THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Listened to With Marked Respect by Congress.
GOOD RECOMMENDATIONS

Favors Reclamation of Arid Lands—Pacific Coast Interests Given Most Careful Attention.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Senate listened to the first message of President Roosevelt today and adopted a resolution directing the appointment of a committee to co-operate with a like committee from the House to consider by what token of respect and affection Congress might express the sorrow of the Nation upon the tragic death of the late President McKinley. The message was delivered soon after the Senate met. The reading occupied nearly two and a half hours and was listened to with marked respect by the Senators.

GENS FROM THE MESSAGE.

The personal equation is the most important factor in a business operation. Prosperity can never be created by law alone, though it is easy enough to destroy it by mischievous laws. If ever anarchy is triumphant, its triumph will last but for one red moment, to be succeeded for ages by the gloomy night of despotism.

The welfare of each citizen, and therefore the welfare of the aggregate of citizens which makes the Nation, must rest upon individual thrift and energy, resolution and intelligence.

The reclamation and settlement of the arid lands will enrich every portion of our country, just as the settlement of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys brought prosperity to the Atlantic states.

It is not true that the rich have grown richer the poor have grown poorer. On the contrary, before the average man, the wageworker, the farmer, the small trader, has so well off as in this country and at the present time.

Disaster to great business enterprises can never have its effects limited to the men at the top. It spreads throughout, and while it is bad for everybody, it is worse for those farthest down. The capitalist may be shorn of his luxuries; but the wageworker may be deprived of even bare necessities.

The preservation of our forests is an imperative business necessity.

The peoples of America can prosper best if left to work out their own salvation in their own way.

Combination and concentration should be, not prohibited, but supervised and within reasonable limits controlled.

We desire the peace which comes as of right to the just man armed; not the peace granted on terms of ignominy to the craven and the weakling.

The forest reserves should be set apart forever for the use and benefit of our people as a whole, and not sacrificed to the short-sighted greed of a few. The effort should be steadily to make the Indian work like any other man on his own ground. The marriage laws of the Indians should be made the same as those of the whites.

The American people must either build and maintain an adequate navy or else make up their minds definitely to accept a secondary position in international affairs, not merely in political, but in commercial matters.

No single great material which remains to be undertaken on this continent is of such consequence to the American people as the building of a canal across the Isthmus connecting North and South America.

The individual American enlisted man is probably on the whole a more formidable fighting man than the regular of any other army. Every consideration should be shown him, and in return the highest standard of usefulness should be exacted from him.

Our railways are the arteries through which the commercial lifeblood of this nation flows. Nothing could be more foolish than the enactment of legislation which would unnecessarily interfere with the development and operation of these commercial agencies.

American wageworkers work with their heads as well as their hands. Moreover, they take a keen pride in what they are doing; so that, independent of the reward, they wish to turn out a perfect job. This is the great secret of our success in competition with the labor of foreign countries.

We do not desire for the islanders merely what has elsewhere been done for tropic peoples by even the best foreign governments. We hope to do for them what has never been done for any people of the tropics—to make them fit for self government after the fashion of the really free nations.

Sheep Out of Mountains.

Stock Inspector J. E. Bean has spent the last six weeks among the shepherds of Umatilla county and reports their business in a very prosperous condition. He has found no cases of scab or other disease and the herds are in good condition for the winter. Nearly all the bands are out of the mountains or along the higher foothills ready for driving further down in case of severe weather. Grass in the south end of the county is growing and in some localities is now high enough to make good sheep pasture. The conditions are not as favorable for winter as they were last season, but no alarm is felt among the shepherds over the approaching winter.

The herds consist chiefly of ewes and lambs and the number of sheep this fall is larger than usual in this county. Last fall the total was 217,000, but a safe estimate for this fall's holdings is about 275,000. Some yearlings and a few two-year-old wethers are still in the hands of the raisers but most of these will be fed or sold soon. In this county it is reported 25,000 sheep of different kinds will be fattened for market. Buyers have difficulty in obtaining what they want for present needs. Yearling wethers, when they can be secured, sell for $2.50 or 2.75 a head. Ewes worth $3 and lambs bring $1.75 to $2.—Pendleton Tribune.

News of the Live Stock World.

The Northwest Livestock and Wool-growers' Journal.
Mannal Pedro, a sheepman of Echo, has returned from Billings, Mont., where he disposed of 800 head of bucks belonging to Charles Cunningham, the well-known breeder of this county.

A. B. Stanley, of Echo, a breeder of Shorthorn cattle, was in Pendleton last week. Mr. Stanley expects to engage still more extensively in the raising of purebred stock and give less attention to his other business interests.

