His Generosity Towards His Newly Married

A Realistic Romance of Heppner in Which a Number of

"Miss Summers—Polly—I—I—took a header over bashfulness, only to hear a sweet

"Yes, Charley."
"Can I aspire to er—to—that is."
Again a lapse into silence, followed by an encouraging
"Yes, Charley."
"Oh, if I might only hope to er —to—" Another failure in language. It was seemingly a hopeless case, and might have been, only for a demure
"Charley, I have said 'yes' twice, and if you mean it, I mean it too, and—"
And to this day that young man will insist that he popped the question.
All this happened away "up state," and it wasn't long before there was a wedding. Not much longer before there came a letter from Polly's Uncle Joshua Turner, rich, generous, who wrote effusively to his delight at her exhibition of what he called "grit," and he proposed that if the young people would locate at Heppner he would start them up in life, as a wedding gift, having explained that there was no better port in the world where they might launch their little matrimonial canoe. Of course they accepted and were soon bidding their friends adieu.
* * * * *

A few weeks subsequent to the above conversation, a travel-stained party arrived in Heppner. Our friend, Uncle Josh, was in charge, and he led the party straightway to the Palace Hotel. "We'll go to the Palace," he said, "Cause its been the popular place for years, and is strictly first-class." Senator J. W. Morrow, the proprietor, is endowed with that delightful intuition that makes a guest feel at home, comfortable, and in mighty good luck. The house is one of convenience; the apartments are cosily furnished, and the cuisine all that a superior cook and unlimited orders on the market can make it. I have engaged rooms at the Palace until your own house is in readiness, and if you don't agree that I've selected a mighty fine place, then I'm no prophet!"
"After breakfast," continued the old man, "I am ready to buy your outfit. To expedite matters I have ordered a carriage from H. A.
Thompson, our enterprising livery man." When the handsome carriage, with elaborate trappings and prancing horses, drew up in front of the hotel, Polly declared it the "finest turnout she had ever seen." "Yes Sir-ee," replied Uncle Josh, "the three S's, 'Speed, Safety and Style' is H. A. Thompson's coat of arms. So, young folks, when you want to take a drive, either for business or pleasure, go to him for a rig every time. His wedding, party and funeral equipments are unsurpassed." It was in this stylish turnout that the rounds of the town were made.
With these remarks, Uncle Josh graciously presented to Charley the deed to a cosy cottage.

"Having already provided a cage for the bird," said Uncle Josh, "now the first thing we'll look after will be the furnishings for it." Hereupon Polly declared that she had heard so much about J. L.
Yeager, the furniture man and funeral director, and read his advertisement in the pioneer home paper, the Heppner Gazette, that she had decided to go there. The result was that they were ushered into such a bewildering display that the girl was at first at a loss how to select.
But she soon yielded to the attractions of a magnificent parlor suite, a bedroom set in oak, golden finish, that would do credit to old Mr. Klondike himself. To this she added an easy rocker for Uncle Josh, and didn't forget a most convenient and ornamental writing desk for "Hubby" Charles, having come to the conclusion that J. L.
Yeager's figures were below the very whisper of competition.
"A pretty good start," said the old man, "and now we'll go to Gilliam & Biabee's big hardware and stove store where Polly's housewifely instincts will have full play in marvels of kitchen apparatus. There is not an establishment in the country that carries a more comprehensive stock of household furnishings," remarked Uncle Josh. "Every possible piece of kitchen furniture from a tin dipper to a cooking range is here in all styles and variety."

While Uncle Josh was pondering where to go next, Polly suddenly asked: "Uncle, where can I find the leading millinery establishment?" "Just up the street," remarked Uncle Josh, "and we will visit Mrs. L. J. Estes, who, by the way, has on hand one of the completest stocks of millinery, fur capes, dress skirts, silk waists and ladies' neck wear to be found in the city. You can get what you want there, the latest styles being her motto. Mrs. Estes' experience guarantees that when you have purchased of her you have the thing according to fashion and a satisfaction that your work has been done by a competent artist.
In a few minutes there never was a happier girl than Polly for she purchased a perfect dream of a hat with all the style and at half the price generally found in a city store.
"Oh, say, Uncle," exclaimed Polly, "where can I go for dry goods?" This dress is hardly suitable, I must admit." "Well, my girl, if you want to select from one of the most popular establishments in the city, I will direct you to Minor & Co., who carry a stock of dress goods that for variety and real value is seldom seen outside the largest metropolitan cities. They carry all the latest weaves in fashionable dress goods and you are sure to be guided right in your selections. You will find Minor & Co. pleasant to deal with and their employees polite and expert, while the prices cannot be duplicated." It did not take Polly long to tell a bargain when she saw one. She got a handsome dress, with all necessary trimmings, and several other articles of "fantastic disarray" so dear to the heart of every woman.
At this point, somewhat to the confusion of Charley, the old man indulged in a half criticism of his personal appearance. "You are decidedly old style for a townsman," said he, "and while here, we'd better see Minor & Co. about some new duds." After Charley had fitted himself in a neat suit, from the piles of fashionable garments that cover the tables of this extensively stocked establishment, Uncle Josh declared: "Now you look like a newly married man." Before leaving, having found goods and prices irresistible, Charley also invested in a complete outfit of gent's furnishings, from the latest style hat to a dozen shirts. Minor & Co. are not to be undersold in Morrow county.

