COMMERCIAL CLUB. Enthusiastic Meeting of Business Men Monday Evening.

The meeting at city hall Monday evening for the purpose of devising plans for the organization of a commercial and athletic club in Heppner was well attended by the business men.

Temporary Chairman E. L. Freeland called the meeting to order at eight o'clock and stated the object of the meeting.

The membership roll showed that 63 persons have already signed. There was a general exchange of views and the question was discussed at considerable length.

E. M. Shutt was very much in favor of organization and said that he thought business interests were suffering for want of something of this kind.

Attorney G. W. Phelps favored the election of a board of seven directors, to go ahead and ascertain the requirements and start the club on a solid business basis.

After considerable discussion, on motion of Mr. Phelps, the question of the election of seven directors by informal ballot was put to a vote.

The following directors were elected: George Conser, Mayor Frank Gilliam, E. M. Shutt, E. L. Freeland, Arthur Clark, Herb. Bartholomew and G. W. Phelps.

George Conser, president, Mayor Frank Gilliam, vice-president, Herb. Bartholomew, treasurer, and G. W. Phelps, secretary, were chosen without a dissenting vote.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA. Saddle Horses Purchased for English Government.

Tuesday was a lively day in the horse business in Heppner.

S. Coyle, of Walla Walla, representing the English government, was here buying horses to be used in the South African war for English mounts.

One hundred head came from the Lone Rock country. Unlike the United States government agents, the English are not very particular in the selection of cavalry horses, and took much lighter animals.

As there are a great many horses of this kind, sales were rapid.

Mr. Coyle purchased 130 head, ranging in weight from 800 to 1000 pounds, between the ages of five and eight years. Prices ranged all the way from $30 to $50 per head.

The horses will be shipped to Wyoming for English inspection and receipt. These horses have a long trip before them. From Wyoming they will be shipped to the Atlantic coast, and from there will go to South Africa. It is said that these horses laid down at Cape Town will cost the English government $400 per head. It is estimated that the life of cavalry horses in South Africa is only four months. It is expensive business to furnish horses for the war.
