WHAT OUR EXCHANGES SAY.

WHEAT has increased 50 per cent in value in the past year, and silver has fallen 25 per cent. Mr. Bryan, give an account of yourself.

UNLESS silver stops its downward course, that party of patriots who recently sailed for Japan to obtain arguments in favor of the white metal will scarcely be able to present much encouragement to the cause in time for the autumn election of 1897.

PROF. ANDREE, the explorer, has not sent out another of his carrier pigeons lately. He may have found the pole and took up a homestead claim on it, but why doesn't he send back one of his pigeons and tell us about it? Perhaps the cold weather caused the birds to take refuge in Andree's stomach.

"THE cause of the present boom in the West," says President McKinley, is undoubtedly due in a great measure to the large crops and high prices caused by the failure of crops in other countries. But the fact that prosperity has set in the East cannot be accounted for in any other way than by the wise policy of the republican party in restoring a protective tariff.

THE governor of Alaska has called attention yearly to the increasing traffic in liquors in the Territory. Under the law, no liquors, malt or vinous, can be imported, manufactured or sold there, save by special permit, allowing for their use for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes. Despite this regulation there are now in Alaska five breweries in operation and 142 other places where liquors are sold.

WITH Mexican dollars worth only 40 cents, the laboring people of that country, whose wages are nominally one-half the wages in the United States, are in hard lines. The recent fall in silver and depreciation of the Mexican dollar has caused great suffering to the class of people who were but poorly paid when the dollar was much more valuable than it is at present. This depreciation causes a rise in the prices of all commodities that the laborer must buy, but the laborer's wages themselves are the last things so affected.

THAT the customs collections since the new tariff law went into effect have been very light is, of course, explained by the fact that the importers had crowded into the country all the foreign goods which they could get in under the low tariff rates of the Wilson law prior to the enactment of the protective measure now upon the statute books. Not only did they scour the world for foreign manufactures, but they ransacked the bonded warehouses, taking out the bonds on everything upon which the new law increased the rates of duty. This is shown by the recent official figures given the public at Washington, which shows that only $18,000,000 worth of goods remained in the bonded warehouses of the country at the beginning of the month in which the Dingley law went into effect, compared with more than $50,000,000 in those same warehouses one year prior.

THE RUSH TO THE YUKON.

A Former Heppnerite Depicts Life on the Alaskan Frontier in a Manner that Will Impress those who have Klondike Blood in their Eyes.

DYER, ALASKA, Aug. 16, 1897.
Editor Gazette:—The people are pouring in at the rate of 3 or 4 hundred a day, some going by the Dyer trail and some by the Skagway trail. The Dyer trail is a hard rough mountain trail, and no person can conceive the hardships to encounter without having made a trip over. The white men and Indians pack everything on their backs, averaging about 100 pounds to the man, making the round trip in three days, for which they are paid at the rate of 30c per pound. This packing used to be done for 12 to 15 cents but the rush has sent it up and it is not at the top mark yet. The Skagway trail is not open at present but may be open any day now, as there are about 1500 men at work on it. Horses are used on the trail but about three trips settles each horse. Two or three thousand people are now on this trail, having been sent in by boomers of the trail, and it is safe to say that ninety five per cent will not see the Yukon river this year, for the crowd will most surely choke the path and everything will be chaos. On both trails people are turning back for they realize that they have undertaken more than they could accomplish. Outfits consisting of food, tools, clothing, etc., are being sold from ten to twenty-five cents on the dollar. I saw one outfit that cost $600 sell for $25. Money is very plentiful here and everybody knows how to charge. Some people seem to think they ought to be paid for answering a question. I cannot possibly give an idea of what these two trails are like, for they beggar description—can only liken them to a gigantic ant-hill.

For the information of my old friends in Heppner I would say, do not start for the Yukon this year but be here in March and go in on the ice, for it is the quickest, safest and cheapest. Do not go without $700 to $1000, or its equivalent in outfit and money, for every turn made costs money. Under the present condition of the two trails, by all means go by the Dyer trail, as it is twelve to fifteen miles the shortest, and 2500 to 3000 people have gone over it since last February, while as yet I have not seen a man who has taken a load over the Skagway. The Skagway trail has been a real estate boom but may eventually be made a good trail. It is not a trail now.

I saw a letter last night written June 25th to a friend, Mr. Heron, that confirmed the reports from Klondike, that they were packing gold dust on horses and that there are now over two million dollars worth of dust waiting to come on the boat.

For the man who succeeds there is untold wealth, but be very sure and consider what you have to contend with before you start.

Arrived in Heppner.

Mr. G. W. Phelps, of the Dalles, who has become Congressman Ellis' law partner since the departure of T. R. Lyons, who has gone to his post of duty as townsite commissioner at Juneau, Alaska, arrived in Heppner this morning. Mr. Phelps is quite an able young attorney and will be cordially welcomed to our midst by our citizens. The Dalles Times-Messenger of yesterday says: "Ex-City Recorder G. W. Phelps has been determined to seek 'pastures green' and selected as his headquarters the ranges of Heppner, his brother Ellis, appreciating his worth both as a member and officer of the lodge, will give him a farewell party, at K. of L. hall, tonight at 9 o'clock, to which all Ellis' and their ladies and a number of Mr. Phelps' most intimate friends are invited. 'Beet' leaves at 1 p. m. tomorrow morning, and the Ellis' will see to it that his suitcases are securely packed before he is permitted to separate from the herd.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Rober, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know.

THE POLITE ITALIANS.

Florence, the City of Well-Mannered Citizens.

