

WHO IS PROF. LILLY?

Since it became known that Hon. H. B. Miller would retire from the presidency of the Corvallis Agricultural College, the name of Prof. Lilly has been heard of as that of one person who would like to succeed Mr. Miller.

One of the friends of the Corvallis college, knowing that Prof. Lilly had been connected with the Washington Agricultural College, located at Pullman, wrote to a friend of his at that place in order to learn something of the gentleman, and received an answer to the effect that Lilly had been discharged for incompetency and that it was reported that he had come to Washington under a cloud of indictable offenses, and referred this regent of the Corvallis institution to one of the regents of the Washington school, residing at Tacoma.

This Tacoma gentleman, whose name can be given if necessary, wrote that Lilly had been discharged on account of non-executive ability and for the reason that he was sloven in the records of his office and the affairs of the college, and further that he was supposed to be guilty of offenses not in keeping with the principles of honesty.

Now for a few pages of history. Last winter during the heated race at Salem there appeared upon the scene, a tall, broad-shouldered dark complexioned man who took an immense amount of interest in the proceedings. This was Prof. Lilly. He courted the society of Prof. Lake, representing the counties of Lincoln and Benton in the legislature. It was learned that Prof. Lake was at one time one of Lilly's assistants up at the Pullman college, and it was well known then that through this man Lilly, Lake forsook his friend, Mitchell, and went over to the forces of Bourne, Simon and Corbett. It was well known that there was a trade made by which Prof. Lilly should become president of the O. A. C., while Lake should be rewarded by a good position under him.

more desired than the reorganization of the college, hence that part of the plan failed.

The above is only one of the many schemes that are yearly hatched to the end that Boss Simon may retain his grip on the politics of Oregon. A portage railroad was once constructed down at the Cascades; it brought Simon a vote for president of the senate. Normal and other schools have been established and endowed with state funds; Simon has gained votes for his hellish schemes every time an educational institution was asked for by the people or a dollar was granted for its maintenance. Simon has prostituted the institution of learning that should be kept sacred and pure from the contamination of such a moral viper. They furnish to us for our young the grand bulwark of liberty and through them and by them shall we keep the fires of liberty burning in the hearts of the coming generations. Shall the schools of our state be used by a designing politician in order to further his selfish desires, regardless of the welfare of our children? We say no, a thousand times no. When the facts are known the regents will not for one moment consider the application of this man Lilly.

WHICH IS BALAM?

The Portland Dispatch says the Mitchell push held up the legislature; that finding Mitchell could not be elected, it held up the legislature and tried to throw the blame on Bourne and his populist allies. It adds: "The Benson house having thirty-one members, could have gone into the Davis house and captured the organization at any time, but they did not want it."

The editor of the Dispatch knows, as every Oregonian knows, that the Benson house was not organized until after the Davis had been in session several days. That the legislators who went into the Benson house were first in the Davis house, and only left it when Davis, their speaker, refused to make any effort to bring in the Bourne crowd or the other stay-outs. They might have captured the Davis house; in fact did capture it, but they caught a Tartar, and could do nothing. There were twenty-one members who would not come in when they joined forces with Davis, and that gentleman refused to entertain any motion of any kind except to adjourn. The editor of the Dispatch knows this as well as anybody. Besides, let us see what Corbett says, for the two do not agree. We do not pretend to say which is Balaam and which the ass, though Corbett seems to talk the most. But be that as it may, Mr. Corbett, in a recent interview at Washington City, speaking of Mitchell, said:

In the senate he made speeches in favor of free silver, and when questioned as to his position by the gold men, he told them that he stood by the principles laid down in the St. Louis platform. The men then compared notes and found that someone was bound to get left, and so they agreed not to take the oath of office, and thus they prevented the election of Mitchell.

NOT PESSIMISTIC.

THE LaGrande Chronicle is a democratic paper, but it is not looking for things to grow about. In a recent issue it says:

SOME of the lumber firms in the Blue mountains cannot secure as many tie-makers as they can conveniently use; the lumber shipments are going out as rapidly as they can be handled; the railroad company has almost doubled its working force at LaGrande; the price of wool, cattle and hogs has advanced; a general rain throughout this section has added thousands of dollars worth of good cheer, and it doesn't make much difference whether congress gets through with the tariff bill this spring or next fall.

The Gazette is not inclined to make any suggestions to a paper that can give most country sheets "cards and spades" on good common sense, but we think that the prospect of the passage of the tariff law has helped matters wonderfully. Better times are here—that is one thing certain.

WHAT OUR EXCHANGES SAY.

The removal of Representative Brown from Morrow county to Washington county creates another vacancy in the legislature. The first vacancy is in Clackamas, Representative Kruse having died. Other vacancies will occur as fast as the held-up members are convicted of bribery.—Salem Statesman.

Since the dissolution of the hold-up and the appointment of Corbett, Governor Lord has been able to purchase a mansion at Salem.—Salem Statesman.

It is encouraging to see old man Corbett's hard-earned millions getting into active circulation in Oregon.—Salem Statesman.

Lord's United States Senator Corbett is now at liberty to come home. It is to be hoped the trip has benefited his health. His visit to Washington, where he has been hanging around for a couple of months trying to break into the United States senate, came as a pleasant recreation after his hard work in holding up the legislature.—Salem Statesman.

Wm. Penland sold 150,000 pounds of wool at Heppner recently and received $2,625 more for it than he would have received had he sold at last year's price. No one can make him believe that property is lagging by the wayside.—Hillsboro Independent.

Even before he became president Mr. McKinley caused it to be known that it would be a cardinal principle of his administration to protect the rights of American citizens throughout the world. It is apparent that he is prepared to apply this principle to the lamentable condition of American citizens resident in Cuba and will apply it if the jingoes allow him to carry out his plans in his own way.—Telegram.

