A MIGHTY HUNTER.

Death of a Once Famous Pennsylvania Nimrod.

In Years Gone By He Was Known as the Most Successful Trapper and Woodsman of the East.

Joseph Mahn, of Elk county, once famous as a mighty hunter, died a few days ago, nearly 90 years old. It was less than ten years ago that failing eyesight compelled him to give up his life in the woods. He had hunted and trapped in the Pennsylvania woods since 1820, and the stories of his exploits are household words in the western and northern portions of this state.
He remembered when elk were yet numerous in the state, and one of his favorite stories was of the time when he was a boy and went with his father on an elk hunt. They followed the elk from the headwaters of the Allegheny river until it crossed the river below Ohio City is now, and led the chase into Ohio, where, on the third day of the hunt, it was killed not far from what is now Mansfield.

This old woodsman ended his career as a hunter and trapper by a series of successes which he declared were the most satisfactory to him of all his exploits. He was trapping in Center county, and had four bear traps out.
He started one morning to look after them. The first trap he visited had done good work. It had a big bear in it with a magnificent coat of fur. The old trapper shot the bear and went on to another trap. That one had a surprise for him. It was not a bear, but an ugly, glaring, snarling catamount, the largest one Mahn had ever seen in all his career in the forest. It was not only ugly, but extremely tough, for the trapper had to shoot it five times before it would die. This trophy was over four feet long.

After killing the catamount Mahn went on to the third trap, and there he found awaiting him a monstrous old timber of a bear, caught in the trap by both fore feet. How the bear managed to get both feet into the trap was something Mahn could not understand, as it was a thing unheard of in bear trapping. This bear was a savage old chap, and resented its capture with so much tenacity that he would not give up until four rifle bullets induced him to do so. These three traps in succession should have yielded each so fine a prize that the old trapper was a veteran trapper, but when the fourth one came to the front with a third bear, as fine as either of the others, the old trapper rejoiced greatly. It was a trapping event without precedent in the Pennsylvania woods, and as it was a fortnight since Mahn had shot the biggest buck on record as having been killed in the state, he was willing to go home and rest the remainder of his days on the laurels these exploits alone had won him. And he fully intended to do so, for he had lost the sight of one eye entirely, and the other eye was failing. But he was not permitted to retire just yet.

A few weeks after his great trapping experience a delegation of backwoods farmers waited on him and solicited him to go kill a bear or something that was playing havoc with their sheep and pigs. The weather was warm, and Mahn did not care to undertake the task, being then almost 80 years of age.
His neighbors insisted, and he took down his gun one more and shouldered his traps. He put out six wildcat traps and four bear traps. The next day each one of five of the former had a wildcat in it, and the sixth one had the lower part of a wildcat's fore leg. Two of the bear traps had each a big bear.
A third bear trap was missing. The claim was broken loose from the wooden clog, and it was plain that a bear had walked off with the trap to one of his legs. The fourth bear trap had not been disturbed.

Mahn did not intend to go home without recovering his missing bear trap.
He tracked the bear that had it to a swamp and scared it out. The trap was fast to one of the bear's fore feet.
The bear was inclined to fight the trapper, but Mahn killed it with two shots.
On his way back home to get help to carry in this most unheard of collection of sheep and pig stealers the old man struck a bloody trail. He followed it, and it led him a mile, where it ended at the foot of a big chestnut tree. On a branch of that tree, well toward the top, lay a wildcat. Mahn brought it down with a single shot. As the wildcat was minus one fore paw, the old trapper knew he had bagged the cat that had got out of his sixth trap. Mahn had left his undisturbed bear trap in the woods. The next day he went out and got his fourth bear. Then he put away his traps and hung up his gun, and never used them again.—Chicago Chronicle.

SPOKE BY WORD.

Grand Duke Vladimir Criticized in His Own Presence.

