One thousand school children paraded at Oregon City on Memorial day.

Pendleton's new postoffice building is nearing completion, and will be a credit to the city.

The speed program of Oregon state is fairly popular for 12 races. The purses aggregate $500. John H. Clifford, an early settler on the Pacific coast, for nineteen years a citizen of Umatilla county, and the founder of the town of Alba, died May 23rd.

Mrs. Barrett, wife of the pastor of the Free Methodist church, at Salem, fell from a carriage and broke her arm. In attempting to alight, her clothing caught and she fell to the pavement.

Wednesday, near the Dalles, Charles Ross, brakeman on a work train, slipped and fell from a car loaded with gravel, under the wheels, losing the left foot, the limb being crushed to a jelly between the axle and knee.

Wool men continue to feel encouraged about the prospect of good prices this season, and are refusing offers of 12 cents for choice clips. However, they should not feel too independent, and refuse fair prices for their product. There may be a repetition of last year's experience.—Times-Mountaineer.

Attorney General Blackburn has rendered an opinion that the state is not liable for the claim of $500 alleged to be due P. J. Maher and F. J. Kelly for the arrest and conviction of George Jackson and Charles Williams, the two men who robbed an O. R. & N. train in Portland in 1907, as a consequence of which both the latter are serving long sentences in the state penitentiary.

Mrs. Dora Lynn Marsh, wife of Representative G. W. Marsh, of Centerville, six miles northwest of Hillsboro, Washington county, left her home Thursday morning, and has not been seen since. Mrs. Marsh is about 35 years of age, is of medium height, and weighs about 120 pounds. She is of light complexion, has rather large blue eyes, and is of rather striking appearance. She left home some time during the night, and her husband next morning found a note stating she was going to Moscow, Idaho.

In Portland, on May 25, James Neil Greaham, a young man from La Grande, Ore., shot himself through the heart at the Perkins hotel. He was a nephew of the late Walter Q. Greaham, Cleveland's secretary of state, and nephew of Ex-Governor Taylor of Tennessee. The young man was in the custody of Deputy Sheriff McLaughlin, of Union county, who had come to Portland to take him back to La Grande. The warrant upon which Greaham had been arrested was based on a complaint of the cashier of the La Grande bank, charging him with having obtained money in the bank's name, without authority.

The East Oregonian says: Farmers from south of Pendleton complain that the Russian thistle is gaining great headway, and that unless the new law recently passed is enforced, the thistle will become terribly annoying. The region south of Pendleton brings in the oldest complaints, and those who live there want something done by someone to eradicate the evil. They do not know just who is responsible for the law's enforcement, but they know there is now a law, and that it should be enforced. If any one knows upon whom falls this duty, the farmers will thank him to let it be known publicly, and then they will take steps to have the people punished who do not comply with the law's provisions.

Wednesday night, while the cattle train was switching, it crushed a gentleman by the name of R. A. Jones. It seems that he had imbibed too freely, and laid under the cattle car and went to sleep. When the stock train got ready to make up and pull out, which was about midnight, it hooked onto the car Jones was using as a protection, and started with it when the conductor, who happened to be on the car, heard him yell, when the train was stopped, not until it had rolled and crushed him to considerable. Mr. Jones was cut and injured internally. Dr. Kriedy was called and sewed up the cuts, which were on his legs and he was conveyed to the Grand Hotel, where he is resting easy and the chances for his recovery are good. Arlington Advocate.

The killing of Jones at Antelope by Spicer was remarkably strange in one respect. Jones was armed with a double barreled shot gun and Spicer with a 22-caliber rifle. When Spicer shot, Jones fell forward on his face still clutching his gun which was cocked. On examination of the body of Jones his left eye was found closed and the right eye open as in the case when a person takes aim in shooting. The bullet had severed the sortia just above the heart and penetrated the spinal marrow producing paralysis of the entire body and death so instantaneously that not even the muscles of the eye contracted sufficiently to close the one or open the other. Such a condition would not arise once in a thousand times.—Crocket County Journal.

WOOL GROWERS
Should Sell for Cash and Not Consign Their Product.

