CAUSE OF HIS DOWNFALL.

Donned a Pink Shirt at the Bargain Counter and Everybody Quizzed Him About the Sports.

He was at his desk in the treasury department one day wearing a violently pink madras shirt. It was solid pink without a break anywhere. It is true that he had tried to hide it all under a big black neck-tie, but some of it shone through the openings of his waistcoat at the neck. Even that little was sufficient to cause a commotion, says the Washington Star. The women in the room looked shocked and the men began to confer about the matter in a mysterious manner, as if an unhealthy intruder had come into their midst. Finally one of them edged up to him and asked:

"Anything the matter at home?"

He couldn't understand the question, but he said that everything was all right.

"How much did you win or lose last night?" another one asked, after he had moved up in an awe-struck manner.

"On what?" he asked; but received no reply to his question, and his interrogator merely looked at him in a sad kind of way.

"Playing the races by wire, are you?" inquired a third one of his friends, who had curiously kept aloof from him, except to edge around and ask one of these apparently silly questions.

"I don't play the races, and you know it," he said, "and why all this foolishness among you people?"

Nothing more was said for awhile, and then a fourth friend walked around and inquired:

"Promoting pugilists now, keeping a pawnshop or living a double life?"

This question was sufficient for him to demand an explanation, and then his friends gathered and explained to him that this terrible pink shirt had caused those who knew him to fear that he was either losing his mind or had at last become a sport in the fullest sense of the word.

Then for the first time he felt the degradation that had fallen upon him. With tears in his eyes, and gathering himself together, he made this statement:

"My downfall is due to bargain days in the stores. These bargains are the curse of womankind and mankind. I saw where a certain store was selling $1.50 shirts for 39 cents. That was too tempting, and I went to see the shirts. The salesman demurred when I told him they were too red. 'They just suit your complexion,' he said, 'and they are the best bargains we ever offered. We are selling them merely because they are broken lots and because their color is a little strong. But all fashionable men wear them.' All this had nothing to do with it, however. The thought of getting $1.50 for 39 cents was too much and I bought something I didn't need or want. Then I concluded to wear the shirt just to get something out of it. I realize that I have done wrong, and I ask my friends to remember the cause of this downfall."

When he finished a great splotch of tears fell down on his table of figures on treasury appropriations and he sobbed aloud.

If you take this paper and The Weekly Oregonian you won't have to beg your news.

WHITE HOUSE CARDS

Invitations to Social Events Written by Expert Penmen.

Four of the Best Writers in Government Service Engaged to Send Out Cards for the Recent Roosevelt Receptions.

The preparation of invitations to the four great social events of the season at the white house—the receptions of the president—is a work that requires great care and the most expert penmanship. The several thousand people who receive invitations to each of the four receptions necessarily notice the attractive and beautiful penmanship, amounting almost to engraving. This work is done by some of the most noted penmen in the service of the United States government, says the Washington Star.

The cards of invitation to each reception are engraved, and contain blanks for the name of the person or persons invited. These blanks are filled in by the penmen. During the social season just closed two penmen were engaged in writing the names on the cards, while two others wrote the addresses on the envelopes containing the cards. With all four men writing beautifully is a profession, and frequently those invited to a reception would wonder whether the name was engraved or written. This work was done by J. L. McGrew, a clerk in the navy department; S. E. Sullivan, of the post office department; W. W. Mortimer, of the interior department, and E. L. Kimmel, of the treasury.

The four men, aided by two stenographers and typewriters, worked under the supervision of Thomas H. Netherland of the white house force, himself a noted expert in writing. For three or four years Mr. Netherland has had charge of the invitations to these receptions, and his work has been so satisfactory as to receive the hearty commendation of Secretary Cortelyou. Mr. Netherland occasionally does some of the writing himself, but his duty consists in seeing to the preparation and distribution of the invitations, to the care of the lists of the invited, and to the thousand and one other things that come before him. He dictates the answers to the requests for invitations and superintends the making up of the lists. The lists are kept from year to year and Mr. Netherland knows just who were invited to receptions in other years and who were refused invitations. He is a kind of walking encyclopaedia of the social and political standing and the affiliations of Washington and other people. He is so discreet that never a word escapes from his mouth about his duties and whatever he has to say is put before his chief, Secretary Cortelyou, who is responsible for the way in which the work is done.

The work of writing the invitations is frequently begun weeks ahead of the time fixed. Certain classes of people are invited to every reception, and their invitations can be written and put aside ready for delivery when others are made out.

The handwriting experts are not usually fast penmen. Swiftness and beauty of writing are seldom found together, and so the experts take time in affixing the names of society people to the cards and envelopes. All of the four men engaged the last season were assigned from other departments, and Mr. Netherland is the only one belonging permanently on the white house rolls.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

Woman Passenger Who Expected a Great Deal from a Common Street Car Conductor.

"This may be a strange world all right," remarked a conductor of the Georgetown and Tenleytown railroad to a Washington Star reporter recently, "but I incline to the theory that the old globe is not at all unusual—'tis the folks who move about its surface that constitute the strange part of the situation. And believe me when I assert that we who personally conduct these street railway tours come in contact with at least 99 per cent. of the strange ones."

"What's the latest?" inquired the reporter, who has observed a few queer people on street cars himself.

"The latest was a woman who should have known better, and who got off at Tenleytown on my last trip out," explained the conductor. "Here we are in the midst of a heavy snowstorm and nobody in existence is able to tell whether this car will get to the top of the next hill or slide back to Georgetown. Now what do you think that woman said to me? Remarked that she was five minutes late in getting to her office this morning and demanded that I should tell her if the cars would be late to-morrow, and if so, exactly to what extent."

"And what did you reply?"

"I informed her in a tone that everybody in the car could hear that if I was the chief of the weather bureau or possessed the power to read the future I wouldn't be registering fares and listening to fool questions. She gave a sniff that was almost a snort as she got off, for all the passengers were laughing."

Suspicious.

GOOD LIVING

Quite often results in bad health, because what is termed "good living" is usually the gratification of the palate without reference to the nutrition of the body. When the good liver is a business man and rises from a full meal to plunge at once into work requiring mental effort the result is almost sure to be disastrous, because digestion draws upon the same nervous forces which are employed in thought. In time the stomach becomes diseased, the processes of digestion and nutrition are imperfectly performed and there is a physical breakdown.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates the effete poisonous matter which originates in the system as a consequence of imperfect digestion. It gives sound health to the whole body.

"I wish to say to the world that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Ellen E. Bacon, of Shutesbury, Franklin Co., Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any real benefit. In September, 1896, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced in September, 1897, to take Dr. Pierce's medicine, and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,
