

BABY'S SMOOTH, FAIR SKIN

A Grateful Mother Writes this Letter— Tells all about Her Troubles with Baby Broke out with Scrofula Sores. At the age of two months, my baby began to have sores break out on his right cheek. We used all the external applications that we could think or hear of, to no avail. The sores spread all over one side of his face. We consulted a physician and tried his medicine, and in a week the sores were gone. But to my surprise in two weeks more another scrofulous looking sore appeared on baby's arm. It grew worse and worse, and when he was three months old, I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. I also took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before the first bottle was finished, the sores were well and have never returned. He is now four years old, but he has never had any sign of those scrofulous sores since he was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, for which I feel very grateful. My boy owes his good health and smooth, fair skin to this great medicine. Mrs. S. S. WARDEN, Farmington, Delaware. Get only Hood's.

W. A. Goodwin drove from Rock Creek to Heppner, thirty miles, last Wednesday, from 4 o'clock to shortly after midnight, with his son Frankie, whom the doctors pronounce suffering from appendicitis. It was expected that the boy would be removed to Portland this evening for an operation, but owing to the failure of Dr. Swinburne to return on this morning's train, on whom Mr. Goodwin is waiting for advice, he will probably not be taken until Saturday. Mrs. Garnsey is procuring for the sick boy for inflammation of the bowels, and is making a decided, though it is thought, only temporary improvement.

Ole Olson jr. appeared at the opera house last night and there was not standing room. The seats were full, the aisles were full, and standing room was at a premium. At any rate a large crowd was present to see Ole A. E. Markham, as Ole is very good and kept the audience in an uproar all the time. The other characters were equally as good.—Hope Pioneer. Don't Invite Sickness

Which is better, to thoroughly cleanse and purify the blood just now, or make yourself liable to the many dangerous ailments which are so prevalent during summer? Impurities have been accumulating in the blood all winter, and right now is the time to get rid of them. A thorough course of Swift's Specific is needed to cleanse the blood and purify the system, toning up and strengthening it all over. Those who take this precaution now are comparatively safe all summer; but to neglect it is to invite some form of sickness which is so common during the trying hot season. It is now that a course of Swift's Specific will accomplish so much toward rendering the system capable of resisting the evil influences which are so liable to attack it during the summer when sickness is so abundant. It is the best tonic and system-builder on the market, because it is a real blood remedy and is made solely to search out and remove all impurities, and supply an abundance of pure, rich and red blood. S. S. S. is made exclusively of roots and herbs, and is Nature's own remedy. It is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no potash, mercury or other mineral. Be sure to get S. S. S. There is nothing half as good.

QUICK PROFITS.

A Boy's Improvement on the Usual Programme in Fairy Stories.

"Business" is the watchword of the day and the small boy is developing on that line with a rapidity which astonishes the previous generation. But the practical side of his nature has not obscured the poetry of childhood. The fairy tale, says the Washington Star, is as potent as ever, and there was a smile of pleasure on the face of the lad who remarked at breakfast:

"I had a beautiful dream last night. "What was it?" his father asked. "I thought I was out in the woods and I saw a most gorgeously dressed lady coming toward me. "That is a good deal like some of the stories that you have been reading. "Yes, it doesn't get very different until the end. I knew by her looks that she was the fairy queen, and I made up my mind that I wasn't going to lose chances like some of the boys in story books, who didn't know a good chance when they saw it."

"Did she offer you three wishes?" "Yes. And I called to mind how she sometimes took advantage of a mortal's being excited and nervous when he wished in order to make him waste his opportunities and have a good laugh at him. So when she said: "Little boy, I'll give you three wishes; I didn't jump at the chance. I said: "Will you give me whatever I ask for?" She answered: "Yes; you may have three wishes. "What did you do?" "I wished for four."

HAWKINS AND HIS DOG.

The Former's Presence of Mind Under Trying Circumstances.

Not long ago Mr. Justice Hawkins had a fox terrier named Jack. Once at Warwick Jack and his master were caught rattling by a farmer on the banks of the Avon. His lordship, no wise discontented, tendered a sovereign to cover the trespass, which the farmer, affronted by such a cool proceeding, refused with indignation, says London Tit-Bits.

"You had better take it," said the judge. "It's a reasonable offer." Then the farmer got so angry that Sir Henry announced himself: "And what is more, sir," said he, "you shall go with me to the Warwick Arms and crack a bottle of champagne with that sovereign immediately." The story adds that there was free rattling for Jack on that day and as long as he lived.

There are other stories about Jack, and it is said that when sitting on the bench with his master he once ventured to express his opinion on the matters before him in a singularly loud tone. The tale goes that Sir Henry, with the greatest promptitude, directed the ushers to "turn that dog out of the gallery." The ushers of course did not find a dog in the gallery, and nobody ventured to look under the bench.

On solemn occasions Jack was always attached to the judge's wrist by a long blue ribbon, and many a junior has been guilty of the tedious of a case by watching the ribbon gradually unroll as Jack pursued his investigations, while Sir Henry every now and then "hailed in the slack."

SAVED FROM DROWNING.

The Heroism of a Miller in Rescuing a Little Girl.

The brave work of a miller in rescuing a little girl from drowning is described by the Indianapolis Herald. The mill-owner and his wife, it appears, had gone to the city, leaving an eight-year-old girl at home. With other children she went down to the mill to play, and by some accident fell into the sluice which feeds the turbine wheel.

The head miller heard a scream, and not knowing what had happened, applied a brake and stopped the machinery. Then he ran out, found the little girl just disappearing under the water, and in he went after her.

Then he found himself in a hard place. The water was eight feet deep, and he was four feet below the top of the sluice, the sides of which were as smooth as a polished floor. The girl was unconscious. How was he to get her out?

It took out hand to hold her head above water, and the other to keep himself from sinking. He must try to throw her out, and this, by a great effort, he did. But the rebound drove him under water and against the wheel, where he was in great danger of being caught and held. He came up again, however, and now a new difficulty confronted him. How was he to get out himself? He sank to the bottom, gave an upward spring, and as he came up half-drowned, succeeded in catching the top of the sluice. Then, by the greatest exertions, he drew himself out.

The girl was still unconscious, but by vigorous measures was at last revived.
