this notwithstanding the fact that pioneers and old soldiers are rapidly dying off. The explanation of this seemingly incongruous state of affairs is simple. Coaxed from their retirement by sympathy and appreciation, our venerable state-builders appear in increasing numbers in public year after year. While their numbers are in reality decreasing somewhat rapidly, the ranks of the association are fuller, than ever before. Many pioneers with a little timely assistance have found themselves of late. Thus is the apparent increase in their numbers, as shown by the attendance upon the annual reunion, accounted for .- Oregonian.

The recent wool sales in Heppper have demonstrated two things. First, that the sealed bid method of selling woel as adopted by the Oregon Wool Growers Association wine is a great success, and second that it was worth which was all that Louise, Emit E.
