A SKETCH BY DAVENPORT.

The Famous Caricaturist Tells of the Organization of the Silverton Brass Fand.

You may talk about Sousa's band and of the music produced by the string music of Edward Strauss, but nothing in the world in the instrumental line can ever touch my heart with the emphasis with which the old Silverton town band touched it, writes Homer Davenport in the New York Journal. Silverton is the place in Oregon that produced me. It is the place where I first learned to set a hen. It was on a barn door in that locality that I did my first drawing.

One Sunday evening in summer the Silverton band was playing what it thought was a waltz. Two-thirds of the teams within hearing distance broke their halter ropes and scooted for the offing when they heard it. The older heads of the city were leaning against walls and around the postoffice, discussing whether, after all, music was an educating influence. The general impression seemed to be that it was, inasmuch as it was one kind of art.

After the band had played itself out the older men slapped their hands with glee, and resolved themselves into a meeting, at which they decided to help the band by subscribing $30 or $40 to buy new uniforms for the players. An order was sent to Chicago for an outfit of second-hand costumes.

Silverton didn't have anything else to do for the next few days but to gather at the depot and see the uniforms arrive. It was during the harvest season, and the fellow who walloped the snare drum was reputably employed at the same time cutting bands with my uncle's threshing machine five miles out in the Waldo hills. But he did mighty little work, for he was wondering all the time how he would look in gold lace and a cocked hat, or whatever it was to be.

Well, the uniforms came, and the scene around the freight house was the most exciting Silverton ever saw. All the band boys were on hand to put them on except me. I had gone fishing.

It was not till the sun had gone to rest that I learned that the second-hand clothes had arrived. I forgot all about fishing. With a whoop I started for the town leaving my line in the water, where it is yet, no doubt, for they are honest folk in Silverton.

It was a five-mile run to the local metroplis. When I got there the band was rigged out, and the only suit left was one built for a man half my height and twice my width, in other words, for a musician who was short and fat.

I tried it on over my cloths, doing my dressing right there in the streets, so anxious was I to look like a musician.

The crowd patriotically helped me. I was six feet tall, then and weighed 110 pounds, and my uniform was meant for a person four feet high, weighing 400 pounds.

What did that matter to me? It was the first uniform I had ever worn, and I vowed it fitted me as well as if I had been melted and poured into it, though the coat tails reached down and used what calves I had to rest upon. The bottom of the trousers did not need turning up in case of a sudden shower, for they reached to just below my knees. Little things like that, however, made no difference to a Silverton musician; as long as the cap fitted the uniform would do.

The band grew in prosperity from that moment. We were still awkard, and none of us could play but we should have won the championship of anywhere merely on our shapes. Some of us actually got married on the strength of our uniforms, who would have remained bachelors if we had kept to civilian dress.

"Tom" Richies, who now keeps the postoffice and takes in washing at Silverton, was the man who beat the base drum. I had to hit the small one. We both played by ear, and we didn't have to keep our eyes on any music. Though our ears were not always in focus, there was no dearth of sound, such as it was.

People hired the band for picnics. One day a man chartered us to go to the mountains. There was no band wagon, so he rigged up a hay rack drawn by four horses, with squirel-tail bundles. We got to the scene four hours late, and the row we made created a panic among the horses, who ran off, taking with them the small trees to which they had been tied. Wagons were capteized and much damage was done, showing the moving effects of music. No one cared. It was the first time a band had ever appeared in that neck of the woods, and the farmers were pleased enough, even if they did lose a little harness and a few old plugs.

It was part of our training to preserve a dignified reserve, even under the most exciting circumstances. We charged high, and we had to look the part.

One of our rules was not to mix in outside conversation and never to let any outsider hold our drums or trombones. On this occasion we formed in twos and walked solemnly to the speaker's stand. We were so absorbed in our work that when rounding a curve in front of the stand the cornet player, who was making a difficult run from the book, ran smack against a fir tree a foot in diameter. He fell, the next two men fell over him. The cornetist's horn closed up like an opera hat, and the humiliation I suffered then can never be appreciated by any but myself.

The farmers gathered up the pieces of the horn, but our music for the balance of the day was chiefly bass solos, with the bass drum as leader.

