Annexation Probable ---- Philippiners are Willing to Enforce the Annexation With Arms----Spaniards Guard the Wreck of the Maine

Washington, Aug. 30.—Private letters from our consuls abroad ndicates that the Philippines must be retained if the United States there for that purpose, and it was nothing short desires to maintain its position in the world of nations. A very promnent officer in the consular service writes:

"You people may as well make up your minds to be somebody or ample should be made of those responsible.

These reports show that our people abroad feel that they must do dealt with except by congress. The persons re something to maintain their position. If, after such a successful war as has been fought and won, we should sacrifice everything that we have secured, nations abroad would have very little respect for us. Our consuls not only write in favor of the retention of Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, but are also anxious that the Nicaragua canal should be built, and that a navy commensurate with the development of the country should be built and maintained.

As to the sentiment of congress and of the people, it seems to be going all one way. If Dewey had not won the great victory of May 1st the war with Spain. More than one-half of this at Manila, congress never would have passed the resolution annexing section of law providing for the payment of a the Hawaiian islands. At least, it could not have been put through at in action. The result will be turned into the last session of congress. The people who voted for Hawaii, who the treasury for distribution by the courts. had been opposed to it heretofore, did so because they believed the which shall pass upon vessels of the enemy Philippines were to be ours after Dewey's victory. IS MONSTROUS.

Sherman's Opinion of the Conduct of the Wa Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.-The interview with John Sherman, charging neglect and mismanagement upon the war department, created no end of sensation in Washington and added largely to the interest with which war department matters are interested. Many persons doubted that the venerable statesman had been properly reported, but to inquirers he confirmed accuracy of the statements attributed to him. To another interviewer he reiterated some of the criticisms, and, speaking with deep feeling of what he termed "monstrous mismanagement" adding:

"I don't see how there can be any mistake or misrepresentation as to the condition of affairs among our soldiers in Santiago or in the camps The officials' reports, the statements of respon sible officers and of the men who suffered in that campaign are all to the same effect, that careful attention to business entrusted to him, there were horrible suffering and great loss of life resulting from inadquate provision for the care of the sick and wounded, and that suitable food was not provided for those whose condition of health would not admit of their eating army rations. They were short of medicines and suitable food and did not have surgeons enough to perform the services which the condition of the army demanded. We have fully authenticated and undisputed accounts of the wounded lying in the wet grass and awaiting their turn while a single surgeon endeavored as best he could to attend to the wounds of several hundred men. The less severely wounded declined treatment that those in more serious condition might be more quickly cared for cannot undertake to say what individual authority is responsible, but the facts themselves are monstrous, and whether the fault lies with officers in the field, those in the department, or the secretary of war himself, the responsibility should be fixed and the person responsible should be severely punished. It was known that there was to be a battle; our army was sent of criminal to neglect those necessary preparations for the care of the wounded and sick, and to provide for the sustenance of the army. An vestigation should be had at once, and an ex-The president might order an investigation, but I doubt whether the matter can be adequately sponsible should be impeached, and congress alone has the power of impeachment."

Yellow Jacket Remedy.

At this season of the year a few suggestions relative to the yellow jacket pest might be of senefit to those engaged in the fruit growing earth and sallies forth in search of subsistence, consuming fruits on the tree or vine, as well as meat of all kinds. In many localities they exist m such quantities as to cause material loss to the fruit dryer. Now these colonies are readily exterminated at very small expense and trouble. The writer some years since had oceasion to use large quantities of minced meat for the purpose of feeding fish at the Lenni fish propagating works. The yellow jackets became such a pest that the workmen could hardly pick up anything without being stung by them, Finally a plan for the destruction of the pests was devised which was emmently successful in the district. The method adopted was as follows: Comnon nail kegs with both ends knocked out were thoroughly tarred with pine tar on the inside; a shingle was then placed across the bilge inside, about the middle of the keg, upon which a handful of chopped meat was placed. The yellow jackets awarmed in to cat the meat and whenever they came to contact with the tarred surface they stuck fast and perished. Thus in the course of a short time all fell vietime to their voracious appetites and the pest was abated.

The same appliance was then tested in an adoining drehard where the proprietor was drying peaches and prunes. The meat seemed to be preferred to the fruit and was apparently liscovered by scent, The result was almost satisfactory and the entire colonies of yellow jackets were exterminated, greatly to the profit and satisfaction of the fruit dryer -Alfred V. LaMotte in California Fruit Grower.

PRAZIER WRITES THOMPSON.

He liefuses to Leave the Sulky and Wins the Race in a Jog. Pendleton Republican.

In a letter dated August 21st, Frank Fenzier writes to Thomas Thompson from Buffalo, N. Y., in which he says:

"We leave for Glen's Falls at once. 1 can only briefly refer to the last race. I lost the first and second hests, and then had a lively time with the judges. They were going to take me out of the sulky. and called for a driver. I told them I would not go. I would drive Jap or he would not go. They could rule me off, but no driver could drive him when I was out to win. The third heat I went to the three-quarter pole in 1:32, slowed up and logged home in 2:07 4, and took the two heats in 2:06. They are all Jap is doing better, and I will be able soon to show some hot heats when I am ready, if he keeps right. Some of them think he can go in two minutes now.
