WHEAT, WOOL AND STOCK. Portland, Sept. 25.

Wheat fell off again yesterday, dropping 114 cents in Chicago, and one cent in Portland. This fall in price is attributed largely to the firmness of charters The daily receipts of grain in Portland are 25 per cent greater than those of the same date last year, and the Willamette valley is contributing practically noth-ing, the local demand absorbing all the marketable wheat there. The tendency of the growers to pool their grain and sell in large lots on private terms is a feature of the market and such sales are usually at figures perceptibly better
