A LITTLE SUFFERER

Face, Hands and Arms Covered With Scrofulous Humors—How a Cure Was Effected.

"When five years old my little boy had scrofula on his face, hands and arms. It was worst on his chin, although the sores on his cheeks and hands were very bad. It appeared in the form of red pimples which would fester, break open and run and then scab over. After disappearing they would break out again. They caused intense itching and the little sufferer had to be watched continually to keep him from scratching the sores. We became greatly alarmed at his condition. My wife's mother had had scrofula and the only medicine which had helped her was Hood's Sarsaparilla. We decided to give it to our boy and we noted an improvement in his case very soon. After giving him four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla the humor had all been driven out of his blood and it has never since returned."

WILLIAM BARTZ, 416 South Williams St., South Bend, Indiana.

HYPNOTIC INFLUENCE.

Prominent Society Ladies Put the Professor To a Test.

Comments and disclosures of Saturday's matinee for ladies only is strictly forbidden, but in the evening we were admitted. Unfortunately, as a stranger we are unable to make special personal mentions. But taken as a whole, the ladies' class were fine subjects, and the ease in which the professor brought them under his magic spell induces the belief that they were decidedly willing. As they nodded off into dream land the realistic picture of "sleeping beauties" was most impressive. A wield of the "wand" transformed the scene into one of the liveliest scratching "bees" imaginable, and when the alarm of "a mouse" was sounded such gymnastic performances were never witnessed by a Heppner audience. Conspicuous in the front rows was the absence of "bald-heads" as the seats were taken early in the evening by the draper young men, who were in anticipation of the event of the imaginary excursion of lovely boys, who were in suspense waiting an affectionate reception, practiced on them the previous evening. The professor's oversight in that instance left him the possibility of a fall house should he again return. As we have local talent in that line, that part of the program will be rehearsed later on.

Postoffice Changed.

Sunday morning had a genuine surprise in store for the majority of our residents, when they repaired to the former postoffice site, to find that it had "taken wings," between the hours of early morning and the time they reached there. Its trail was followed to the building adjacent to P. C. Thompson Co's, which has been undergoing repairs for several days. At the time of going to press the town has become reconciled to the change, and the billing annoyance of going little further on this end to us is offset by the pleasure of the fellows on the other end, so we are satisfied to be "game" and concede our loss as their gain. The new room is quite inviting and most satisfactory to the postmaster and the public in general.

Will be Hanged Dec. 23d.

Claude Branton, the Lane county murderer, has been sentenced to be hanged just one week after the date fixed for the execution of M. T. McGrath, the murderer of Charles Turner, in this county. At Eugene Tuesday Branton was sentenced to be hanged on Friday, December 23, at 10 a.m. His attorneys filed a motion for a new trial on various grounds—errors made in trial, and the judge's instructions to the jury. Judge Hamilton overruled it, and then in a few words passed sentence upon Branton who remained perfectly calm. When asked if he had any thing to say why sentence should not be passed upon him he replied in a clear and steady voice: "I have nothing to say."