The morning paper in this city which has enjoyed a monopoly of the Associated Press news service for years, and which pretends to give the news to the public, did not give the important news that Judge Keyser, of Nebraska state court, has decided that the Associated Press must sell its news to all papers on the same terms. This means that the morning sheet can no longer hold a monopoly of the Associated Press service in this city.—Portland Tribune.

Senator Corbett may (?) gain his seat in the United States Senate by abusing Senator Mitchell, but it is in bad form. Qualifications, education and political honesty toward his brother senator, is easier, surer, and far more profitable to the public. Nothing shows Corbett up more to be unfit for the high position to which he has been appointed than his attempt at political stratagem to make up what he has not in education and ability. Outside of a commercial business sense, he is not an ordinary representative of the people; besides, he is an old man in his dotage.—Polk Co. Observer.

The senate committee on privileges and elections Tuesday of last week failed to take any action on the claim of H. W. Corbett for a seat in that body. It will take an extra session of the legislature to settle the Oregon senatorial question.—Polk Co. Observer.

The senate committee on privileges and elections have taken up the case of Mr. Corbett, appointed U. S. senator by Governor Lord, and will dispose of it in a few days. Indications now are that he will not be seated, in which event the governor will likely call an extra session. Should this occur Mr. Mitchell will have the best of the contest for the reason that he will have the support of the administration. And this will be a powerful influence since President McKinley has determined not to fill any of the federal offices in Oregon until after a senator is elected, consequently legislators who are opposed to Mitchell will vote for him in order to get their friends into office.—T.—M.

If that senate only knew how anxious the members of the ring in this state are for Mr. Corbett to get that seat they would probably postpone consideration of the tariff, Cuban resolutions and other minor matters and, throwing the doors wide open, say: Come in, Mr. Corbett; take a seat; you bought it and paid for it; it is but according to the law of trade that you should have it.—Portland Tribune.

While in a Hospital a Physician Hands Him Some Pills, and After a Few Doses He Feels His Health Returning—Asked for the Name of the Pills, the Physician States they were Pink Pills for Pale People.

THE PATIENT A LITTLE KNOWN MAN.

From the News, Indianapolis, Ind.

Sol. Yewell, of 96 Hill Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., who is well known to the dramatic profession, when a boy seventeen years old enlisted in Company H, 13th, Indiana Volunteer Infantry, the first three years regiment that marched to the front from the Hoosier State. In the fall of 1862 he was honorably discharged, because of disabilities contracted in the service. After a short time spent at home he went to New York and entered college. He was a bright young fellow, a diligent student and a great future seemed opening before him. But he again heard the bugles and the fires of patriotism were again aglow in his bosom. He enlisted as a recruit in Company M of the Second Harris Light Cavalry, Kilpatrick's famous old regiment, and was soon again at the front. There was a great demand for cavalry in Virginia and the active young trooper found plenty of fighting up and down the Shenandoah Valley campaigns on the Potomac. In 1864 he attracted the notice of the dashing and dauntless Custer, and was selected as one of his famous body guard, in which he served until the close of the war.

After the war Mr. Yewell began to be known as a skilled newspaper writer and correspondent, and he was later in demand as a theatrical writer and press agent, a profession in which he achieved signal success. He was a hero in private life as he had been on the field and in the camp, and few of those who know the general and versatile Sol. Yewell had any idea that he was a great sufferer from diseases and disabilities contracted during the war. Such, however, was the fact. He suffered from rheumatism, hemorrhoids and chronic tonsillitis for years.

"As if these were not enough," said Mr. Yewell the other day at the Marion Home, relating his experience to the reporter, "I was doomed to fall a victim to the grip in 1890. This last fell monster accentuated all my previous troubles and added, seemingly, half a dozen new ones. It was in November of that year that I was compelled to give up work and come to the Marion Home. Creeping paralysis, or locomotor ataxia, developed and in 1892 I went to the hospital where I remained for several months. My condition became so alarming that the surgeons here who are my very good friends, were compelled to admit they could do nothing for me. My locomotor ataxia was attended with vertigo and I was liable to fall at any unexpected moment. The surgeons having nothing else in mind recommended that last resort—a change of climate. So in May, 1894, I went to Boston, Mass. I had secured employment at the Columbia Theatre there as press writer, as I was determined to do something. I remained there two seasons.

"My vertigo and paralysis continued to distress me greatly. I consulted a number of eminent physicians in Boston and became a patient at the Harvard College clinic on Bennett Street. The surgeons there appeared to desire to make much of me as a patient and I was willing. One day a doctor there gave me a box of pills. The wrapper and all identifying marks were gone, but the coating of the pills was of a pink color.

"I had scarcely used the box before much to my surprise, I found that locomotor ataxia was leaving me. On the second box the vertigo entirely disappeared, my paralysis or locomotor ataxia was gone and I began to have my old-time confidence in myself. Yes, all these ailments under which I had suffered were leaving me. I used about four boxes of these pills before I knew what inquire why his credentials of appointment from the governor of Oregon are not good enough to let him in on. However, the objection to this prevails, that of delay to the tariff bill, for if the republicans should once enter upon the attempt to seat the Oregon senator it would be good-bye to any consideration of the tariff bill at this session.—Washington Post.

BEST SPRING REMEDY.

Paine's Celery Compound.

There is one true specific for diseases arising from impure blood and a debilitated nervous system, and that is Paine's celery compound, so generally prescribed by physicians. It is probably the most remarkable remedy that the scientific research of this country has produced. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., L. D., of Dartmouth college, first prescribed what is now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, a positive cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For the latter Paine's celery compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.
