

A CULINARY COLLECTION.

Some New Recipes for Dishes That Are Palatable and Seasonable.

To make coconut pudding, take three ounces of butter, one-half pound grated coconut, one cupful and a half of stale sponge cakes crumbled fine, three ounces sugar, one large cupful of milk, six eggs, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla or rose-water, says the New York Post. Cream the butter and sugar, and add the beaten yolks; when these are well mixed put in the coconut; stir well before adding the milk, cake crumbs, and flavoring; lastly, add the whites of three eggs. Pour the mixture into a pie dish—which should not be quite full—and bake for half an hour. At the end of this time whip the other whites to a very stiff froth, with three tablespoonfuls of white sugar, and flavor with vanilla. Pile this in large spoonfuls on the pudding, and close the oven till it is slightly brown. For all meringues the oven should be only moderately hot, or they will burn. These quantities are sufficient for a large pudding.

For gooseberry pudding, which is also a delicious dessert for this season, take one pint of gooseberries, one teacupful of milk, one-half teacupful sugar, one tablespoonful of butter (melted), toasted bread. Stew the gooseberries gently in a little water for about ten minutes. Cut some slices of bread, trim off the crust, and toast it to a slight brown. Dip each slice, while hot, into the milk, and spread it with the melted butter. Cover the bottom of the dish with them; next put a layer of gooseberries, sprinkled well with sugar, and so on, till the dish is full. Cover closely, and steam in a moderate oven for 20 or 25 minutes; then remove the cover, and let it brown before serving. Serve with good pudding sauce, if liked.

Those persons who have never tried whirled eggs will find the following receipt worth experimenting with: Take six eggs, one quart boiling water, some thin slices of buttered toast, pepper and salt to taste, a tablespoonful of butter. Put the water, slightly salted, in a saucepan over the fire, and keep it at a fast boil. Stir with a wooden spoon or ladle in one direction until it whirled rapidly. Break the eggs, one at a time, into a cup, and drop each carefully into the center or vortex of the boiling whirlpool, which must be kept in rapid motion until the egg is a soft, round ball. Take it out carefully with a perforated spoon, and put it on a slice of buttered toast laid upon a hot dish. Put a bit of butter on the top, set the dish in the oven to keep it warm, and proceed in the same way with each egg, having but one at a time in the saucepan. When all are done, dust lightly with salt and pepper, and send up hot.

CHOOSING BABY'S PICTURE.

A Performance in Which the Photographer Played an Undesirable Part.

A young photographer, when asked what sort of subjects presented the greatest difficulties to him, replied, without a moment's hesitation:

"Babies. I don't mean the babies themselves," he added; "it is not so hard to get what I consider satisfactory negatives of them. It's the relatives that make all the trouble."

"For instance," he continued, "I took photographs of a little ten-month-old fellow the other day in six different positions. Yesterday I sent the proofs to his mother, and to-day she brought them in."

"I'm sorry," she said, "without any obvious grief, but none of these negatives will do."

"Not one of the six?" I inquired, though I was prepared for what was to follow.

"No," she said, "I'm afraid not. You see, I like this one very well, though, of course, it doesn't really do baby justice; but his Aunt Ellen says it's an absolute caricature of the dear little fellow! The one she likes I don't care for at all; and his papa says he never would know for whom it was intended. It looks so cross, and baby is such a sunshiny child! The one he likes, this smiling one, I shouldn't consider for a moment, for it makes the baby's mouth look so much larger than it really is."

"His grandmother chose that one, but, as Cousin Fannie said, there's a very queer look to the child's eyes in it—very queer! However, she likes sober one! You ought to have heard the one where he's almost crying—that baby's grandfather when she said she liked it. He really decided the thing, for what he said seemed so sensible! He asked me why I didn't have some more taken, and see if there wouldn't be at least one that would really look like baby. Now, when can he sit again? It's hard for me to spare the time, but, you see, it's the only thing to be done!"

Not Named in the Will.

When Duchenois, the great French actress, died some one met an old man who had been her intimate friend and who was apparently crushed with sorrow. Kindly meant professions of sympathy and consolation failed to cheer him. "For," said he, "it is not so much her loss which troubles me as her base ingratitude. Can you credit it? She left me nothing in her will, and yet I dined with her at her own house three times a week regularly for 30 years."

HOUSEHOLD TALKS.

