress. He then asked Miss Hartford if she did not know of some other woman in China that was qualified to be a delegate to the congress. Miss Hartford at once recommended to him Dr. Ho King Eng, the first Chinese woman to study medicine. Some years ago she left China to come to America, and after a course in the woman's medical school at Philadelphia she received her degree. She then returned to China and became one of the most valuable members of the Foo Chow mission, where she now is. Li Hung Chang was much interested in the story and after a few questions said that she should be appointed as the second woman to attend the congress. So China will be represented at the woman's congress, and by two Christian women. After the vicerey's arrival in China he made the appointment in a formal manner.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A COWBOY'S LETTER.

It Was to His Father, Who Was a Duke in Scotland.

This world has become but a very small place, yet it is not every day that the fact is so forcefully demonstrated as it was to a certain doctor of whom a western paper tells. This doctor had under his care in the hospital a cowboy from one of the ranges of northern Montana, who, when he became convalescent, one day walked into the doctor's house to thank him for his services and say good-by. As he was about to leave the office, the cowboy remarked: "Doctor, I understand that you are soon to set off on a trip to the other side of the water, and that before you return you intend to visit Scotland. If such is the case, I should like to give you a letter to some friends of mine."

The doctor replied that he did intend to visit Scotland, and that he should be pleased to take charge of the letter.

"Give a letter, doctor," said it up, and addressed the envelope to—let us say—the "duke of Craige" at a castle in Scotland. When he handed it to the doctor, that gentleman looked at the address rather dubiously, and then asked, in a voice that was possibly a little cold: "Is this gentleman an acquaintance of yours?"

"Well, yes," replied the ranch-riding, "I think it quite probable he will remember me. He is my father, and I shall be glad to have you call on him and tell him I'm getting along all right."

The doctor took the letter, and when he left for the old world had every intention of cultivating the acquaintance of the Scottish nobleman, as he had already cultivated the acquaintance of his son.—Youth's Companion.

Mrs. A. Inven, residing at 720 Henry St., Altoon, Ill., suffered with sciatic rheumatism for over eight months. She doctors for it nearly the whole of this time, using various remedies recommended by friends, and was treated by the physicians, but received no relief. She then used one and a half bottles of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which effected a complete cure. This is published at her request, as she wants others similarly afflicted to know what cured her. Grant Co. News: Miss Olive Conlee came over from Morrow county home last week and will take charge of the Strawberry valley public school during the spring term.

FACTORY WAGES IN RUSSIA.

Barely Sufficient to Keep Soul and Body Together.

As for the distribution of wages, the pay of a woman amounts to three-quarters of that of a man, that of a boy or girl of 12 to 17 years to one-half, that of a child under 12 years, to one-third of a grown man's wages, says the Catholic World. The advantage arising from the factories from women's and children's wages is such that no humanitarian attempts have been as yet able to solve that harassing problem in any civilized country. But as the wages of working men in Russia are absolutely reduced to a minimum and scarcely sufficient to keep soul and body together for more than 13 hours' toil it is a cruel and gross injustice to cut working women's wages by a third, since the first necessities of life are alike in men and women regardless of sex. The monthly wages of an adult laborer, man or woman, in England are 2½ (124.05 per cent), in America 4-5 (379.14 per cent.), times greater than the wages of a like laborer in the Moscow factories. Since, however, the duration of working time in the three countries is different, Mr. Dementieff has reduced the comparison of wages per hour and come to the conclusion that wages in England are by 284.5 per cent., in Massachusetts by 423 per cent. higher than those in the Moscow factories. If we make a good allowance for the higher cost of living in America—which, however, is to be understood cum grano salis, only the luxuries of life being dearer here, not the necessities, like meat, flour, bread, still no comparison can be drawn between the mode of living of an American and a Russian laborer.

Poisonous Cooking Utensils.

The subject of pure food has long been a pet theme of legislators, and I admit that the discussions on the subject have done a great deal of good. I believe, however, that pure and wholesome utensils in which to cook the food are of more importance than the food itself. Only those who are familiar with the affairs of large kitchens are aware of the eternal vigilance which prevents the formation of chemical poisons in culinary utensils. Is there the same watchfulness in the kitchens of cheap eating houses? I trust the day is not far distant when rigorous laws will be passed compelling boards of health to inspect the cooking utensils of every establishment in which food is served to the public. My first inspection of the kitchen of the restaurants at the national capital made me shudder. One of the utensils which was in daily use was so covered with verdigris that the original color of the metal could not be seen. The utensil was a steam-heated oyster stev pan. The hands even of the colored attendant were stained green from contact with the pan. I questioned the servant, and she told me that I was the first person to complain to her about the condition of the pan. She went on to say that she "could not wash the 'green stuff' off her hands."—Twentieth Century Cooking.