C. B. Durbin, the Antelope, Oregon, breeder of bucks, shipped 312 head into Morrow and Umatilla Counties last month, mostly Delaine and Rambouillet, and successfully disposed of the same at good prices. Gale Brothers,

HOME AND CHILD

Does your horse "feel his oats"? What a difference between the grain-fed and the grass-fed horse! The first strong and full of ginger, the second flabby, weak and tired out before he begins. The feeding makes the difference. Children are not alike either. One is rosy, bright-eyed, full of life and laughter, another is pale, weak and dull. The feeding again is responsible.

Sickly children need special feeding. They don't "feel their oats". Scott's Emulsion adds just the right richness to their diet. It is like grain to the horse. The child gets new appetite and strong digestion. Scott's Emulsion is more than food. It is a strong medicine. It rouses up dull children, puts new flesh on thin ones and red blood into pale ones. It makes children grow. Scott's Emulsion makes ordinary food do its duty.

of Baker County, took 60 of the choicest of the lot home with them. The sheep were under the personal management and care of Mr. M. DeHaven, an old hand at the business.

Gale Brothers, of Baker County, were in Pendleton last month and bought 250 graded bucks. Of this number 65 were bought of C. B. Durbin, of Antelope, and the balance were selected from the Charles Cunningham stud.

W. P. Card, in a recent visit to Pendleton, called at the office of The Stock-growers Journal and gave out the information that he is making a nice thing out of his hog-raising business. He has sold 71 head during the past Summer and has nearly 200 head left, 41 of which are old ones. He resides on his farm ten miles south of Pendleton, on McKay Creek. He says he has one of the best places in the county to raise hogs at a profit.

Mr. A. Pinson has returned from a trip to Montana, whither he had gone as a representative of Mr. Charles Cunningham. Mr. Pinson was successful in disposing of a large number of head of fine bucks to breeders of sheep in that State.

Jo Gerrans has returned from San Francisco, after an absence of several months. On his return he disposed of 100 head of yearlings, which averaged him $50. These are said to have been the finest lot of 25 shipped out of Pendleton this year.

Harry Sitten has removed to North Yakima, Wash. He goes to his new home with 300 head of steers, which averaged him $35. He will feed them for the Spring market.

A combination sale of between 400 and 500 head of pure-bred sheep from various parts of the country was held at Chicago last week. The bulk of the sales were from $10 to $20 a head.

H. L. Golding, a prosperous sheep-raiser of Guadalupe County, is the first sheep-raiser in New Mexico to shear his sheep with power furnished by electricity, says Wool Markets and Sheep. He has established a camp on the Rock Island extension, two miles from Juan Pais, and is there shearing 25,000 sheep. The machine secures about three-quarters of a pound more of wool from each sheep than the old hand method. One man can shear 200 sheep a day. The clip will amount to 150,000 pounds.

Superintendent E. N. Carter, of the Government hatchery on the Clackamas has turned 2,500,000 young salmon loose within the past two weeks. They were placed in a stream leading into the Clackamas, and gradually make their way to the river. The hatchery still contains 7,500,000 eggs.

STATE NEWS.

The annual meeting of the State Fair Board will be held in Salem on Tuesday, December 10.

The Lockwood act has been upheld by the supreme court of Oregon. This law requires all political parties to hold primaries on the same day, and is copied after the Minnesota law.

Mrs. Celine C. Morris, an Oregon pioneer of 1845, died Wednesday at the home of her son, Oscar Morris, three miles southwest of Turner. She was aged 76 years, and left a large family.

Samuel W. Church, a well known resident of Portland, and a native son of Oregon, died in his residence in that city Thursday. Mr. Church was born at Harrisburg, Ore., February 13, 1837. He was a son of S. T. Church, a widely known pioneer, who died many years ago. His mother, now Mrs. J. J. Murphy of Salem, wife of the clerk of the supreme court, survives him.

pleted, and will be ready for starting operations the first of the year, says the Oregonian. In about two weeks the turbine wheel will arrive and be placed in position, when the power plant will be in readiness. The engine and boilers have been placed and tested. The plant will be more extensive and complete than was contemplated at the start, and the capital of $50,000 has been increased to $100,000.

A. G. Marshall, a prominent Oregon Pioneer of 1852, died at his home at Knox's butte, Linn county, November 25, aged 69 years. He was born in Illinois and moved from there to Iowa, and thence to Oregon. He left eight children—R. P. Marshall, secretary of the Albany Farmers' company; Mrs. Robert Huston, Ala. B. Marshall and Miss Anna B. Marshall, of and near Albany; Oscar B. Marshall of Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Robert Chambers of Portland and Mrs. Emerson Wallace of Seattle.

George G. Bingham and E. P. McCormack of Salem have escaped payment of the $5000 bond to which they were sureties for G. W. Davis, former state school land clerk. A shortage in Davis' accounts of about $30,000 was discovered last winter by legislative investigation. Action was instituted by the state against Davis' bondsmen to recover the amount of the bond, but Circuit Judge Barnett has dismissed the action on the grounds that the statute of limitation barred its hearing in the courts of the state. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.
