

A NEW DEPARTURE.

After one month's association with the Gazette, carefully considering the business interests of the paper, the new management deems it advisable to reduce the subscription price of the semi-weekly to one dollar and fifty cents per year, beginning with this issue, notwithstanding that in other portions of the country owing to the increased expense of publication, due to the combination of newspaper manufacturers who have increased the price of paper about 60 per cent, a reduction of expense, or an increase of subscription price has been resorted to. Not so with the Gazette. In thus reducing the price of subscription we expect to place this paper within the reach of every family in the county. No effort or expense will be spared in making it second to no semi-weekly in existence in the northwest. We have come here to stay and it is our ambition not only to enhance the business interests of Heppner merchants, but to zealously guard the taxpayers of the county. Believing that we are at the threshold of a period of prosperity we must unite in our efforts to place this county on a footing to which it is entitled. The payroll of the Gazette now amounts to $400 per month, the major portion of which is expended with the business men of this town. In order to continue the scale upon which the Gazette is issued we realize the necessity of the patronage of the business men of the community, to whom we present the largest subscription list of any paper in the county, and by our courteous treatment of the people and reduction of our subscription price we expect during the fall to increase our list one hundred fold.

THE Oregon state fair will be held at Salem from September 22d to the 30th, inclusive. The management promise a big success.

ALL along the O. R. & N. Co.'s line is an earnest discussion of a daily train in and out of Heppner during the daytime. Agitation will bring it. Let's keep it up.

THOSE who have concluded that advertising does not pay, should have had occasion to visit The Fair the day of its opening. The proprietor, knowing that he had the goods and prices to suit the public, simply made the announcement through the columns of local papers, and in return for his business effort had the satisfaction of reaping the reward to which he was entitled.

SHEEP VS. CATTLE.

From time immemorial has the Oregon sheepman been in a peck of trouble or in hot water. Rivers of blood have been shed in this state, arising from his quarrels for pasturage with farmers and stockmen. The sheepman, in his own heart, sincerely believes that he has been unjustly discriminated against, and therefore he has desperately fought for what he regarded as his natural right. Now another emergency presents itself which bodes no peaceful termination. The sheepraisers are clamoring for the entire Cascade reservation for a summer range, else, this year, the autumn must waste the mountains earlier than usual. There's no likelihood that the forestry department will favorably view this demand, and in that event the sheep will be driven to localities where they and their owners will be met with powder and lead. It is the selfsame story told. It is evident, judging from the situation on the Cascade reserve, that before the autumn leaves again bedeck the ground the life's fluid of sheepmen may also have saturated the soil of Eastern Oregon. It is true, some means should be devised for the safer protection of Oregon's sheep and wool industries, but not at the sacrifice of human life. The time is fast approaching when life and property shall be as safe in Eastern Oregon as they are in the metropolis of the state. The period for settling feuds between sheepmen, stock and cattlemen and ranchers with a shotgun is drawing to an early close. It may in a great measure drive the sheepman out of Oregon. If so, it will only prove that the stock and cattlemen is of greater benefit to us. Or, vice versa, it will be a case of the survival of the fittest. But at all events, Oregon has attained such fame for law and order and respectability among the states of this nation that she no longer will tolerate the settlement of clashing interests, however grievous, in a lawless manner.—Telegraph.

Personal.

W. J. Watsenburger was in town yesterday. T. R. Howard's family have gone to the mountains. Mr. L. Blumenthal went to the metropolis last night on business. Mr. Minor returned with his family to Ditch creek Sunday morning. Dr. J. E. Adkins, the well known dentist, arrived by this morning's train. Mrs. Judy Mitchell left on last night's train for a visit with her son Oscar, near Ione. Mrs. I. E. Barr went to Portland last night for a month's visit with friends and relatives. Joe Hays, who has been in Idaho selling blooded sheep, returned Saturday morning. W. J. Walsh, of Ellis, was in town Monday. He reports everything prosperous in his section.