Dainty Dishes That Are Delightful on a Hot Day—May Be Made at Any Time of the Day.

A housekeeper suggests the following dishes for a cold luncheon on a hot day, says the New York Tribune. With such a bill of fare the meal may be prepared long before the guests arrive: Sandwiches spread with chopped meat, veal loaf, deviled eggs, vegetable salad, cottage cheese, gelatin with cream, custard or ice cream and angel cake. Olives and radishes may accompany both courses.

Maple fudge is liked better by many persons than chocolate. Put into a saucepan one-half cupful of granulated sugar, 1½ cupfuls of scraped maple sugar and a cupful of milk. When the sugar's melted and the mixture hot add two tablespoonfuls of butter and boil for 20 minutes. When it hardens in cold water, it is done. Upon removing it from the fire add a teaspoonful of vanilla. Begin to beat as soon as it comes from the fire. When it shows signs of granulation turn into buttered, shallow tins, and when cool enough mark into squares. Two tablespoonfuls of grated coconut and a cupful of walnut or hickorynuts may be added, if they are wanted, with the vanilla.

Mint bags for the linen closet are liked by some persons. Put into little silk bags a mixture made of a pound of dried lavender, an ounce of thyme, an ounce of mint, an ounce of ground cloves and caraway seeds and a tablespoonful of dry salt.

A woman who has tried it avers that a watermelon may be kept for any length of time by varnishing its entire surface, leaving no spot untouched and open to the air.

Panned tomatoes are an excellent accompaniment for a roast of lamb or veal. Peel and cut in two six plump tomatoes. Put them in a pan with a tablespoonful of melted butter, and cook slowly on top of the stove for ten minutes. Then brown in the oven. Arrange the tomatoes on a hot plate and serve with a sauce made in the pan in which they cooked. For the sauce put another tablespoonful of butter into the pan, and when it has melted cook in it for four minutes two tablespoonfuls of flour, stirring it constantly. Then add two cupfuls of milk, salt and pepper, and turn it over the tomatoes.

Some housekeepers vary the flavor of potato salad by boiling the potatoes for it in stock, or, if it is more convenient, in the soup kettle.

Dainty and seasonable sandwiches may be made of thin slices of brown bread with mayonnaise and separated by a thin slice of a tart apple.

Stewed okra is one of the dinner possibilities. Select the small green pods, and remove the stems and discolored tips. Put into boiling salted water and cook until tender. It will take about half an hour. Then drain; add a heaping tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of vinegar, and season with pepper and salt. Simmer until the butter is absorbed, and serve hot.

Experiments in canning peas reported in a government bulletin show that heating under pressure to secure a higher temperature than the ordinary boiling point, 212 degrees Fahrenheit, is necessary to insure keeping. Where a temperature of 242 degrees Fahrenheit was maintained for about 30 minutes very few swollen cans resulted; at 222 degrees a much larger number spoiled. This shows that it is hardly wise for the average housekeeper to attempt to can any of the fruits and vegetables most liable to spoil.

A negro was sick and a friendly colored brother came in to see him and asked what was the cause of his illness. The darky replied: "I's feelin' poorly. My mule done gone and got sick and I went to de boss doctor and he tole me what to do. He tole me to git er tin tube an' put de tube in de mule's mouth and blow de medersin down his front. I got everything ready to blow, but de mule blowed fuss, and I tole yer brudder, dat ar mule medersin was too much for dis here nigger."

How to Save

THE way to make a beginning is to begin. The way to accumulate a fortune is to make a start.

The Bank of Heppner accepts deposits of any amount. A single dollar is enough to begin. And, as in everything else, the beginning is the important point. Once the saving habit is formed the rest is easy.

Money at 4 per cent. interest accumulates rapidly, and when that interest is allowed to stand and is compounded every six months, it becomes a friend that you can tie to—a silent partner that keeps right on working for you day and night, three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

Banking

The Bank of Heppner asks and will appreciate the patronage of depositors from every walk of life; the wage earner, whose thrift prompts him to save a little out of his income each week; the farmer, whose labors have proved profitable; the business man, to whom the service of a strong banking institution is always valuable, and the guardian, administrator, executor or trustee with trust funds waiting an investment—all are invited to avail themselves of the security an account in this bank affords. Each depositor, be his account large or small, will be accorded courteous, painstaking treatment, and will be accommodated in every way consistent with prudent banking.
