McClure's Magazine

For 1897

SEVEN GREAT SERIALS

A New Life of Grant by HAMLEN GARLAND. The first authoritative and adequate Life of Grant ever published. (Begins in December.) Rudyard Kipling's first American serial, "Captains Courageous." (Begun in November.) Robert Louis Stevenson's "St. Ives." The only novel of Stevenson's still unpublished (Begins in May.) Charles A. Dana, "Recollections of War Time." Mr. Dana was for three of the most critical years of the Civil War practically a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, and is probably better fitted than any other man living to give an authoritative history of this period from his recollections and correspondence. Portraits of Great Americans. Many of them unpublished. In connection with this series of portraits it is intended to publish special biographical studies under the general title of MAKERS OF THE UNION from Washington to Lincoln. Pictures of Palestine. Specially taken under the editor's direction. Stories of Adventure. A serial by CONAN DOYLE, in which he will use his extraordinary talent for mystery and ingenuity which have, in the "Sherlock Holmes" stories, given him a place beside Poe and Gabriel.

TEN FAMOUS WRITERS

IAN MACLAREN. All the fiction that he will write during the coming year, with the exception of two contributions to another publication which were engaged from him long ago, will appear in McClure's Magazine. JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS. A series of new animal stories in the same field as the "Fiber Rabbit" and the "Little Mr. Thumbtweezer" stories. RUDYARD KIPLING. Besides "Captains Courageous," Kipling will contribute to McClure's all of the short stories he will write during the coming year. OCTAVE THURSTON is preparing for the Magazine a series of short stories in which the same characters will appear, although each will be complete in itself.

Anthony Hope Bret Harte Robert Barr Frank R. Stockton Stanley Weyman Clark Russell will all have stories in McClure's for the coming year. These are only a small fraction of the great and important features of McClure's Magazine for 1897, the subscription price of which is only

UNIQUE WASHING COMPETITION

How English Women Draw Visitors to Washers.

In England when society embarks upon some charitable enterprise—usually a bazaar or something of that order—they secure the promise of a baker's dozen of popular young debutantes to engage in a "washing competition," this feature of the bazaar always proving a big drawing card. Each of the fair washerwomen is attended in chintz, a big white apron, broad white collar and sleeves rolled up above the elbow in true washwoman style. Each competitor is supplied with a pail, some cold water, two pegs and a soiled tea cloth.

On the word "go" jeweled hands are plunged into the water and the washing begins. The prize is given to the competitor who shows the cleanest cloth at the end of three minutes, the same being pegged into place upon the line. Points are deducted for overtime and incorrect detail. Said a London belle who recently took part in a washing competition at a select social event: "Twenty minutes of that exercise every day would give anybody first-rate arm developing exercise. It's way ahead of some of the methods in my physical culture class."

ROUGH ON THE SENTRY.

The Remedy Was All Right, But It Was Given to the Wrong Man. One of the most amusing stories of the day treats of a mistaken philanthropy, according to "Ed-Rite," a certain army post where was a London sentry on duty near the hospital. The surgeon was preparing to go to bed inside, when he was annoyed and alarmed at the sentry's coughing. His experienced ear told him that the man had a severe bronchial affliction needing a strong remedy.

He debated awhile with himself and then going into the dispensing-room compounded a powerful mixture. This he took outside to the sentry, with instructions to swallow it immediately. The man refused. The surgeon insisted, and finally commanded the soldier to take the medicine, which he did with much grumbling. Then the worthy surgeon went to bed, pleased to hear no more coughing.

Next morning, to his surprise, the commanding officer sent for him and said that the sentry had complained, declaring that the surgeon had forced him to swallow something he thought was poison. An investigation followed, and revealed the fact that while the surgeon was mixing the medicine the coughing sentry had been relieved, and consequently the remedy had been given to the wrong man.

Gave the Servants a Warning. A parrot in a certain family was usually kept in the dining-room with the family, but during the winter was removed to the kitchen for greater warmth. When the winter was past it again made its appearance among the family, whom it amused with the new remarks it had picked up in the kitchen. On one occasion, when the bell had been rung for something, the parrot was heard remarking from his cage: "Let 'em ring again!" The affection of the collector for the objects of his zeal has been amusingly illustrated by a story told of Melingue, a French tragedian who had a mania for gathering together great quantities of old vestments, arms and similar antique apparatus. Among his treasures was a beautiful and keen-edged sword which had belonged to Philip II., son of Emperor Charles V.