H. P. Versulfe, land examiner for the N. P. railway company, is in town, arriving this morning. Miss Gertrude Donahue departed for Roy's village last evening, to visit a week or so with her many friends there. Chas. Royce, of Hardman, started for Portland last night with a load of fat cows for the Union Meat company. Tom Mathews brought in L. F. Prater and family yesterday, who have been visiting with his family two weeks past.

Messrs. H. W. and H. E. Bartholomew have gone to Sumpter to inspect their bands of sheep and will remain about ten days. W. E. Brock came in from Ditch creek Saturday, returning the next morning. He reports the camp experiencing all sorts of fun. Misses Eva and Jennie Bartholomew returned from Butter creek after a three weeks' visit. They report having had a most enjoyable time. Mrs. C. A. Rhea and son Carl went to the mountain camp with Mr. Brock Sunday morning, expecting to remain until the majority break camp.

Mr. M. E. Morgan of Sand Hollow, made us a pleasant call Saturday. They have about finished harvesting on his mother's place. The yield has been very satisfactory. Mrs. Cora Hart accompanied J. W. Morrow on his return to the Ditch creek camp Saturday night to remain until Tuesday, when she will return with Mr. W. E. Brock. Otis Patterson came up from The Dalles Sunday morning, remaining over until Monday night. In closing up his business affairs it will necessitate frequent trips for a while.

Mr. J. Allen, of Ione vicinity, was in Heppner yesterday. He has finished harvesting and is now cutting the second crop of alfalfa, which he claims is the best he has known for years. Miss Bertha Cate is in temporary charge of the icecream and confectionary department at Jimmy Hart's, during the absence of Clyde Willis, who is enjoying a vacation at Bingham Springs. Miss Gertrude Crawford, having in charge four of the children of the county clerk, started for Ditch creek this morning. The little ones were wild with delight in anticipation of joining their mother in the mountains. Jesse Stewart served his time at the Ditch creek camp, returning to business last Saturday. Jesse tells a very interesting tale of camp life. We feel certain that he in no way over estimates the extent of his brief season of enjoyment.

Herbert Bakewell, who has been living here for sometime, will leave Saturday for his old home in Nebraska. He will take in the fair at Omaha and will probably make his future home at Lincoln. He came in and left his name for a year's subscription to the Gazette. Mr. S. B. Smith, wife and boy arrived in Heppner on the Friday to visit Conductor H. M. Bryant and family. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mrs. Bryant. The visitors come from Iowa's best town, Sioux City, and are making a tour of the coast. They will remain here several days. County Clerk Crawford, accompanied by his wife and child, Mrs. Bartholomew and Will Salinger, drove to Ditch creek Saturday. They found a happy family in camp, and it was with reluctance that the two gentlemen bade their farewell Monday morning on their return to this city.

Mr. E. Minor left Friday night for Portland, expecting to take the outgoing steamer, B. D. Hume, which touches at Eureka on its south-bound journey, but from some unknown cause of delay, she was compelled to journey overland to San Francisco, where she will take the steamer from there to Eureka, and thence to Astoria, Humboldt county, for a six-weeks' visit with her parents.

A writer in the New York Sun describing the United States fleet in Quantanamo Bay says: "A little further up the bay lies the Oregon, the battleship wonder of two hemispheres. It makes one's heart jump proudly as one thinks of the record of her marvelous voyage from the Pacific coast, during all of which the secret hope of officers and crew was that they might encounter rather than avoid the Cape Verde fleet, it was the Oregon which brought the Cristobal Colon to terms, and made the Colon's captain, after he had surrendered, say, with a Spanish shrug and despairing gesture, 'To be chased by a battleship!' The Oregon is a monstrous floating fort, a huge bunch of guns and armor, the most powerful fighting ship afloat. She was not built for transoceanic voyages, but she has already made two, and is ready for the new one which she will make to Spain. She has not cost a cent in repairs since the war began, and officers and men have almost gone without fresh water to drink that they might not have to fill the ship's boilers from the salt sea. There is esprit de corps! It is no wonder that Commodore Watson has decided to transfer his flag to her. One also remembers in passing that the Oregon has taken part in four bombardments off Santiago and shelled Altara to protect the landing of Gen. Shafter's troops at Siboney. For other achievements there are holes in all of the four wrecks of Cervara's fine cruisers to tell the tale of the Oregon's activity and usefulness. They say that the crew and officers are rolling in gold, because no one has been ashore for months to spend his pay."

