

Republican Ticket.

For President, WM. MCKINLEY, Of Ohio.

For Vice-President, THEODORE ROOSEVELT, Of New York.

For Presidential Electors, O. F. FAXTON, of Multnomah County, TILMON FORD, of Marion County, J. C. FULLERTON, of Douglas County, W. J. FURNISH, of Umatilla County.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Congressman T. H. Tongue will address the people at Heppner opera house, Friday, Oct. 5, at 8 p. m.

MR. BRYAN'S MISTAKE.

He said: "You shall not toss Mankind upon a cross of shining gold. Nor press his brow with thorns, Nor tread upon his horns when he is old."

He said: "No fires will burn, No wheels, no spindles turn, Without my hand is at the nation's helm; Dictator of the realm—Chief of the band."

He said: "The metal white is strictly in the fight (Iugged it in). We're on free silver bent, Without the world's consent, And it will win."

The voters heard him shout, Then straightway went about To give him fits; They said "We want no stuff Half money and half bluff, A dollar worth 4 bits."

It took his breath away When the people had their say In N—O—V. But he's got his second wind, Thinks he'll not again be skinned—Wait and see.

PAETY OF PROGRESS.

The Republican party is the party of progress. For forty years it has accomplished every great national achievement. It is constructive. If voters will examine the speeches and platform of its opponents, they will look in vain for anything that will add to the peace, comfort or welfare of the American people.

It was the election of McKinley and the victory for sound money that, equally with the assured repeal of the Wilson Tariff bill, strengthened private credit and enabled the people to take full advantage of nature's bounty. It has also strengthened the national credit and made it the highest in the world.

The Republican party is the party of prosperity, busy worksheds, honest money, growing commerce, territorial expansion and national honor. Furthermore, the Republican party has made every one of these claims good.

The Boston Herald, which is Democratic, but which will not support Bryan, says that with Bryan elected this year all the conditions of a panic to follow it are as strong as they were in '72. The memory of the last panic is so vivid that American voters will not invite another by electing Mr. Bryan.

CITY COUNCIL.

At the regular meeting Monday evening, Mayor Frank Gilliam presided.

On petition of J. L. Ayers, H. W. Bartholomew and others, it was voted that the cow ordinance be enforced on and after Oct. 8. No cows will be allowed at large day or night.

An ordinance was passed forbidding fowls to run on any streets or alleys after Oct. 11. Owners are liable to arrest and be fined $5 or take two days in jail.

It was ordered that the peddler's license be enforced in case of meat peddling.

Permission was granted to ride bicycles on sidewalk between J. L. Yeager's and J. A. Thompson's.

Following bills were allowed: Geo. Thornton, $60; J. P. Williams, $16.65; L. W. Briggs, $8.33; C. E. Redfield, $25; Jas. Jones, $50; Robt. Large, $1.45; B. Martin, $1; J. J. Roberts, $2.50; W. P. Servner, 75c; P. C. Criswell, $7; J. P. Williams, $1; Wills & Patterson, $2.76; Julius Koitbley, $2.50; Light & Water Co., lights and 2 hydrants for September, $93; Heppner Transfer Co., $10.85.

LADIES' BAND BENEFIT.

An entertainment will be given at the opera house on Thursday evening, Oct. 11, for the benefit of the Ladies' Band.

There will be a recitation by Prof. Carriere, graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, recitation by Miss Robinson, and several vocal and instrumental selections, besides stirring strains by the band.

The organization intends to increase its efficiency by buying new instruments, and people who attend the entertainment Thursday eve will not only get the worth of their ticket money, but will help a good cause and increase the efficiency of a worthy home institution.

FOREST RESERVES.

Tacoma, Oct. 1.—Today a delegation of men interested in the stock industry conferred with Commissioner Hermann as to the use of the forest reserves for grazing purposes.

Commissioner Hermann stated that primarily the object of the forestry division was the conservator of the water flow and the preservation of the forest growth. The forest area of the U. S. now amounted to 46,000,000 acres, and applications were on file to increase it by 100,000,000 acres.

Whenever the department saw that the grazing of cattle or sheep on the forest reserves decreased the value of the timber growth, the policy has been to prohibit. In the past it was found that the grazing privileges resulted in injury to the forests largely through forest fires, and one of the best evidences of the successful work of the department in exercising control of the forest areas, was that very few forest fires had broken out this season.

Mr. Inglehart opened the case for the cattle and sheep men. They desired to secure some definite assurance regarding the continuation of the permit system. Mr. Clemens stated that the great apprehension felt among the sheep and woolraisers of the state was caused by there being no certainty as to the continuation of permits.

The commissioner assured him that new permits would have to be granted each year, and that in cases where privileges had been violated it was the intention of the department to refuse to grant permits. Mr. Clemens was very anxious to secure some definite statement which would show that the government proposed to summarily punish tramp sheep men for going upon areas reserved for others.

This seemed to be the most important point discussed. The commissioner stated that, while the department approved of a plan of issuing permits whereby certain areas could be set aside for certain sheep men, such areas to be agreed upon by the sheep men themselves, still as the matter now stood the department was not prepared to go into the question of deciding the rights and equities of contestants or sheep men who did not feel bound to abide by the decision mutually arrived at by the woolgrowers.

As regards cattle, he said that the department did not feel warranted in prescribing certain areas for certain bands of stock, because it was felt that the cattle might move about from place to place. The nub of the discourse, however, seemed to center on the importance of a mutual agreement among the sheep and cattle men regarding among themselves certain areas, each to respect the boundaries of his permit.