From past experience it has been demonstrated that the wool grower does much better when he sells his wool at home than he does by shipping it on to consign to the big wool concerns of the East, there to be handled and re-handled by the commission man, and with each and every handling there is a bill of expense attached. By the accumulation of vast quantities of wool in one place, buyers and manufacturers take advantage of the situation and bear the price, on the ground that there is more wool in sight than they know what to do with, and more coming.

The wool growers by using common sense judgment, and business foresight can, to a large degree, control the market. If wool is low, it would be advisable to sell just enough to pay current expenses, and get the cash for it. In this way every man knows just where he stands. He either has his product or money.

By sending his wool to others to handle, the grower neither has his product or money, and is finally compelled to take what he can get, less freight, warehouse charges, insurance, commission, etc., which generally leaves him a very low figure.

And again; the wool grower has the advantage of knowing the condition of the market if he has the clip in his own hands, which he does not when it is in the hands of others.

The time is now at hand when this year's clip will be ready for market. Again we would say, don't be induced by some oily-tongued agent to ship to some promised market of which you know nothing. Sell for cash, and for all you can get, and always look for the top figure.—Rural Spirit.

WEATHER AND CROP BULLETIN.

Warmer weather and less rain will make a marked change for the better in the condition and appearance of all vegetation.

EASTERN OREGON
Weather.—The mean temperature for the week, 56 degrees, is 6 degrees higher than for the preceding week and the same as it was for the corresponding week last year. In the Columbia river valley the maximum temperatures ranged from 62 to 80 degrees and the minimum from 42 to 56 degrees; over the plateau region the temperature was 8 degrees lower. Rain fell on Tuesday, Friday and Sunday, in amounts from .68 to .92 of an inch. There was an absence of frost, except on the more elevated plateaus.

Crops, Columbia River Valley.—The warmer weather has been of great benefit to all crops. The warmer rains on Wednesday were especially valuable. While the acreage of grain is not as large as it was last year, yet the crop is in better condition than usual. Unless unexpected conditions occur, the grain crop will be excellent. The ground is well soaked, the grain has stood well and it now has a good stand. Spring grain is about four inches high. Working summer fallow continues; in some sections it is about completed. The grain prospects are much above the average in Morrow county. The fruit prospects have not changed; they continue to be fair; it is not expected that there will be an average crop in any section. The probable apple crop in Hood river valley cannot now be determined, but it will not be an average. The shipment of strawberries has commenced, a larger crop than usual is expected. Cherries are ripening, early potatoes will be suitable for market within a week. The hay crop will be heavy. Rye hay is now being out.

Crops, Plateau Region.—The warmer weather was of great benefit to all vegetation. Fruit trees are coming into bloom. Spring seeding is being pushed to completion. The grain and grass prospects are excellent. Fruit is not yet far enough advanced for an opinion to be formed as to the prospects. Stock has improved rapidly and range food is now good. Shearing was suspended, owing to the cold weather, but it has been resumed again. The reports indicate favorable conditions for the crops of the year.

The warmer weather caused the snow to melt on the lower levels, and a rise in the rivers resulted. None of the rivers have yet reached the danger stage.

There are no conditions now present to indicate a change to settled or reasonable weather, hence a continuation of current weather conditions, for several days at least, must be expected.

UMATILLA HOTEL BURNED.
Henry Means suffers loss on the building, and Mrs. Congdon on contents.

The Klondike Hotel, at Umatilla, burned May 23d, the loss on building and contents being complete. Nothing was saved, and the occupants escaped barely with their lives. Henry Means owned the building, on which he had $850 insurance, and part of the contents, on which the insurance was $250. Mrs. Congdon owned the remainder of the contents and had $1000 insurance. Mrs. Congdon conducted the hotel.

The insurance was written by John M. Bentley, of Pendleton, agent, and was in the Tharinga and Achen-Munich companies.

A lamp exploded at about 9 o'clock in the evening, and in a few moments the house was in a sheet of flames, and burned very quickly with all the contents.

Mr. Means had a hotel burned on the site of this one about two and a half years ago, and rebuilt this one at a cost of $1600. The insurance will not cover the loss on house and contents.—East Oregonian.
