THURSDAY,..... June 13, 1901

It is welcome news to the taxpayers of the state of Oregon to learn that the axe of retrenchment is being wielded to a certain extent around the state institutions at Salem. The State Board of Education has commenced the good work. The abuse which the board has undertaken to eradicate, says a Salem dispatch, is that an undue expenditure of public funds in the entertainment of the personal friends or relatives of the superintendents of these different institutions. This is an abuse which has existed in its most flagrant form at the asylum for the insane, though it is quite generally known that under the present administration the injustice has been greatly diminished. It was formerly quite common for the superintendent and physicians at the asylum to entertain their friends for many days at a time, and for the superintendent, in particular, to give social functions at which a large number of guests were wined and dined in truly royal style. The food of which these guests ate, the magnificent splendor of their surroundings, and the servants who waited upon them, were all maintained by the taxpayers of the state. And when the banquet was over, the favored guests were driven home in a carriage maintained by the state, drawn by a state team and driven by a state coachman. The mention of this case of the state's equipage recalls another abuse concerning which there has been strong complaint. It has been the custom for the ladies in the families of the principal officers at the asylum to use the state carriage when they go calling or shopping, and to require the services of state teams and state employes as freely as though they were provided at private expense. While the additional expense to the taxpayers on this account is not large, the principle of the thing is wrong, and one "graft" leads to another. To be plain in discussion of a public question, there is no more reason why the people should provide a carriage for the wives of the officers of the asylum than for the wives of the governor, the chief justice, and other state officers. A lady who has a carriage at her disposal a whole afternoon and may have it waiting for her at 11 o'clock at night, and who bears none of the expense of maintaining that sort of luxury, belongs to a privileged class, not contemplated in a government of which equality is the corner stone.

In answer to a telegram from the Chicago American Governor Geer gives a very able opinion as to the possibility of a third term for President McKinley. Governor Geer has voiced the public sentiment all over the country in the following reply:

"I do not believe McKinley will be the first president to have a third term, nor that the man is born who will. For many reasons McKinley will rank in history as one of our greatest presidents, but no combination of circumstances will make it necessary for him to be seriously considered by any one as a third-term candidate. I have no idea he has ever thought so himself. No matter how conditions might change in this country, the proposition that no man should serve a third term would still be the best public policy. The declarations of the prominent men you name indicate nothing more than a desire to be sensational along the line of learning public sentiment on the question. There can be no doubt as to what the public mind will say upon this subject. I have the highest possible opinion of President McKinley, but necessity does not and will not exist for the departure of the established custom of the country upon the question of a third term.

The San Francisco Chronicle in a recent article gives facts and figures which show that the Western woodlands are being rapidly stripped to supply Eastern and foreign demands:

Puget Sound mills are now filling orders for 20,000,000 Oregon pine ties to re-equip the railroads of Illinois, Kansas, Texas and other states, and a California lumber firm has contracted to supply 13,000,000 redwood ties for a railroad to be built from Guayaquil, Ecuador, to Quito. For two years the Puget Sound mills have been running their full capacity in an effort to keep up with the demands of the Eastern roads. The lands of the East and the Middle West have been denuded of this kind of material and the raid for supplies is now being made in earnest on the Pacific Coast forests. Spain stripped her forest land and is a partial desert today in consequence. North Carolina recognizes the danger which is impending and at its last session her legislature passed a law prohibiting absolutely the exportation of timber from the state. New Hampshire, however, exposed her unwisdom at the same time by refusing to protect her forests.

A proposition is now before the Portland Library Association, for discontinuing membership dues and the establishment of a free reading room. Portland has a good library of 37,682 volumes. If possible to maintain a free library, it would be a grand thing and a great benefit to the many people who are not able to pay the yearly dues, and who are deprived of the use of this great educating medium. With modern progression the thirst for knowledge is increasing wonderfully. The accommodation and education to so many people, and especially young people, to come from a free library, can hardly be estimated in value. It will help people who need help. Free libraries should be encouraged in every city and town.

That the English speaking people are being drawn more closely together is apparent. The banquet tendered recently by the London chamber of commerce to the delegates of the New York chamber was a brilliant affair. No effort was spared to honor the American guests. In the after dinner speaking, which occupied four hours, every speech was characterized by extreme friendliness. All the speakers expressed the belief that Great Britain and the United States would rule the destinies of the world, and that their unwritten alliance would always work for peace and the benefit of mankind. American and English interests are becoming more and more closely allied each year.

The United States will not agree to joint guarantee of Chinese indemnity. The London Times in commenting upon the situation tells about the whole story in the following: "Doubtless the United States is actuated by the same reasons as Great Britain in declining a joint guarantee of the Chinese indemnity. The Americans are business-like people. They are no more likely to lend credit than money to oblige China's creditors, and Washington's decision must have been foreseen and discounted long ago."

It is the lot of the real newspaper men and women of Oregon to be grinding out copy for the printers while the journalists of the state are gallivanting towards Buffalo to attend the alleged National Editorial Association, in which real editors are as scarce as hens' teeth.—Dalles Chronicle. The editor of the Chronicle evidently has to stay at home.

The National Convention of the Travelers' Protective Association will meet in Portland in 1902. There was a contest between Portland and Cincinnati and the Oregon metropolis won out with big odds. The members of the association are active and intelligent business men and they know that Oregon is all right.

Poor old Spain, once so great and powerful, is gradually going to pieces. Public affairs are now in a critical state. The working classes in Spain, through poverty and the consequent suffering, are being driven into revolutionary organization, and the outlook is dark.

The Davis defalcation case has turned out as predicted by the GAZETTE of last week. The case will not amount to anything. District Attorney Chamberlain declines to take part in an official capacity in the suit. The state can never recover the amount stolen.

The Rural Spirit says that Eastern Oregon will be represented at the state fair this year as it has never been before. This is good news. The resources of the great Inland Empire are not well enough known. Eastern Oregon can make a fine showing at the state fair.

The hanging of the five men in Modoc county for a trivial offense by a mob recently, has caused a great sensation. Governor Gage has offered a reward of $5000 for the arrest and conviction of the persons engaged in the lynching.

The political pot of Oregon is beginning to boil but no ingredients from the Eastern part of the state have yet been stirred in. It is the same old concoction prepared by Multnomah county.—La Grande Chronicle.

While the weather is a little too cool for comfort and there are frequent showers, the weather is favorable for good crops and grass. It helps the farmers and stockmen, and this helps everybody.

Little Japan is making preparations for war with Russia. It will be a different proposition from the Chinese war.

The tournament was a great success; made so by the enterprise of Heppner business men and citizens.

It has been demonstrated during the past week that Heppner knows how to entertain.

Literary Notes

The story in the Argonaut for June 10, 1901, is: "A Carcel Courtship: The Romance of Morelos and Josefina, of Guadalajara." It tells of a pair of lovers who first meet inside the walls of a prison, and describes the growth and culmination of their mutual attraction.

For more than fifty years an Englishwoman (who is still living) has cherished a little sheaf of letters written by Charles Dickens. These charming letters show the novelist in a new part. They will be printed, for the first time, in The Saturday Evening Post for June 15th.

A trip through the wheat belt of Eastern Oregon last week convinces us that the crop will be enormous. The grain has a good healthy look about it that promises well for a big yield. The alfalfa crop, too, will turn out a big yield, and the farmers in that section certainly have a very bright future.—North Pacific Rural Spirit.

A GOOD COUGH MEDICINE.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers," says Druggist J. Goldsmith, Van Etten, N. Y.
