The Way to Advance.

The following new story is told of the late Lord Ampthill. When he was a junior clerk in the foreign office, Lord Palmerston, then foreign secretary, introduced an innovation whereby instead of being solemnly summoned by a verbal message the clerks were expected to answer his bell. Some haughty spirits rebelled against being treated like footmen and tried to organize resistance, but Odo Russell, as he then was, refused to join the rebellious movement, saying that whatever method apprised him most quickly of Lord Palmerston's wishes was the method which he preferred. The aggrieved clerks regarded him as a traitor to his order, but he died an ambassador.

The Lives of Infants Preserved

Wonders for Prematurely Born Nurslings in New York

"He was incubated," the proud mother of some great man of the future will say of her son. For the baby incubator is a success and has come to stay. The doctors declare that incubators have already been the means of saving the lives of one hundred infants in New York. In fact, the new-born baby who under old-fashioned methods has no chance of living, now, if put into an incubator, stands about an even chance of becoming a healthy, crowing youngster. Baby incubators are now in use in two hospitals in the city.

A cozier place for a baby could not be imagined, says the New York World. Here the embryo citizens have every opportunity the world affords to hold on to life and to grow healthy and strong, while in the tenements where their parents live the lives of the frail little things would have been snuffed out in less than a day after they first saw the light. The incubator is used only for prematurely-born babies and for babies which are so weak that the wise young woman doctors are pretty sure they will die if left in the open air. Strangely enough, the incubator is shaped something li're a coffin, while its par ticular aim is to keep babies out of coffins. There are two kinds of baby incubators, and they differ somewhat in construction. The babies are taken out of the incubators at the Maternity hospital to get their nourishment directly from their mothers, who live in the building; but the mother in the Post-Graduate hospital may not see her offspring from one week's end to an-

Therefore the youngster must be fed by artificial means, and, after much experiment and study, the doctors have npleted an incubator by means of which the baby is nourished without being removed from its snug little nest,

The moment a baby for the incubator arrives at the Maternity hospital the white-capped nurses and the doctors gather about the little wooden box, which rests upon a stand some three or four feet high. Baby is swathed very carefully in warm clothes, and is then weighed, clothes and all, before he is laid inside and the glass cover is placed over him.

Underneath the board upon which the little mite rests are three bottles to create interest, and more especially that are kept constantly full of hot water. The air passing in from below small village of Gloignes, in the depart- flows over these and through an opening in the board into the chamber spondent. An old couple, M. and Mme. where the infant is. forward to still some years of married The weight is a very important matlife, although his spouse is somewhat ter. One baby in the incubator is feeble, and required the stalwart arm weighed every day. A healthy baby of a grandson, who is a non-commis- should show a slight diurnal increase in weight, and if the doctors find that the diminutive patient is not growing heavier they seek remedies for his indisposition. This is the truest method they have of ascertaining the baby's progress, and therefore the greatest care is taken that its clothes shall always be of the same weight, as two or three ounces is a considerable increase for a young man or woman whose aggregate weight is only six, seven or eight pounds. About seventy per cent. of the "incubated" babies have lived, and at least fifty per cent. of these would have died but for the incubator. The incubator which will be in the babies' ward of the new building of the Post-Graduate hospital is a great improvement on that at the Maternity nospital, although it lacks the sentimental surroundings of the one in charge of the young woman doctors.

The incubator is set upon bicycle wheels, so it may be moved about whenever desired. The fresh air is heated by passing between two strata of hot water, rises up both at the head and the foot of the mattress and is kept in motion by an aluminum fan run by clockwork, thus preventing any possibility of the little patient's suffering for want of air. There is also a tube for the supply of oxygen, liberal quantities of which are good for babies who are hanging on to life by the merest thread, and it is believed this improvement will save a great many lives that would have been lost in the old incu

By means of a clever mechanical device the weight of the baby is always registered, so that the physician may discover the slightest variation at any time. Infants are subject to tubercular diseases, which develop before the doc tor knows what is the matter. Of course, the incubator must be opened in order to feed the baby its artificial food, but by means of a deft sliding of the covers the entrance of any cold air from the outside is prevented. The temperature of the inside of the incu bator is kept as near ninety-eight de grees as possible.

The Post-Graduate hospital gets more subjects for incubators than the Mn ternity hospital, and the task of bring ing the little ones by slow stages t vigor and health is the more difficult because the mothers are not present t nucse them. The learned doctors : this institution have literally snatchelife from the jaws of death on mor than one occasion.

In New Jersey, as everywhere else in the world, she appears to have been industrious and energetic and ingenious. Among the implements discovered which she employed in prehistoric New Jersey were flint knives, with which she cut meat and probably vegetables; flint scrapers, with which she cleaned the skins of deer and bear, wildcat and other animals, preliminary to drying and smoking them for use as wearing apparel; clay pots and pans, pipkins and dishes, which she made in primeval potteries, at first the sun drying them and thereafter burning them in hot wood fires. The pottery shows here and there artistic yearnings on the part of the unknown makers, more uncouth and rudimentary than those of the ancient cliff-dwellers, but nevertheless they disclose the artistic sentiments and confirm the long list of examples collected by Prof. Mason, of Washington, showing that the first potter, the first modeler, the first sculptor and carver and the first artist was a

Arizona Residents Puzzled by a Strange Mountain Formation

For the last half century the Ameri can residents of Tueson, A. T., have been trying to solve the mystery of what appears to be a hole through a mountain peak in sight of the town. In the clear air it looks to be only a short distance away, when in reality it is at least 40 miles.

By the aid of a good marine telescope the mountain can be brought to within a few miles, but not near enough to tell the exact nature of the rock formation. A first peep through the glass would lead one to believe that there was no mystery about it. The hole appears as plain as possible, but several days study of the spot will develop the fact that the hole does not always look the same.

Many days when the sky is dark behind the mountain the hole will appear look so dark as to be almost invisible These facts have led many to think that it is an immense piece of mica ly ing with its polished surface toward the sky and reflecting the cloud forma tions of another part of the horizon, instead of being the light seen through a hole. Viewed with the naked eye, the hols simply appears as a whitspot, but the telescope reveals pine trees and other details, although very indis-
