VAULT MINERAL DEPOSITS.

Discovered on the Summit of Canyon Mountain, Grant County. M. J. Chambers, proprietor of the Elkhorn hotel, of Canyon City, in company with Fred Page and Oliver Peone have discovered and located three vast quartz deposits on the very summit of Canyon mountain, which from the surface indications appear to be valuable property. The main ledge is fully 100 feet in width and can be traced by croppings the entire length of the claim, and prospects well in gold, silver and copper. At the east end of their claim the ledge is crossed by a canyon a hundred or more feet in depth, which affords an excellent place to develop the property at a great depth at the smallest expense. Mr. Chambers has secured assays on the surface quartz from the different locations and has returns showing a value of from $12 to $15 per ton. During the past summer a company composed of Portland capitalists located several claims on the same mountain four miles east of his location. When the development work begins on these properties in the early spring the readers of the Eagle need not be surprised to hear of startling discoveries being made.—Blue Mountain Eagle.

ATHLETIC EVENTS

Which May Lead to the Formation of a Heppner Athletic Club. New inspiration has developed with the young men of the town, and athletic sports are uppermost in their minds. Saturday night the wrestling contest between John Kline, the middle-weight champion of Montana, and Arthur Clarke, the jeweler, and holder of many championship medals as an all-round athlete, proved the greatest event of its kind ever witnessed in this section of the country, and it is safe to predict that Heppner will never again bring together two such scientific and evenly matched wrestlers. They were evenly dividing a crowd of houses. In height and weight Kline was considerably the larger man, but what Clarke lacked in size and strength, he overcame in action and science, and scored the first fall in 23 minutes with a quarter Nelson and crotch hold, throwing his man in clean style. Fifteen minutes were allowed for a rest, after which both men went to work with a vengeance. Contact with a partition barely saved Kline from a second fall, which stirred his "metals" and, succeeding in getting a double-Nelson and leg lock, through his weight and herculean strength, succeeded in crushing Clarke to the mat, securing a decision. At the moment of the time limit of one hour and thirty minutes neither had secured the victory, which ended the match a draw. During the entire contest the enthusiasm of the audience knew no bounds, the chief interest centering on Clarke as a local man and the smaller of the two. Mr. Kline was exceedingly gentlemanly and fair in his work, and nothing marred the event. No money was wagered and no exception can be taken to this class of sport. The receipts just netted the expenses and no complaints came from the contestants. Should they repeat the match they could depend on a crowd of houses.

Mr. Clarke's motive in entering these contests is to develop interest in the establishment of the long-talked-of athletic club, which would contribute so much to the social enjoyment and wield a good influence with the young men.

The football match, billed for Saturday, between the visiting Pendleton team and the Heppner boys should have the support of every person in Heppner, as it is the beginning of a social relationship between the best element of young men in Eastern Oregon, and will be of much benefit to them as well as the business interests of each section. The business men should encourage the boys by buying tickets for distribution among their customers. People from outside of town should be encouraged to attend these sports, thereby developing a new interest in our town. The game is called for 3 o'clock, and will draw a big crowd.

"Big" McAllister, the returned volunteer, of Lexington, will be the center rush, in which position he made the Agricultural college team famous throughout the Northwest. His playing will be illustrative of the world-renowned rushes made by the American boys against the Filipinos. We trust he will not forget himself and mistake an opponent of the bromide type for one of the little brown imps he was after for two years.

Story of a Slave. To be bonded hand and foot is for years by the chains of disease is the worst form of slavery. George D. Williams, of Manchester, Mich., tells us such a slave was made free. He says: "My wife has been so helpless for five years that she could not turn over in bed alone. After using two bottles of Electric Bitters, she is wonderfully improved and able to do her own work." This supreme remedy for female diseases quickly cures nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, headache, backache, fainting and dizzy spells. This miracle working medicine is a god-send to weak, sick, run down people. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cts. Sold by Slocum Drug Co.

DR. DARRIN TO REMAIN. Owing to the great demand for his Personal Services. The doctor has concluded to extend his visit to Heppner and will remain at the Palace hotel until February 18, thus affording those who have not yet had an opportunity of consulting him a chance to do so. They will receive a frank opinion free of charge. In a majority of cases only one interview is required. The balance of treatment can be conducted without interruption of business. To those unable to come, question blanks will be furnished by mail upon application.

The doctor's treatment consists of the latest discoveries in the application of electricity, supplemented by medicines if necessary.

The majority of his cases whose names are presented were of a chronic nature and had defied the skill of good physicians, thus showing the superiority of electricity, when administered by one who has made its use a special study since electricity came into prominence as a remedial agency. The indiscriminate use of electricity should be guarded against, since, like any other remedy, it may act adversely, unless prescribed by one thoroughly understanding its effect. Below we give the names of well known people in this state who have been cured.

John Martin, Cove, Or., hydrocele, cured 9 years ago.

MATLOCK ARRIVES FROM DAWSON. Walkeo Out Over Ice and Snow for a Distance of 600 Miles.

Ex-Senator W. F. Matlock arrived home from Dawson City, Yukon territory, this morning. He came out from the great gold camp of the far north in company with W. M. Beagle, who arrived home Wednesday. Mr. Matlock and Mr. Beagle left Dawson on December 10th, and walked 600 miles to Skagway. Their trip was much more hazardous and fatiguing than if it had been undertaken later, when the river was closed in all places, and the trails broken. Breaking trails in an Arctic region afoot in the bitter cold of winter is a task by no means pleasant, but the two Pendleton men possessed the essential nerve to attempt it, and, once started, had courage and endurance to reach their destination.

When they left Dawson, the ice had not formed permanently in all places, but it was necessary to walk sometimes on the ice, sometimes on the snow, sometimes on the shore. Although no accidents occurred beyond a few freezing of noses, ears and other members, several times they assisted at the rescue of men who had fallen into the Yukon with the temperature on a very low level.

Dawson was a town of something less than 15,000 when he left, said Mr. Matlock.

In Dawson, Mr. Matlock saw Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Cook, and Mr. Cook assured him he would come out next fall with $20,000 in gold dust. He has a half interest in a claim, which promises to turn out finely at the sluicing next spring.

Mr. Matlock will remain here a few days, and then return with Mr. Beagle, going in prepared to sled to Dawson the supplies they had frozen up on the Yukon 60 miles this side of Stewart river.

Mr. Matlock says the railroad is now being pushed, work going on night and day, and will be at White Horse rapids by June 1st.

On the Frontier. Mustapha Bey—Hark! Effendi Bey—Hush! "Did you hear it?" "Yes; what was it?" "It sounded to me like swish, swish swish."

"It sounded to me like creek, creek, creek."

"Hil! I have it!" "So have I."

"It is the stiffly starched skirts of the Grecian army crossing over the frontier line."

"That's what."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

She Wanted to Tickle Him. It is said that a Langdon lady while at the Carnival recently, entered a Grand Forks hardware store and asked for a jack-pot. She was informed that they did not keep jack-pots, which caused her to turn away with a downcast look, remarking that she was so in hopes that they kept them, because her husband kept talking so much in his sleep about jack-pots, and if she could get one she knew it would tickle him nearly to death.
