

Marvelous Effects

System Broken Down and Hope Almost Abandoned—Health Restored by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For fifteen years I have suffered with catarrh and indigestion and my whole system was broken down. I had almost abandoned any hope of recovery. I purchased six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and its effects have been marvelous. It has made me feel like a new man. I am able to sleep well, have a good appetite and I have gained several pounds in weight." JAMES WILSON, Orville, Wash.

"I had a scrofula swelling on one side of my neck and ulcerated sores in my nostrils, caused by catarrh. I also had small, itching sores on my limbs. I bought three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and began taking it and the sores soon healed. My blood is purified, and the scrofula has disappeared." O. D. MOHANTUS, Mission, Washington.

MATHEMATICS AND ASTRONOMY

Two Sciences That Are Closely Related and Necessary to Each Other.

Probably in none of the sciences, applied or pure, is a knowledge of higher mathematics so essential as astronomy. Certainly none involves so much mathematical labor. The method of the least squares is one in almost constant use by those engaged in astronomical calculation, and the amount of labor often entailed by this process is enough to make the head of an ordinary citizen swim even to think of. One of the most extensive least square solutions ever made, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, has recently been published by Prof. Schur, of Goettingen. The heliometric triangulations of the stars in the cluster Praesepe (the Beehive) gave rise to a series of 74 normal equations, involving 74 unknown quantities. The solution of this set of quantities was effected by Prof. Schur in ten weeks by means of the usual Gaussian method of elimination. Prof. Schur comes to the conclusion that no other method by successive approximations is to be compared to the Gaussian method, even though it might seem to promise a saving of labor in advance. Prof. Schur mentions as the longest least square solution he has been able to find in astronomical literature a geodetic adjustment made by Baeyer, in which a set of normal equations with 68 unknowns was successfully solved by the famous computer, Dase, in three months.

CURED BY SUN BATHS.

Happy Recovery of a Paralytic Through a Resort to Exposure.

The liveliest passenger on board the steamship City of Peking was Humphrey Kendrick, of Los Angeles. He had just returned from Japan, says the San Francisco Chronicle, a country that he loves, because a few years ago it completely cured him of paralysis. When Kendrick found that he had lost control of his limbs he determined to spend all the money he had to get relief. It was easy enough to tell what had brought the paralysis upon him, for the first stroke came soon after he had a bad tumble on horseback. The animal fell in such a way as to catch Kendrick squarely beneath it, severely wrenching and straining his spine. Kendrick found that he was much better in hot weather, and this led him to the Hawaiian Islands. He was so much better there when it was hot that he concluded to go to a still warmer place. Somebody told him that the south coast of Japan in summer was the place.

For many months during that hottest of hot summers Kendrick engaged in a most unique attempt to regain his health. For days at a time he would lie positively stripped to the skin in the hot sun on the seashore of Japan. He got so that he rather liked it. As the days passed he kept getting better. Then he took to seeking exercise. A donkey was secured and Kendrick, stark naked, would ride the animal up and down the beach. It was almost too hot for the beast, but Kendrick did not seem to mind it. The result was complete recovery. Kendrick came back feeling like a schoolboy and much infatuated with the country of the Japs.

Historical Records of Maryland.

In speaking of the records of the provincial court of the province of Maryland, from 1657 to the revolution, now preserved in Anne Arundel county, the Baltimore Sun says: "The historical value of these old records is incalculable. It is believed that no other state in the union has such records of family history showing the manner of living among the people of the colony as far back as 250 years ago. In the wills, families can be traced back from father to son for a century. The court record books containing inventories of personal estates make a complete exhibit of the character of household furniture, kitchen implements, farm utensils, etc. used by the early settlers and their descendants during the first century and a half of the colony. From these things we can read much of the habits and customs of the people."

FOR YOU!

Now Prepared to do Any Kind of Printing—Don't Send Your Orders Away 'Till You Get the Gazette's Estimates.

Heretofore the Gazette's job department has tried to do no work other than plain printing. However, this shop is now prepared to tackle anything in any line and will meet prices of any person under the sun in the line of druggists' supplies, blank books, bank work, county work, or any sort of book binding—work that you have heretofore sent away to get done.

The Gazette shop is not a charity concern but if you will give us a chance we will see that you are satisfied in every particular.

Buy your goods at home. Remember that Abe Lincoln said that when one bought goods away from home the foreigner got the money and we got the goods. But when the goods were bought at home we had both money and goods. This is good doctrine. We are willing to abide by it. When the printing drummer comes to town, remember it and call up 'phone No. 3. 560-ft

ONE GUESS

A Whole English Regiment Made Up of Questionable Characters.

The story is told of an English militia regiment whose reputation was none of the best that on one occasion a detective from Scotland asked to be allowed to inspect the regiment to discover if possible if a certain malefactor were in the ranks. Permission being given, the detective, accompanied by the adjutant of the regiment, made a tour of the various companies, front rank and rear rank. When the official had got to the last man of the rear rank of the rear company he stopped suddenly and gazed earnestly at the rather embarrassed warrior. "Why, you surely have made a mistake," exclaimed the adjutant, indignantly; "why, you have pitched on the best man in the battalion. He has been with us for more than 20 years, and he is our pattern soldier. His arms are a mass of good conduct badges, and he is the example of all that is best in the life of a soldier. You surely do not know him?" "No," replied the detective, "I do not—but I know all the others."

HE CHANGED HIS MIND.

Praying for Death, the Loner Struggled Against It When Menaced.

A curious case of nervous hallucination is reported in the London Telegraph. At Bordeaux recently a hysterical Frenchman visited the tomb where his beloved was laid. Carrying a lighted candle and kneeling by her coffin, he exclaimed passionately: "Would I could die! Would I could die!" Just then the wind dinged the door and extinguished the light. The bereaved lover who had just prayed for death rushed for the door; he could not open it; he tore at it, knocked, kicked, struggled, calling loudly for help. No answer, only the utter silence and darkness of the tomb. His wish to die was forgotten. He sank down and wept; his tears were not for his beloved, but for himself. He felt the pangs of hunger; he thought of his candle and cut it into four parts. He ate the first quarter the first day, the second quarter on the second day, the third on the third day, and the last quarter on the fourth day. No more, and he must die of starvation. He made one more desperate effort to open the door, when it suddenly opened and the keeper of the cemetery stood before him; the sunlight blinded him, and he fell from exhaustion. He had been there just four hours.

Not the Night Prescription.

Dr. Liddell's morning lectures were crowded beyond description. It was his pride and boast that he could feel his patient's pulse, look at his tongue, sound him with a stethoscope, write his prescription and pocket his fee in a space of time varying from two to five minutes. One day an army man was shown into the consulting-rooms and underwent what might be termed the instantaneous process. When it was completed the patient shook hands with the doctor and said: "I am especially glad to meet you, as I have often heard my father, Col. Forester, speak of his old friend, Dr. Liddell." "What!" exclaimed the doctor. "Are you Dick Forester's son?" "I am, sir." "My dear fellow," exclaimed the doctor, "bring that prescription in the five, please, and sit down and tell me what is the matter with you?"