A refreshing story is told in the columns of the Frankfort Gazette: The ear-trusted Count Pahlen, a liberal-minded man, with an inquiry into the causes of the terrible disaster to Mon-cow on the occasion of the coronation, and the count did not hesitate to tell his majesty, in the presence of Grand Duke Vladimir, that he would have done better not to put the superintendence of the coronation festivals into the hands of the grand duke. This frank declaration staggered the emperor, who asked Count Pahlen to advance his reasons.
The count answered: "The grand duke is in his right place in the army and navy, but if they have to do with purveyors and purveyance they should be cheated." The Grand Duke Vladimir protested against this, but smilingly Count Pahlen reminded him of his own bad experience in connection with the building of the memorial church to Alexander II. In consequence of this frank attitude of Count Pahlen, the minister of justice was ordered to continue the inquiry. He succeeded in clearing up the dark affair, but when the investigation began to take a very disagreeable turn it was determined to submit it not to the ordinary court of justice, but to the ministerial council —in other words, to burke it.

Phosphorus in the Human Body.

The human brain contains a considerable proportion of phosphorus, varying from 1.30 to 1.35 of the entire mass.
If the average weight of the Caucasian brain be taken at 175 ounces it will then contain an amount of phosphorus amounting to from 1.75 to 2.5 ounces.
A curious fact regarding this phosphorus in the human brain is that it is most entirely wanting in the brain-matter of idiots.

Tossed on the Foaming Billows.

You may never have been, but if you cross the Atlantic, no matter how smooth the watery expanse, without sea sickness you are—well, a lucky voyager, that is all. Old tars who have spent their lives on the ocean waves, who were almost born, so to speak, with their "sea legs on," suffer now and then from sea sickness in very tempestuous weather. Sea captains, tourists, commercial travelers and yachsmen say that their is no finer safeguard against nausea than Hoslet's Stomach Bitters, and it has been equally reliable as a preventive by invalids who travel by steamboat and railroad, and who sometimes suffer as much in those conveyances as ocean travelers do in steamships. Biliousness, constipation, sick headache and disorders of the stomach caused by oppressive climatic influences or unwholesome or unaccustomed food or water, always yield to the Bitters speedily. This popular medicine also remedies rheumatic, kidney and nervous disorders, and the infirmities incident to increasing years.

A Milton young man recently called on a Weston young lady to spend the evening. When about to return home the conversation chanced to turn on art, and the lady told him that she reminded her of the Venus of Milo, whereupon the young man chuckled with delight, thinking it was his symmetrical form his sweetheart alluded to. When he got home he consulted an encyclopædia, and to his deep chagrin and reproach found that the Venus of Milo had no arms. He went down in the cellar and tried to butt his brains out on a soft cabbage.—Athens Press.

The True Remedy.

W. M. Repine, editor Tekila, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't get bones without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr.
King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Conser &

KEEPING A HOLIDAY.

How Shall We Plan to Get from It All the Good It Can Give?

What is sure to make it a refreshing day?

What is the very best way to spend it?
How shall we plan to get from it all the good it can give? To make the very most of a single day, a holiday, a day that we are at liberty to spend as we like, may be something of a puzzle.

It suggests the question—what do you care most about doing with all your time? Time is the stuff of which life is made, and just to be sure of what we care most to do with it is worth thinking about.

Most young people, and in fact pretty much all persons, have some favorite occupation or study, or both in one, some special direction in which they are strongly drawn, that lies outside of the daily necessary routine of work.
For those who have ordinarily but little leisure (and in this busy work-a-day world this includes the majority), the indulgence of this private liking is a capital use for at least a part of the holiday. It may lead to important results or it may not—the thing we are most eager to do may be a mere amusement of which we soon tire, or it may be
the real serious business of our lives, which circumstances have seemed to put beyond our reach, yet which perseverance will enable us to achieve.

However that may be, there is no question about the pleasure of doing the thing one likes best. It may be music or history, or football, or wood-carving, or what not—the thing we are most eager to do may be a mere amuse-
the real serious business of our lives,
severance will enable us to achieve.

There is one thing that is sure to make a holiday a holiday, and that is to do the thing that we were made to do, the real serious business of our lives, which circumstances have seemed to put beyond our reach, yet which perseverance will enable us to achieve.
