FRESHNESS OF FEELING.

How to Retain This Most Charming Characteristic of Middle Age. Freshness of feeling is one of the most charming characteristics of a middle-aged man or woman. We are all familiar with men and women, not out of the 20's, who have the air of having exhausted all the resources of delight. They appear to have been through the whole round of human interests and to have explored them so thoroughly that they cannot be surprised or greatly moved. Children of wealthy parents introduced too early to the life of their elders, often betray this unlovely characteristic. The zest of work they never knew and the zest of amusement and diversion has palled upon them. On the other hand, those who have worked too long or intensely in a single line often exhaust their power of taking interest in other things, or of being strongly moved by them.

Timbales of Fish.

Timbales are French dishes, so named from 'timbale,' a metal cup, because they are generally made in plain molds, either round or oval. They are somewhat difficult to make, however, requiring both care and practice. They are lined with forcemeat and filled with a creamed forcemeat of fish, chicken, sweetbreads or spaghetti or rice. They are very popular as an entrée for a company luncheon. For 12 small molds or timbales, sometimes called dariole molds, 1 1/2 pounds of cold, fleshy fish of any kind, such as salmon or halibut, will be required. Cook a half pint of bread crumbs with a pint of equal parts of milk and rich cream for ten minutes, and meantime pound to a paste the fish, with half a dozen fresh stewed mushrooms; rub this through the purple sieve, season with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and when the bread and cream mixture is cold pound all together until well mixed; add four well-beaten eggs, fill the molds not quite full, cover with buttered paper, place them in a deep pan and pour in hot water almost to the rim of the molds. Cook in a very moderate oven for 25 minutes.-Boston Herald.

KIPLING'S LITTLE JOKE.

How He Gave Out a Folley for the Australians.

Rudyard Kipling is usually represented as being very cold and distant to young newspaper men, and proof against their efforts to interview him. There is evidently a kind side to his nature, however, as is shown by a story that is told by the Literary Digest. In regard to the statement in an Australian paper that he landed on that island at 12 o'clock and 16 minutes later "had formulated an Australian policy," Mr. Kipling, according to the Digest, makes the following explanation: "A young reporter cornered me just after I landed. I treated him kindly, but said firmly that I was not to be interviewed. 'You've replied the reporter, with a sadness in his voice. 'I ask a much greater favor than that.' It turned out that the reporter had an Australian policy which he knew would be of the greatest benefit to the country. No paper would print it. His modest request was that Kipling would let him put forth his theory as the scheme of the novelist. 'They will print it,' he said, 'if I give it as coming from you.' 'All right,' agreed Kipling, 'fire ahead.' So the young reporter got in four mortal columns telling the people of Australia how to govern their country. 'I never read the article,' Mr. Kipling placidly says, 'but there must have been amazing theories in it from the storm it raised.'"

An Unexpected Answer.

On a recent Sunday night a minister was preaching in Belfast, when a young man in the congregation, getting weary of the sermon, looked repeatedly at his watch. Just as he was in the act of examining his timepiece for the fourth or fifth time, the pastor, with great earnestness, was urging the truth upon the conscience of his hearers. "Young man," said he, "how is it with you?" Whereupon the young man with the gold reporter bowed into, in the hearing of nearly the whole congregation: "A quarter past eight." As may be supposed, the gravity of the assembly was very much disturbed by the occurrence.

Such a Persistent Dog.

Mother-Horror! Where did you get that dog? Young Hopeful-He followed me home. 'Hum! Did you coax him?' 'I didn't coax him. I threw things at him, but he would come.' 'That's strange. What did you throw?' 'A lot of hard, ugly bones the butcher gave me.'-Odds and Ends.

Waldron lived on a farm four miles from Salem, Ore. A few days ago he left his wife and five children and started out in search of work. The coming harvest in this section presented an opportunity and he headed this way. Being without money to pay his fare he was compelled to beat his way and was riding the "blind baggage."

HAIRD CUSTOMERS.

Some Canadian Culprits Captured After an Exciting Tussle.

Murderer Woods and Burglar McDonald, who created quite a furor in Nelson, B. C., on last Thursday by holding up the sheriff and escaping from jail, were captured last Sunday night, but only after a hard struggle in which one of the officers would have been killed if Woods' gun had worked.

The editor of the Gazette, accompanied by H. C. Gregg, of the Walls Walls Union, arrived from Kalo, B. C., on the steamer Alberta on Thursday evening and found all excitement. The $250 reward offered for the capture of Woods stimulated every man to turn officer, and men could be seen every where armed with little popgun pistols, but most of them did not hunt for Mr. Woods where there was any particular danger of his being found. It was generally conceded that he would prove a hard customer to handle, but say what you like regarding the bravery of the average Canadian, the officers are in most cases nifty men who will take desperate chances.

The Shakers have made a discovery which is destined to accomplish much good. Healing that three-fourths of all our sufferings arise from stomach troubles, that the country is literally filled with people who cannot eat and digest food, without subsequently suffering pain and distress, and that many are starving, wasting to mere skeletons, because their food does them no good, they have devoted much study and thought to the subject, and the result is this discovery of their Digestive Cordial.
