SENATE AND HOUSE RESOLUTIONS.

The One Orders the Expulsion of Spanish from Cuba. The Other Favors Intervention and Establishment of a Republic.

IMMEDIATE ACTION MUST BE TAKEN.

Each House Draws Up a Minority Report Also--Naval and Military Forces are Placed at the Service of the President.

Washington, April 13.—The senate foreign relations committee has reported to the senate a resolution for immediate armed intervention in Cuba. Contrary to expectation, there was a minority report from the committee, recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba, signed by Foraker [rep.] and Morgan, Turpie, Mills and Daniels.

The following is the majority resolution, which was reported to the senate by Chairman Davis at the convening of the senate:

"Whereas, the abhorrent conditions which have existed for more than three years in the island of Cuba, so near our own borders, have shocked the moral sense of the people of the United States, have been a disgrace to Christian civilization, culminating as they have in the destruction of a United States battleship, with 266 of its officers and crew, while on a friendly visit to the harbor of Havana, and cannot longer be endured, as has been set forth by the president of the United States in his message to congress of April 11, 1898, upon which action of the congress was invited; be it resolved:

"That it is the duty of the government of the United States to demand, and the government of the United States does hereby demand, that the government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government of the island of Cuba, and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters.

"That the president of the United States be and he is hereby directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states to such an extent as may be necessary to carry this resolution into effect."

No demonstration occurred, either upon the floor or in the galleries during the reading of the report. The report made a deep impression. It is regarded as a powerful and almost bitter arraignment of Spain.

Turpie presented the report of the minority of the committee as follows:

"The undersigned members of the committee on foreign relations concur in the report made upon the Cuban resolutions, but we favor the immediate recognition of the republic of Cuba as organized in that island as a free, independent and sovereign power among the nations of the world."

Washington, April 13.—At 1:30 a majority of the house committee on foreign affairs agreed on the following joint resolution, which will be reported to the house this afternoon:

"Resolved, that the president is hereby authorized and directed to intervene at once to stop the war in Cuba, to the end and with the purpose of securing permanent peace and order there, and establishing by free action of the people there a suitable and independent government of their own in the island of Cuba; and the president is hereby authorized and empowered to use the land and naval forces of the United States to execute the purpose of this resolution."

The democratic members of the house foreign affairs committee, in a report signed by five democrats and Newlands [silver rep.], agreed on the following resolution as a substitute for a majority report:

"Resolved, that the United States government hereby recognizes the independence of the republic of Cuba.

"That, moved thereto by many considerations of humanity, of interest and of provocation, among which are the deliberate mooring of our battleship, the Maine, over a sub-marine mine and its destruction in the harbor of Havana, the president be and he is hereby directed to employ immediately the land and naval forces of the United States in aiding the republic of Cuba to maintain the independence hereby recognized.

"That the president of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to extend immediate relief to the starving Cubans."

Washington, April 13.—The majority report was made by Adams, at 3 p. m. There was great excitement in the house when the members ascertained that the report was ready. Expressions of approval were heard when it was known the resolutions were to be passed with little or no debate. The democratic members of the committee are inclined to accept the suggestion for a vote without debate. They believe it would strengthen the position of the United States.

Washington, April 13.—The house republican Cuban resolution will be passed today by special rule, allowing none or little debate.

Washington, April 13.—The senate will not act on the Cuban resolutions today. Conservative senators are urging delay.

Washington, April 13.—All the Cuban resolutions have gone over in the senate, but the talk on Cuba continues, nevertheless. Senator Lodge, in a speech declared that Lee had advised the foreign relations committee against recognition of the insurgent government.

Washington, April 13.—At 3:30 the speaker recognized Adams, acting chairman of the foreign affairs committee. He asked unanimous consent for consideration of the Cuban resolutions. Absolute silence prevailed as the resolutions were read. A thunderous outburst of applause from the floor and galleries greeted the report. Great excitement and confusion followed. Bailey objected to the consideration of the resolutions. Charges and counter-charges were bandied across the floor. A fist fight on the floor of the house almost followed. The speaker ordered the sergeant-at-arms to use the silver mace, the emblem of the house's authority. The men fought like they were mad.