Without the establishment of a court to pass on the various claims of contending cattle men, the commissioner did not feel that the government should take up the question of protecting the cattle and sheep men in their permit privileges.

The commissioner added that the government expected the cattle and sheep men to graze upon the areas within the reserve just as they always had; that is, where grazing is permitted at all. However, did propose to allow grazing where injury was done to the forest growth, and if it resulted that the permits granted were an injury to the forests or jeopardized the conservation of the water flow, the permits would be refused in the future.

The cattle and sheep men, on their part, expressed a desire and willingness to protect the forests as far as possible. The commissioner stated in connection with the proposed charge to be made for grazing privileges, while there was an undercurrent against leasing forest areas, still, as a business proposition, he felt it was warranted.

Mr. Inglehart added that the tramp sheepmen were growing less in number each year, and that they would probably cause very little trouble in the future.

As the matter now stands, sheep and cattle men will have to get together next spring and decide among themselves where certain bands are to be assigned, and, after making such assignments, the superintendent of forest reserves will take up the question of reissuing permits.

In the meantime, however, laws may be enacted by congress providing for the leasing of areas within the forest reserves and also providing that the forest rangers shall act as deputy U. S. marshals in enforcing the rules and regulations of the department.

The stock men frankly admitted that the price of sheep has gradually advanced under the present administration, and that the price of wool had increased in a corresponding degree.

HOMES ARE HERE.

The Heppner Gazette receives many letters from men in the middle west, asking it to answer by return mail a great many questions about the Heppner country.

To personally answer so many letters and so many questions takes too much time.

When such people are thinking of coming here, the Gazette freely mails them sample copies and copies of its circular describing the main points of interest.

There is no reason why Morrow county cannot support twice its present population, and for those who are willing to work, homes are here. The man with cash to invest would probably reap as rich returns from it here as elsewhere, for land values here are the lowest on earth considering the production and profits.

Morrow county is in excellent financial condition, taxes are very reasonable, and home-hunters who come here and are willing to take chances with the rest of us will find a fair share of prosperity awaiting them.

CLEAN CROSSWALKS.

A business man from a valley town was in Heppner yesterday, and was quite complimentary in talking of the clean crosswalks on Heppner's main street. "You certainly have a very industrious marshal," he said, "for I see him cleaning crosswalks, and that is something I never saw another marshal do. The one in my town merely parades the streets with his hands in his pockets. I have heard hobos give Heppner a bad name. They say the marshal walks them out of town as soon as they arrive, and will not even put them in jail and feed them."

IN THE CASCADES.

Chris Domeyer, who lives at the old Cogswell stock ranch on the McKenzie, is making a big profit off his cows and calves with little work. He has a good mountain range, and turns his cows and calves out together without interference of the milker.

After running together through the summer the calves make extra fine veal. A six months old calf dressed for market netted Mr. Domeyer $25.25. Ordinarily the butter made from the cow during the summer together with the calf at six months of age, would not bring that amount, to say nothing of the labor expended making butter. Of course such profits on stockraising are possible only where there is good range.

FLOWERS OF FROST.

In the home-garden we have but few flowers that bloom after first frost comes, says Eben E. Rexford in the October "New Lippincott." These are the asters, the hardier chrysanthemums, the hydrangea, the pansy, the perennial phlox, and the Japan anemone. These continue to show a brave face to the on-coming winter until he is actually upon them and has them in his icy clutch. The dahlia, the canna, and the cosmos help to make bright the early fall, but the first frosty night puts an end to their beauty and often to their life. Often in the garden-ways of late fall we come upon a flower of the summer-time grown from an early-ripened seed which the wind has sown. Sometimes these strays startle us, so out of place they seem. They always have a sort of uncanny air to me. Perhaps they are memories of dead things which haunt the heart of the dying year. Who knows?

RAISING GOATS.

Geo. A. Honck, of Eugene, says: "I run my goats in two general classes—those on shares and those kept on my own land. As to the relative profit of these classes, it would be a difficult matter to compare, as the ones kept on my own land are clearing brush for me in addition to the annual dividends cut from their backs and the sale of the increase. The ones on shares, however, have never paid less than 30 per cent per annum on the investment, and in one case I made 65 per cent per annum on the actual cash investment for a term of three years on a bunch of 60 head. I usually let them for terms of three years, getting half of the mohair each year, getting the old stock and half the increase at end of term. I sometimes let them for a year at a time, however, and as I have just divided on one band I can give my exact income for the last year—or rather, ten months. These were average nanies: Income for mohair, 186 lbs at 30 cents.....$ 55 80 Income from increase after the old stock was made good, 47 head at $3..... 141 00 Total income.....$196 80 My share being.....$ 98 40

SOLDIER OR SAINT.

Garibaldi has been called "not a soldier but a saint." Most great heroes, alas! have outlived their heroism, and their worshippers have outlived their worship, but Garibaldi has never been anything but the unselfish patriot who wanted everything for his country but nothing for himself. He has been described, on his return to Italy from South America, as "beautiful as a statue and riding like a centaur." "He was quite a show," said the sculptor Gibson, "everyone stopping to look at him." "Probably," said another Englishman, "a human face so like a lion, and still retaining the humanity nearest the image of its Maker, was never seen."—October "New Lippincott."