Having worn this sword in a piece in which he was performing, Melingue was making his way homeward in Paris one night. The weather was rainy, and he carried an umbrella. Under his cloak he bore the precious sword of Philip II.

Coming around a corner, Melingue was suddenly menaced by two sneak thieves. He was an expert fencer, and knew that with the sword he could quickly beat the rascals off. But he said to himself: "What! Betray to these rascals that I have such a precious possession? No! They might be too much for me, after all, and then they would get it. I will keep it out of sight."

So saying, he placed his left hand on the hilt of the sword inside his cloak, and with the other hand let down his umbrella. With this as a weapon, he assaulted the footpads with such force and spirit that he put them to flight. In this case the umbrella turned out to be mightier than the sword.

STARVING MONKEYS KILL MEN. Herds of Simians Working Haven in China and Japan. Recent advices state that great devastation is being wrought in both Japan and China by immense bands of monkeys, which have been driven down from the forests and ravines by the unusually cold weather and heavy snows. Being deprived of the usual means of subsisting on berries and roots the starving monkeys are ravaging outlying mountain districts and devouring crops. Everything green is quickly eaten and then the herds of apes press farther into the settlements. Around Takusabana, in Hsaki province, the greatest damage had been done.

When the monkeys first came down two woodcutters were attacked and killed by the hunger-maddened creatures. Since then numerous cases of the killing of people living in isolated places have been reported, being caused apparently by their efforts to subdue the intruders or protect their property. In such cases monkeys by dozens would attack men and kill them. Such devastation wrought by monkeys was unknown to Japanese, though their legends hint at such occurrences centuries ago. Villagers have been preparing for vengeance and by this time organized monkey hunts are in progress in both Empires. The local governments are also rendering aid.

Something to Depend on.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her send and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at Conser & Brock's Drug Store.

Condition of Wool.

Boston, Aug. 7.—The Commercial Bulletin says of the wool market: The market continues to advance slowly at the rate of about a cent a scoured pound each week. Michigan was sold at 20 cents and Australian has advanced. Mills are averaging an advance of 15 per cent on their new cloths and are much encouraged. Receipts to date show an increase of 30,271 bales domestic and 337,963 foreign.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a running ear, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Sold by druggists, 75c. Toledo, O.

A Remarkable Cure for Chronic Diarrhoea. In 1862, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50 cent bottle; and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great remedy and recommend it to all suffering veterans. In my doubt write me. Yours gratefully, Henry Steinberger, Allentown, Pa. Sold by Conser & Brock.

William Holsapple, son of ex-detective Holsapple, who is well known throughout this part of the state, was arrested for theft of a buggy harness at Portland a few days ago. A short time since, young Holsapple enlisted in the cavalry at Fort Walla Walla, from which he recently deserted.

CATARRH LOCAL DISEASE

Two of a Kind.

A prosaizer came at a newspaper man this way: "You editors dare not tell the truth. If you did, you could not live, your newspaper would be a failure." The editor: "You are right, and the minister who at all times and under all circumstances tells the whole truth about his members, alive or dead, will not ill a pulpit more than one Sunday, then he will find it necessary to leave town in a hurry. The press and the pulpit go hand in hand with whitewash brushes and pleasant words, magnifying little virtues into big ones. The great saintmaking triumvirate, And the great minister went away looking very thoughtful, while the editor turned to his work and told about the surpassing beauty of the bride, while in fact she was as homely as a hedge fence.

A Serious Difficulty. "I suffered for three years with salt rheum. The humor was on my hands and I was obliged to keep a covering on them most of the time. The stinging and burning were very severe. Nothing did me any good until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking six bottles I was cured." Mrs. S. E. Wood, DeLamar, Idaho.

Hood's Pills are the favorite family cathartic. Easy to take, gentle, mild. 25 cents.

The atmosphere is beginning to assume an Indian summer appearance, it having been quite hazy during the past few days.
