Nevertheless he managed to live without borrowing any money, for he had no friends in Chicago from whom he could borrow, and he was too proud to write home for money. Instead he wrote home glowing tales of the progress which he onsequent rewards.

Few people would believe that a man | the evening. could live in Chicago for six months on $70, but he did it. Of course he did not dine at a fashionable restaurant. He ate his meals on Clark street at some sacrifice of his pride, but without the knowledge of any of his acquaintances. No one would know where he ate, for none of the men whom he saw during meals usually cost him five cents each, and they were good meals, in quantity, if not in quality.

Well and Truly Said.

Over the triple doorway of the cathedral of Milan there are three inscriptions spanning the splendid arches, Over one is carved a beautiful wreath of roses, and underneath is the legend: "All that pleases is but for a moment." Over another is sculptured a cross and these are the words underneath: "All that troubles is but for a moment." But underneath the great central entrance in the main aisle is the inscription: "That only is important which day. is eternal."

The Tables Turned. In England it is a common thing to see clergymen's wives inviting indies to ome to them as general servants for he honor and glory of the thing, but the tables have been turned by three Brook, adles in a London suburb, who have adrertised for a gentlewoman to do the work of their cottage. The gentlevorcan required must, seconding to the alvertisement, not only be strong, active and an early riser, but must be a lergyman's or professional man's laughter. Reading for Children. I had recently in my service a pretig little housemaid, barely 19 years old, nest, capable and good-tempered, but so perpetually downcast that she threw a cloud over our unreasonably cheer ful household. I grew melancholy watching her at work. One day, going into the kitchen, I saw lying open on a chair, a book she had just been reading. It purported to be the experience of a missionary in one of our large cities and was divided into nine separate stories. These were their titles, ed verbatim on the spot: "The Infidel," "The Miser's Death," "The Hospital," "The Wanderer's Death," When you go to Portland, stop off at The Dying Shirtmaker," "The Broken The Dalles and take a trip down the Columbia; you will enjoy it, and save wonder that, like the Scotchman's fumous dag, "life was full o' sariouspess for her, when religion and literature, the two things which should make up he sum of our happiness, had conspired, under the guine of Sunday-

MARRY IN SECRET.

Strange Custom of the Mountain People of the South.

Weddings Are Conducted Without Any Ceremony and There Are No Feastings or Congratulations.

There are few places and few grades of life, in either the rural or the urban world, where the word "wedding" is not a synonym for joy and festivity. Only the cynic or the misanthrope protests against the wedding celebration. We ding feast remains. While very likely not the only place in the world, the only place in my experience where there is any general concealment of proposed connubiality and nuptial intent is in the mountains of the south. It may be generally known that "Zeb" is "keeping regular company" with "Lize." Suddenly the town will be apprised of the fact that "Zeb and Lize done got married last night." This constitutes what might be called an anticipated

Sometimes in the large settlements due notice will be given and the wedding take place in the little church or in the building used in common for all public purposes-religious services, school, political gatherings and itinerant shows. That practice is, however, generally confined to the elite of the community. In one place in my experience the popular resort for the perform-I could discover no ground for the popularity of the spot, Sometimes a few intimate friends would be invited to atetnd. Sometimes none was observer save the causal passer-by. More frequently there were no witnesses save the sun above the lumber-piles around. Concerning that spot a local magistrate tells an amusing story. A certain man had been unfortunate in the longevity of his selections, had been twice married and twice bereaved. He called upon the magistrate to officiate at a love, he said to the groom: "Move a little further over this way, John. Toe up to that line. That is where you've always stood before." And there was no proceeding until John had "toep up." A man who was doing some work for me came to me one day at noon and asked permission to be absent until "quartering time," 3:30 o'clock. He said nothing to me or to his associates on time, to announce, in a casual and indifferent manner, that during his absence he had been married and, with the little furniture possessed by the

The ground for so general observance of secrecy I could not discover. It holds with both the intention of marriage and the precise time of the ceremony. I that entertainment I can only describe it as a most excruciating pandomonium, the unfortunate auditor of one or two such performances, and if I knew that choose to "live a bachelor." I blame no man for retaining his secret to avoid the experience. The poorer classes, with whom the concealment is a general practice, have no money to spend for mutual agreement; the business is dispatched without fuss or features and the journey to paradise is taken by the most direct route,-N.
