BICYCLES IN WAR.

The Wheel Has Become Popular

As an Auxiliary to Military Facilities the Two-Wheeled Vehicle Will Be of Inestimable Service.

A secure foothold has been obtained by the bicycle in the army and in the national guard. Officers, who by long service under old conditions are likely to be conservative to a degree, admit that before long the wheel will be a valuable aid to military movements in time of war. Some years ago Gen. Miles, who is an enthusiastic advocate of the wheel,

"The results obtained under the most adverse and discouraging conditions prove conclusively that the bicycle will in the future become a most valuable auxiliary in military operations, not only for courier service, but also for rapidly moving organized bodies of men over the country.'

Gen. Miles said in a subsequent speech to wheelmen that the use of the bicycle for military purposes is one that would attract naturally the attention of every soldier.

"We all know," said Gen. Miles, "that in military matters one of the principal arts in war is rapidity of movements and the power to move troops and munitions of war rapidly from one part of the country to another. Hannibal, the master of the military art, was finally overcome by the rapidity of movement of one of the corps of the enemy against a portion of his army. Alexander, Hannibal and Cicero used horses and Napoleon coaches in moving rapidly portions of their corps from one part of the country to another.

"Now, the question is whether the American forces mounted on wheels can do as much as if mounted on horses. It is true that a man mounted on a wheel can move over the ordinary roads with greater rapidity and make greater distances than he could possibly move on foot or mounted upon a horse. It is true that if you wish to send a dispatch and station racehorses a short distance apart they might possibly make better time than the wheelmen could over the same road, but it is a question, with the improvements that you are making, whether wheelmen cannot in time pass even the race-

"It is estimated that there are in this country over 250,000 men who are accustomed to ride the bicycle. If out of it would make one of the most effective army corps that was ever marshaled in any country at any time."

Not long ago Lieut, Hunt, of Sheridan and a familiary made a march of 15 miles on wheels in one hour and 25 minutes. The men took one long rest and carried the full equipments of a soldier. At the end of the ride they were fresh enough to make the journey back a pleasure. The ordinary time of such a march for soldiers burdened with their rifles and belongings would be about five hours. Some national guard officers of rank do not take as hopeful a view of the service of bicycles in time of war as does the ranking officers of the army. They point out that there are head winds, bad roads and punctured tires to contend with, and that no ammunition or commissariat train could keep pace with a corps of wheelmen. The guardsmen say: "Cycle infantry in large bodies would fail to accomplish much, but in small independent detachments could accomplish a great deal. "If each regiment were allowed to organize one of the additional companies provided for in the new drill regulations from the many bicycle clubs in the vicinity, the guard would be much bencfited. Such a company should drift as provided for in the present 'United States Infantry Drill Regulations,' but in single rank when mounted, and should consider the bieycle simply as a means of locomotion. In addition, such man should be a good signal man and have some knowledge of telegcapby. His powers of observation should be trained to the highest degree, and his ability to draw reconnaissance maps accurately developed. Such a company should be taught great independence of action, and during the summer months compelled to furnish maps and information showing the smallest details of the surrounding country."--Chicago Tribune.

DOG BURIES A CAT. A Little Psychological Speculation Concerning the Incident.

A dog and a cat, belonging to the same master, were the best friends in the world, and spent their time in frolicking together. One day, while playing as usual, the cat died suddenly, falling as the dog's feet. The latter, at first, did not realize what had happened, but continued his play, pulling, pushing and caressing his companion, but with evident astonishment at her inertness After some time he appeared to under stand the situation, and his grief found. vent in prolonged howls. Presently he was seized with the idea of burying the cat. He pulled her into the garden. where he soon dug a hole with his paws, and put in the body of his former companion. He then refilled the hole with dirt, and, stretching himself out on the

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilbowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For the past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at Conser & Brock's drug store.

Fatal Shooting Near La Grande

From the Eigin Recorder. A shooting affray occurred a few miles east of La Grande, Sunday morning, that resulted in the death of Henry Seidel, a resident of that section, at the bands of George Bartmess, a pioneer resident of the Grande Ronde. Bartmess was arrested and taken to La Grande, where he had his preliminary hearing before Justice Van Buren. The examination lasted the greater part of Monday and Tuesday and resulted in holding the defendent to the grand jury, his bond being placed at $5000 00 which he had no difficulty in obtaining. The trouble that led up to the shooting was occasioned by a dispute over a small plat of land that Bartmess had reserved on a farm leased to Seidel, and which the latter was attempting to take

The dead man has been a residence of pretty well known in and around Summerville, having at one time worked for P. E. Wade. His reputation for peace and quietress was not the best in the world and the sympathy of the people appear to be with Bartmess.