The rector has just grounds to feel proud of his success for the past sixteen years, and his parish has reason to feel proud of their rector who is held in high esteem by all classes.

GRANT COUNTY NEWS.

Blue Mountain Eagle.

Long Creek is making preparations for a great Fourth of July celebration.

Samuel Durkheimer, of the mercantile firm of Durkheimer Bros, of Prairie City, was married recently in Portland to Miss Elsa Swatzchild.

On Tuesday the first freight team of the season arrived from Heppner. It was loaded with groceries, shoes, tobacco, etc., for Brown & Simpson.

Supervisor Harryman has expended the money contributed by business men of Long Creek and the county court of Grant county for the repair of the Long Creek-Susanville road, and has a good road in the neighborhood of Slide creek.

If reports are true, and we doubt them not, the country in the immediate vicinity of Canyon City will experience one of the most prosperous years of its history. Mines are being developed in a workmanlike manner, new locations are being made, and like the old man's dog, good times are bound to come back.

People who contemplate coming to Grant county to spend the summer prospecting should defer their trip for a few weeks, since the high mountains are yet covered with snow. The present high water, combined with snow and mires in the mountains, would be a serious impediment if prospecting was undertaken at the present time.

GRANT COUNTY PLACER MINES.

Sloan & Haskell Drifting in Ground Sown With Nuggets.

Mr. William Griffin arrived in Baker City yesterday from Sumpter and last evening gave some interesting information to a Democrat representative regarding a tour he had just made in the gold fields, especially of a visit to the famous Elk creek placer mines, owned by the Badger Mining Company and by Messrs. Sloan & Haskell, of this city, where the latter is investing gold unearthed from Grant county's gold fields in the erection of substantial and costly brick structures.

While at Elk creek Mr. Griffin saw a single pan of earth washed out which yielded $85 worth of gold nuggets. He also saw one nugget unearthed which is worth $60.

The above yellow stuff was taken right out of a bank in which drifting is being prospected. This ground, which, it would appear, is literally sown with chunks of pure gold, was reserved by Sloan & Haskell when they sold to the Badger Mining Company the old placers, which have yielded many thousands of dollars and are probably the richest diggings in the west.

The rich reserved ground is being vigorously opened up and gives abundant promise of being even richer than the old placers.—Democrat.

In olden times a leper was stoned out of town; in modern times a sick man is stoned out of all his chances in life by the crowd of busy, hustling men who have no place and no use for him. A man who has bilious turns and tired feelings and frequent "off-days" might as well go out of business.

These things are bad enough in the self-disgust and wretchedness they involve if they do not go any further. But you never know what is going to develop in a half-nourished, bile-poisoned constitution. If a man as soon as he feels that he is not getting the forceful strength and energy out of his food that he ought to, will begin taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, he will soon put himself in the position where he can do a man's work easily and cheerfully.

His appetite will be sharpened; his liver invigorated; his digestion strengthened; an edge put on his whole nutritive organism. Those subtle poisons which debilitate the entire organism and invite consumption and a host of other diseases, will be driven out of the system; and he will gain plenty of pure nourishing red blood, muscle-power and nerve-force. In short he will be a man among men.

There are hundreds of delusive temporary stimulants, "malt extracts," sarsaparillas and compounds, which are more or less "boomed" by merely profit-seeking druggists; but an honest druggist will give you the "Golden Medical Discovery" when you ask for it. If well-informed, he knows that its sales have steadily increased for thirty years and that it is the invention of an educated, authorized physician who has devoted a life-time of active practice and profound study to chronic diseases.

Railroad Rumors.

W. J. Mariner and J. A. Smith, of Blalock, N. G. Blalock, of Walla Walla, and S. McCabe, an eastern railroad man, were in town last Friday night, having driven through from Pendleton by private conveyance. The gentlemen were not very communicative as to the object of their trip, but it is understood here that they are looking into the pros and cons of a railroad proposition, the object of which will be to tap Condon and the rich wheat belt adjacent thereto. If built, the road will be a part of the proposed boat line and portage railway system of transportation on the Columbia river, and will be one of the most important feeders of that system. There appears to be a good prospect that the transportation question, for this section of Gilliam county, is getting in good shape for a speedy solution.—Condon Globe.