"Liar," "soundrel," and other denunciations epithets were applied. Myers (dem. Ind.) and Pierson (rep. N. C.) almost came to blows. There were half a dozen personal collisions. At last Henderson (rep. Ia.) a one-legged veteran, standing in the jostling, fighting crowd, in clear, ringing tones called for order, reminding the members that it was a disgrace to the American congress. Men rushed up and down the aisles like madmen.

A few minutes later, after order was restored, Bailey and Quigg exchanged personalities. Excitement was at fever heat. Books were thrown, Bartlett, of Georgia, letting fly a heavy cloth-covered volume at Brumm, of Pennsylvania, which just grazed his head and spent itself in the aisle beyond where he sat. The trouble arose because of the objection made by Bailey to consider the resolutions without a proper understanding as to the length of time allowed to each side. Angry words were bandied back and forth between the members, each side charging that the other was trying to play politics, and all in a flash a collision between Myers and Pierson occurred in the left of the hall. There was an immediate rush in that direction, and in a moment the contestants were surrounded with fighting, scrambling members. The house was in such an ugly vicious temper that some members counseled adjournment until tomorrow, but the leaders declined.

"We'll put this resolution through tonight!" they declared.
At 3:45 p. m. Henderson brought in a special rule agreed to by the committee. No time is fixed for closing the debate in the rule agreed upon.

THE ELK'S BENEFIT.

A Big House Witnesses Miss Waldorf's Performance in the "Hunchback."

There were few vacant chairs on the lower floor of the Yo Semite last night when the curtain was lifted on the first act of "The Hunchback." The big house drawn by the Elk's benefit was a fitting testimonial of the regard in which the order is held.

The audience, while doubtless appreciative, was not so demonstrative as it should have been. Stockton does not often have the opportunity of witnessing such genius as was shown by the young lady who portrayed the leading role, and the critical coldness of the spectators was lamentably out of proportion to the glowing warmth and flashes of dramatic fire which came from the heroine. Applause came at irregular intervals, and what did come was seemingly forced out of them by the magnetic influence of the actress. This is not said with any intention to scold, but as proof of the ability of Miss Waldorf.

Miss Waldorf fulfilled all the promises so lavishly made in the notices which preceded her coming. She shows wonderful powers for one so young, and the writer, though not endowed with the gift of prophecy, ventures the prediction that those who saw the passionate, womanly and lovable Janet last night saw an artist who will some day rank as the best actress in legitimate drama on the American stage. This is a very sweeping assertion, but by her manner, her expression and her intelligent reading she gives ample material for such a vaticination. The cold artificiality that was so marked in the early period of Mary Anderson's career and followed her to the end of her dramatic life, is absent in Miss Waldorf. The deep, intense and magnetic force which gives Fanny Davenport the right to be called a great actress has been given to this young star, and she has all the daintiness, the feminine timidity and charming mannerisms that made Julia Marlowe the stage favorite she is today. And above all, she possesses the most valuable attribute of all that makes an actress, naturalness—the lack of which has been the rocky barrier that has prevented so many seekers for histrionic fame from reaching the coveted goal.

There are some things in Miss Waldorf's style that are displeasing, but as she will doubtless gloss them over in time it would be hypocritical to catalogue them here. One does not cast away the rose because of a single blemish on one of its petals nor despise the beautiful whiteness of the lily because a speck of soot had stained its cheek.

William McVey read the lines of Master Water with force and expression, and Mrs. Currier was pleasingly natural as Helen.

Upon the whole the performance was creditable, and the local Elks are to be congratulated for the excellence of the entertainment.—Stockton (Cal.) Mail.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and now I am well man. I know they saved my life and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at E. J. Stinson's drug store.

Died Very Suddenly.

W. R. Poppellwell, a resident of Portland, died at Fossil on Sunday night from an operation performed on the Friday previous for appendicitis. Mr. Poppellwell had been in Heppner a few days before the operation was performed and appeared the very picture of good health. He was a partner in the horse business of Mr. J. M. Kenney, now visiting at Heppner. Mr. Kenney was greatly shocked on receiving the sad news of Mr. Poppellwell's death. The remains of the young man were interred at Fossil on Monday.
