Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite-gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man, I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. QUEEN VICTORIA'S BOSS.

She Had One in Mrs. Mussens, House keeper at Balmoral. Queen Victoria has just sustained a severe loss by the death of Mrs. Mussens, who, from time immemorial, lad been her housekeeper at Balmoral, says the London News. Though unknown to the public at large, she was an important personage in the eyes of everybody connected with the court, as she was one of the few who had the courage to "talk up" to her majesty, and even on occasion to deliberately "boss" her august mistress. Once when the queen wanted a certain maid to whom she had taken a fancy detailed to the care of her own room, Mrs. Mussens remonstrated in the strongest fashion, telling her majesty that it was quite out of order, and she really must hot spoil the servants by taking undue notice of them. The queen, as usual, gave away, and "dear Mrs. Mussens"