Big Prize for a Broken Heart. Not long since a Danyville, Ill., jury ordered the male defendant in a breach of promise case to pay the competent sum of $54,333.32 to the afflicted fair one. Though it is a pretty high estimate of blighted affection, there is another estimate which, if not in dollars and cents exactly as high, yet in general consideration of excellent reprobates as lofty as altitudo. This is the estimate of the people as to the efficacy of Howlett's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for constipation. The action of this gentle but effective laxative is never accompanied by the griping so marked in the operation of most cathartics. It is an incomparable remedy for and preventative of malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, and a promoter of appetite and sleep.

State News.

The hottest day Portland has experienced this season the thermometer reached 97 degrees. One man prostrated and is now killed at Pendleton and vicinity by the terrible heat on Sunday, July 27th. The salmon fishing season ends tomorrow. Fish Commissioner McGuire will once place a patrol on the river. John D. Henderson, of Hood River, swam the Columbia at that point last week, the distance being 1 1/2 miles. The feat was never before accomplished. Professor William Wann, who resigned the position as commercial teacher in the Ashland college to go as a volunteer, is dying in a Manila hospital of consumption. Hugo Von Der Helen was thrown into a threshing machine August 4th at Medford, Or., and had one of his legs torn off. The doctors amputated the leg, but the patient died today. Representative John W. McCulloch, of Marion county, is back on the new road law. He will propose a plan for using penitentiary convicts. This may be good for Marion county but of little advantage to Morrow. Judge Bollinger, of the U. S. district court, on August 6th, appointed Lawrence T. Harris, of Eugene, and John Burnett, of Corvallis, judges in bankruptcy. Frank S. Wadsworth, Antelope, and Geo. H. Cattanchi, of Canyon City, U. S. commissioners.

An optimist crazed Chinaman at La Grande Monday, in a dispute over a game of fan-tan, shot two of his countrymen, killing one and perhaps fatally wounding the other. He is in jail, and said, on being arrested, "One talked too much and I shot him in the eye." Wheat began selling August 5th at Pendleton and it is probable a considerable amount will find a market before many more days pass. F. W. Hendley, of the Western warehouse, bought 2000 bushels from Gustav Volmer for 35 cents a bushel, and 1000 sacks from Hugh McArthur, of Athena, the price of which is not known.

The John Day placers have been worked for years, and still give enormous amounts every year. John Strong, an old prospector, asserts that there will be plenty of good digging there for the next 50 years. The Chinese take out thousands of dollars monthly, which the mining world knows very little about. Some of the richest kind of float has been found, but no ledge of much promise has been located. Several dredging firms are preparing to conduct placer mining on an extensive scale.

D. H. Looney, president of the Oregon State Board of Agriculture, started his big 35-horse machine near Jefferson Wednesday. Last year he began August 5th, and during a run of thirty-five days shelled out 70,000 bushels of grain. This year he expects to shell at least 80,000 bushels. His crew consists of thirty-one men and he carries a dining car, a palace hay car from which the horses feed—and the entire train is drawn by the engine that runs the machine—but of this threshing outfit and others of its kind, both great and small, more anon as the harvest progresses.—Salem Sentinel.

Will Blevins and Frank Barr were arraigned before Justice J. D. Parker yesterday afternoon on the charge of stealing two horses and two saddles. The horses belong to Indian Umwit, an Indian policeman on the reservation. It is claimed the horses and saddles were stolen in Pendleton, and after the men had arrived at reservation the saddles were changed to two other horses and the first two returned loose, the latter two belonging to Umwit. The preliminary examination is set for this morning at 10 o'clock. Andrew Lewis and Albert Paine were summoned late yesterday evening as witnesses for the defendants.—Pendleton Tribune.