If I wished to teach an awkward child, youth or girl good manners by example, I should send him or her to Florence, says a writer. There may be ill-mannered persons there, but I never saw one. Poor people behave with the same dignity which used in England to stamp the lady or gentleman. Most persons are brainy, but cleverness is not eager to shine. It is very subtle and more oily than corrosive. The charm of Florence steals on one like the wit of its clever inhabitants. The senses are soothed in all directions by harmonious manners and objects. Architects understood chiaro-scuro not less than the great painters and sculptors. One never wearies of the streets and public buildings; their aspects constantly and strongly vary, according to the course of the sun. Lights and shades at ten in the forenoon are wholly different from what they will be at four in the afternoon. The Florentine women have interesting, though not beautiful, faces. But one has only to walk into the market to see country girls who would have done for models of Raphael's Virgin-mothers. One is struck in the galleries with the nice judgment with which the pictures are hung. What more lofty in sentiment than the tomb of Lorenzo de Medici? Loftiness is an attribute of Florentine architecture, palatial or domestic. The doors of private houses might pass in England for portals. One feels them to be great facts in their way.

Talking of harmonious things reminds me of the Boboli Gardens. Is there a spot in England, the land of stately and lovely seats, that at all approaches them? In situation, and tranquility, generous loveliness, I can only think of one—the duke of Northumberland's terraced gardens at his place in Surrey. The Boboli Eden, where the prince and princess of Naples still court seclusion, has the advantage over the Surrey paradise of being under a revealing sky. Every shade of greenery, every floral hue is well brought out. One sees the faultless texture of statues and fountains mellowed by time. In so strong a light a well-ordered design is required, and one has it. The marble is the climax. They are to the horticultural beauties as brilliant to the lace-land satin of a fine woman's dress.

Florence is not what it was in the grand ducal days. Still, it retains the air of a capital with a long and illustrious history. The ladies' dresses are only provincial when measured by the Paris standard, to which Italian women above the peasant class generally submit—more the pity Paris fashions only suit French women, unless applied by French hairdressers and femmes de chambre. An English or a German face under a Paris hat or bonnet is at a dreadful disadvantage, if the hair has not been first dressed by a French artiste capillaire. He places the hat, in harmonious relation with the face. I fancy these French coiffeurs are not much employed by Italian ladies.—London Truth.

FUR IN COLD STORAGE.

Summer Attacks of Moths Prevented by Refrigeration.

In an article read before the National Warehousemen's association at Boston lately by Prof. Howard, a government entomologist, the subject of the preservation of furs by cold storage was treated, and public attention was called to this, one of the latest novel uses of artificial refrigeration. In a cold storage room the temperature can be raised or lowered at will. In some of the rooms, for instance, where it is desired to keep poultry for any length of time, the temperature is kept at the zero point. With the improved systems, the rooms are free from dampness, and for this reason can be utilized for an almost unlimited number of purposes. In the case of furs, the temperature of the room, if kept at 30 degrees, would make it impossible for any of the insects which get into and destroy this kind of goods, to live. Every housewife knows that moths do not breed in the winter time, and camphor balls and insect-destroying powders are made use of only in the summer months.

Already there is one large warehouse in New York city where furs are sent to be stored through the summer. It is a most satisfactory method, for the furs are kept free from the odor of camphor and other drugs and powders, the smell of which is disagreeable to many persons. Woolens and all other lines of goods which are subject to destruction by insects can be preserved in this way. Chocolate candy manufacturers use a cold storage room in which their candies are kept, and the candies are made in a room so cool that melting cannot retard the process of manufacture. In this way the output of the candy plant is largely increased. Soap factories, refineries, chemical works and a large line of other factories are coming to use the cold storage room.—N. Y. Tribune.

England Canada's Mother-in-Law.

That famous, or rather infamous, Parisian haunt, the Chat Noir, is a thing of the past. It was crowded with visitors during the last week of its existence, all anxious to be able to boast of having seen this notorious den. The proprietor sent President France a really pathetic appeal to grace the closing festivities with his presence.

Beware of the Knife.

Mr. Lincoln Nelson, of Marshfield, Mo., writes: "For six years I have been a sufferer from a scrofulous affection of the glands of my neck, and all efforts of physicians in Washington, D. C., Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis failed to reduce the enlargement. After six months' constant treatment here, my physician urged me to submit to a removal of the gland. At this critical moment a friend recommended S.S.S., and laying aside a deep-rooted prejudice against all patent medicines, I began its use. Before I had used one bottle the enlargement began to disappear, and now it is entirely gone, though I am not through with my second bottle yet. Had I only used your S.S.S. long ago, I would have escaped years of misery and saved over $50."

THE Flour that Makes the Best Bread.

The soft, fine white flour will not give as large an amount of muscle, bone or nerve-making food as the whole wheat flour, which constitutes in itself a complete life-sustainer. In selecting flour choose that which is dark in color and free from bran. The best bread flours in the market are of a yellowish-white tinge, rather granulated, and do not easily pack. They make a strong and elastic dough. Though not whole wheat flours they are decidedly the best of the flour brands. After selecting the flour the next important thing is to have a good, strong, sweet and pure yeast. The compressed cakes are good and convenient, and will do the work much more quickly than ten times the amount of home-made or baker's yeast. When setting bread to rise stand your bread-pan in another of warm water; cover the top so that the moisture will pass over the top of the dough at an even temperature of seventy-five degrees Fahrenheit.—Mrs. S. T. Rorer in September Ladies' Home Journal.
