Oregon keeps right on getting away with the prizes at the Pan-American Exposition. The latest is the highest award for collective farm exhibits, being the finest, most comprehensive and correctly labeled display of grains and grasses and forage plants in the agricultural building, consisting of 742 bundles and 399 varieties. Oregon is all right.

Cuba has been increasing steadily her purchases from Germany since the cessation of hostilities in the island, according to a report to the state department from Consul General Guenther, at Frankfurt, Germany. From about $600,000 worth, which Hamburg shipped to Cuba in 1899, the amount had risen in 1900 to over $2,000,000. These exports to Cuba cover to less than 130 groups of goods, of which rice, articles of iron, cotton goods and toys have shown notable increases. The exports from Cuba to Hamburg have increased from $1,190,000 in 1898 to $3,142,000 in 1900.

The following states have at one time or another been under prohibition law: Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, in New England; New York for one year; Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Texas, Mississippi, Delaware and South Carolina. All these states have abandoned prohibition after trial, save Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Kansas. More prohibitory laws have been repealed by Republican than Democratic legislatures. New Jersey has never been under prohibition.—Ex.

Homer Davenport, Oregon's gifted son, the great cartoonist, is now at his old home in Silverton. One day last week he got the old boys together and played baseball, with Homer in the box. The old boys won the game with Homer's old-time skill and vim. He dug up one of his old baseball suits that he had cast off away back in '86. When Homer went to play ball he weighed about 130 pounds, but now he tips the beam at the 200 mark. That baseball suit fit pretty quick. His picture, drawn by himself in baseball attire appeared in Sunday's Oregonian. Homer has a very warm feeling for his native town, the little city of Silverton, and he has given the place considerable prominence in the East in his cartoons. The town is now striving to raise money to build cement sidewalks. Homer was equal to the emergency, and is giving lectures in the principal valley towns to raise the money. He will also give a lecture in Portland for the benefit of the free bath movement. Think of it. For the love of his little home town, a man who is getting an annual salary of $13,000, with a national reputation, surrounded by wealth and fame, Homer Davenport is giving lectures in the little towns of Western Oregon to help his old-time friends. But this is characteristic of the man. The people of Silverton love Homer Davenport. He is a genuine American, who has reached the top round of the ladder of fame by a generous mixture of brains and hard labor.

LEASING OF PUBLIC LANDS.

Government land leasing is a question that will come up before the next session of congress. The agitation shows plainly the position of a large majority of the stockmen in relation to this matter. That the people generally are opposed to the leasing of the public domain there is no question. All who have made a study of this question must arrive at the same conclusion. It would practically shut out the majority of stockmen and discourage the homesteader. It would give the large syndicates a monopoly of the range. The big concerns would get just what they are looking for, that is, practical ownership of the range at reduced cost. At the meeting of the Oregon Wool Growers' Association, held in this city, President Belts in his address told the truth of the matter in the following statement: "It is only necessary to turn to the business transacted at the land offices in Eastern Oregon, during the past year, for a solution of the public domain question. The question is regulating itself. In a few years all the land will be taken up, and if not occupied by actual settlers, will fall into the hands of others for grazing purposes. As it is, all, or nearly all, the stockmen own their winter range, take care of it by seeing that it is not overstocked, and in a few years the same will be true of the summer range, extending far into the mountains."

To lease the public lands would do away with the good intent and workings of the homestead law. For the good of the country at large, the actual settler must be protected. For the grazing lands of the great Western country to fall into the hands of a few people, would be a great blockade to the development of a great many portions of the West. Only a few people are advocating the passage of the law, while the great majority are opposing it. The sentiment is too strong for the law to ever pass.

Carroll D. Wright says there have been 22,793 strikes during the past twenty years, involving a wage loss of $257,863,475 to those directly participating in them and a loss of $16,174,793 to labor organizations which rendered assistance to those thrown out of employment through them, while employers suffered a loss of $122,731,121. There were during the same period 1905 lockouts, which cost labor $52,271,296 and employers $19,927,983. The two combined represent a direct loss of $408,608,581, or nearly $23,500,000 a year. Assuming that these figures represent truly the direct loss, there must be added to it the indirect loss to all parties concerned, which no one can fairly estimate. The strike between capital and labor has thus been tremendously costly, and, considered from an economic standpoint, it suggests the necessity for some more rational method of settling these unfortunate contentions being devised and adopted to save the waste and to avoid the distress which accompanies it.—Ex.

The cat-killing of Australia is Samuel McCaughey, an Irishman, who went to Australia in 1856 with practically nothing. He did not succeed well at first, but started again with a small flock, and from year to year has added to his holdings, until now he has more sheep than any other one man in the world. He has more acres of land than sheep, and his possessions are in the best parts of Australia. One of his farms, on the Darling Downs, is 36 miles long and 40 miles wide. Altogether, he owns more than 1,000,000 acres and leases about 1,000,000 or so more.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham—Your Vegetable Compound cured me of ulceration of the womb, and getting such a complete cure I felt that the medicine had genuine merit and was well worth recommending to other sick women.

"For fifteen years I have been your friend, I have never written you before, but I have advised hundreds of women to take your medicine, in fact it is the only real reliable remedy I know of for a sick woman.

"I have not yet found a case of ovarian or womb trouble which has not been relieved or cured by the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"You have brought health to hundreds of women in Minneapolis as you have no doubt to others over the country."—MRS. ELLEN RIPLEY.

The Oregonian's handbook, just issued, is a valuable and artistic publication. It is a creditable advance agent for the Lewis and Clark centennial to be held in Portland in 1905.