Another threshing machine exploded Thursday evening in Stago gulch, says the Pendleton Tribune. It was the property of W. Roberts. The cause was the same as that of the Morrison machine at Adams—smut in the wheat. The separator was not entirely consumed, but was disabled. The fire was extinguished with two tanks of water that happened to be near. The wind stacker and feeder were saved. The loss of the grain, and no insurance is reported. What was near the machine was prevented from taking fire. W. H. Jones telegraphed to Portland for a new machine for Mr. Roberts, which is expected here this evening.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

A Street-Corner Discussion as Overheard by the Reporter. A party of commercial travelers were seated in front of the Palace hotel a few evenings ago, and in the course of conversation the city of Heppner was pretty well discussed from many standpoints. "Gentlemen," said one of the number, as he knocked the ashes from a choice Havana, "you have probably heard that the grasshopper, as he sat on the fence of a wheat field, watching the waving grain which had nearly reached maturity: "In this wheat, bye and bye, In this wheat, we shall eat, bye and bye. In this wheat, bye and bye, In this wheat, we shall eat, bye and bye. Well, continued the speaker, "that is about the way Heppner is looked upon by the outside world. Among commercial men it is known as one of the most prosperous cities of its size in the entire Northwest. The grasshopper's size applies, of course, especially to the large number of insurance men, book and picture, agricultural implement, hardware, book and stationery stores, and other agents too numerous to mention, who have their eye on this place for all working. The town, however, I am told, has full of them for the past few months, and they all claim to have done a good business. You can depend upon it that when these parasites invade a section of country, its usual talk of prosperity is not chimerical. But coming down to the solid commercial basis of the city, and there is not a better known town, or one rating higher in the financial scales than this. Take that bank over there, for instance, and where will you find a more solid institution in any other part of the Northwest? Think of a bank in a town of 1,500 people with deposits of one-third of a million dollars! Why, I was down in Wyoming, only a short time ago, and even there I heard the First National Bank of Heppner referred to as one of the most solid and best managed banks of any in the country. And a bank to any community is a fair index of its commercial standing. "The only thing the town needs," remarked a dyspeptic member of the party, who is apparently more satisfied with anything, "is a few more substantial, handsome brick buildings. There is sufficient business transacted in this town to warrant their erection. It may not be generally known, but it is a fact, that one mercantile house here does a business of over $100,000 a year, and there are several that reach the $50,000 mark. "Well, gentlemen," suggested the joker of the party, "nature sometimes supplies the opportunity for filling a long felt want. For instance, look at Spokane before and after the fire. "Stranger," broke in an old-timer, "did it ever occur to you that Heppner sprang up from practically nothing, and that we are credited in this town as nearly all been made here from natural products? We have in this place several men who came here with nothing more than a small band of sheep or a few head of cattle, who today are worth, some of them, nearly half a million dollars, and many more from $50,000 upwards. We are proud of these men, and were proud of the little city we live in. It is a self-made city, of self-made men. We have all the conveniences of a modern city, electric lights, good city water, good schools and good municipal government. "Yes, Heppner is all right," said the wag-logger. "The atmosphere is packed with wealth, and this point will ship more in the next few weeks than any other point in Eastern Oregon. It is estimated that from the sales of wheat, sheep, cattle and wheat, the county will increase her wealth by at least $1,000,000 this fall. I think 'General Prosperity' did not exaggerate when he said that the town of Heppner will be the largest business place here ever known."

Hood's Pills. Are much in little; always ready, efficient, satisfactory; prevent a cold or fever; cure all liver ills, sick headache, indigestion, constipation, etc. Price 25 cents. The only Pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A BUDGET FROM DITCH CREEK.

Some Sixty-Five or Seventy People at That Resort. A friend of the Gazette's spent Saturday and Sunday up at the famous Ditch Creek camp. He reports that being prevailed upon has consented to give this paper a few items picked up while there which we trust may prove of interest.

