The sheep camp and outfit were burned, the hobbles and bell removed from the horses and the horses driven away.—Grant County News.

Hay harvest is here and quite a lot of the first crop of alfalfa has already been cut. Generally speaking, the yield is lighter than usual, and owing to the fact that many fields along Willow creek were injured by the flood, the hay crop this season in Morrow county will be considerably below the average. With the stockmen this is a serious question, for most of the old hay was fed out last winter and the feed supply will undoubtedly be short.