"By the way," remarked Uncle Josh, as they reached the street, "I must run up to the First National Bank and get another check book. Come along with me and get acquainted with Geo. Conser and the staff, for of course you will do business with them and it is always more pleasant to be personally acquainted with the people you do business with. This bank is as solid as the base of the universe, and has a stout working capital and a surplus of several thousand. You will find them ever ready to extend any accommodations compatible with business principles." "Guess I'll open up an account right away," replied Charley, and he did.
After this visit, Uncle Josh suggested a resort to some place of refreshment.

At the table the old man waxed philosophical. "Never neglect your larder," he said. "That important adjunct to housekeeping controls masculine temper. To that end you must patronize a grocer on whom you can depend for honest goods. Through a long term of years I have found the Ed R.
Bishop Co. perfectly reliable. You will find them careful dealers, always fully stocked with every possible thing in the line of staple and fancy groceries fresh and first-class, no shelf-worn goods there, while the prices are down to brass tacks. To keep peace in the family get all your groceries of the Ed R. Bishop Co.
"Yes, and while we are on this important topic of gastronomy, we must not forget meat. It goes hand in hand with groceries. Now to locate a meat market where you can get fresh, wholesome meats and poultry at all times.
J. S. Kinsman is the man to supply you with that. This is the boss meat market and is popular with everybody who is particular to have the best. The reason for this is all because J. S. Kinsman is very careful in the selection of stock—gets the best of everything and keeps it fresh on cold storage. To keep your 'hobby' in a good humor, Polly, trade at J. S. Kinsman's market every time."
"Oh me! oh my!" ejaculated Polly, as they halted before a show window, "what a perfectly lovely slipper."
"Yes," said Uncle Josh, "The Fair's stock can't be equalled in style and extent in this section. Go in, look it over and get acquainted." It might have been policy not to have extended that invitation, had not Uncle Josh known what wise economy it is to trade at The Fair, for Polly found goods and prices so seduc-tive that she purchased an outfit from a pretty slipper to a handsome walking boot. Charley invested in gent's fine shoes, while Uncle Josh indulged in a stout boot, with rubbers for the crowd. No one needing footwear can resist the styles and prices offered by The Fair.
"By the way," exclaimed Uncle Josh, with a paternal air, the next thing to look after is the lumber for those improvements which are absolutely necessary. Come with me and I'll introduce you to Wills & Patterson, who are the dealers in that line here. They carry the most complete line of building material in this end of the county—everything, from the stone sills for the foundation to the shingles for the roof, including doors and windows, moulding, etc. It is pleasant to deal with Wills & Patterson, for their greatest aim is to give satisfaction to every customer, and the lumber was quickly arranged for.

"And as you are going to keep a horse," continued the old man, "of course you'll need harness. The boss horse milliners of this section, to my notion, are Noble & Co. They use only first-class material and give personal supervision to the minutest detail of manufacture. There is nothing in harness that cannot be had of Noble & Co.— heavy and light, single and double, plain and fancy work, and buggy harness. They have 'em in stock, or can make 'em to order, besides every other kind of turf goods imaginable and the finest lot of blankets and lap robes you ever laid your eyes upon." After a visit to Noble & Co's harness store, Charley said he thought "If a man couldn't get satisfied it would be his own fault."
"Now," cried the old gentleman, "now for a picture of this crowd, in good old country fashion, we'll go to the photograph gallery, and M. T.
Miller will make a good one. His pictures are wonderful in fidelity and finish.
I want one full-sized photo for my study and some small ones for my friends. Dr. Miller has the soul of a true artist; all his work is a labor of love, in which he will not stop short of perfection. As he is famous for successful enlarging, I want to give you a life-size representation of 'yours truly,' with a fine frame to enclose it." (Uncle
Miller's studio any time the reader desires to call.)
En route to their home the party called at the Gazette office. "You'll want the news every week," remarked Uncle Josh, "and as this is the old reliable pioneer paper here—the old stand-by for the past 18 years, I'll subscribe."
Upon summing up the wonderful events of the day Polly began to vol-ubly express thanks. "You have bought us everything," she exclaimed.
"Only one thing," replied Uncle Josh reflectively, "but I can remedy that.
J. L. Yeager, the furniture man, always has a nice line of them and you can get one whenever you want it; I'll pay for the best."
"Why," exclaimed Polly with great surprise, "Uncle, what can it be?"
"Well, it's a baby carriage, and—"
But Polly had fainted.

How We Use Our Forests.
It is estimated that it takes twenty-two acres of spruce land to furnish enough wood pulp paper to run a large meta-pollitan daily just two days. The writer who makes this statement deplors the time when, at this rate, our forests will entirely disappear, and paper be very scarce and expensive. Meantime, the art of printing continues, because there are many truths the world should know; among others, that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a cure for diseases of the stomach, such as dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness, isonomia and nervousness. This famous medicine has been the standard remedy of the American people for 50 years. Do not accept a substitute. The genuine has a Greenish Beverage Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

priced ranches, see George Wells, at