A large number of Heppnerites are very comfortably located at this camping ground, among whom we might mention the following: Senator Morrow and family, Judge Dutton and wife and Grandma Hallock, with whom are the two daughters of H. H. Hallock, of Pendleton and Master Willie Dutton, E. Minor and family, Arthur Minor and family, Oscar Minor and family and Miss Lena Behm, the families of Dr. P. B. McSwain and H. W. Bartholomew, Mrs. F. K. Bartholomew and daughter, W. E. Brock and family, C. A. Rhea and family, Dr. E. H. Hunlock and family, D. A. Mcatee and family, Mr. Lovey and family, J. H. Richardson and wife and Ralph Swinbourne, the families of J. P. Rhea and Oscar Mitchell, and others. The Misses Julia and Cora Hart are camping with the McSwains and Bartholomew crowd, while Masters Percy and Will Hughes and Ralph Bishop are camped-off by themselves and doing the bachelor act to perfection. Jay Shipley and family had been in the camp for a couple of weeks or more, but were compelled to return home on Sunday evening owing to the serious illness of Mrs. Shipley. Mrs. Shipley was very sick while in camp but was tenderly ministered to by the different ladies and her every want was looked after in the best manner possible.

According to the fashion of the camp, and fashion is everything you know, blouses, bloomers and short skirts for the girls, young ladies and "old" ladies are the prevailing costume. It is not to your reporter that the costumes alone mentioned are the proper thing for mountain wear. He does not claim to be an authority on "dresology" but this fashion struck him as being just the thing for reasons too numerous to mention.

Hunting and fishing has been quite good, so say those who are interested in this kind of sport. However, it is not to your reporter that just how much or what kinds of game is being "bagged" the most. He never was a hand at telling bear and fish stories anyway. However, the most of the game seemed to come from Dave Herrier's sheep camp, which is near at hand and furnishes many a fat mutton for the campers. Just before leaving your reporter noticed some kind of a four footed animal hanging up between two trees near Minor villa. How it came there is hard to say, but Art Minor can doubtless tell something about it when he returns to town.

Mr. Irwin, of Minor & Co., spent the past week at the camp with his wife and baby, returning home on Sunday. Joe Stewart was there, too, for ten days, but had to return to town and business cares, much as he regretted to do so. He undoubtedly had a splendid time, and some of those he left behind have been shedding scalding tears of regret and loneliness by the tub full. Jess was a favorite and very kindly treated while at Ditch Creek, so say the campers.

Wilson Brock came down to town Saturday and returned on Sunday morning accompanied by Mrs. C. A. Rhea, who will remain in the mountains for two or three weeks. Hunlocks and Mcatees are a nice camp and are enjoying their outing immensely. Dave is one of the "kids" and is to be found every evening playing deep, the handkerchief and hide-and-seek with the children who appear to enjoy his company very much. Doc is the story teller of the camp and amuses the youngsters nearly every evening with a good tale of travel and adventure taken from his own experience. He is said to possess wonderful imaginary powers, and this, coupled with his great flow of language, makes him particularly adapted to this line of work. Doc is a good berry picker, too, and catches some fish, and is a vital thing handy man about camp.

The little son of Senator Morrow is greatly improved in health, much to the joy of his parents, and they are hopeful that the good water and the little son's vitality will restore him to perfect health, and all those about camp share with them this wish. Grandma Hallock, also, is enjoying better health than for years, the light, pure air of the mountains being very beneficial to her. She rides horseback, picks berries, takes plenty of exercise, keeps good nights and awakes in the morning feeling greatly refreshed and invigorated. Mr. E. Minor is improved somewhat in health since locating on the creek, and will doubtless return to town greatly invigorated. He has been able most of the time to teach large numbers of trout and perch to divide up in this practical sport.

Mrs. Dr. McSwain was feeling very much dejected and cast down in spirits, because of the loss of her fair hair, which she said had been baked in a huckleberry pie and devoured by the hungry crowd which surrounds her table about three times a day. This is what she said, and it could almost be believed when it was noticed how vigorous she seemed to be in the apartment of the above-cited crowd. It was something terrible to behold, and the way she appears at that camp is a caution, and it is not to be wondered at that Mrs. McSwain accuses them of devouring her fair hair, thus depriving her of the extreme pleasure of "fixing up" when company comes. She would not feel so bad about it, but she says Mrs. W. Bartholomew hasn't enough to divide up with her, and further more is not disposed to do so. However, "with all their 'fair' we love em still."

Withal, the campers at Ditch Creek are having a huge old time and making the most of their leisure, and the desire hopes to make further good report from that locality.
