VALUABLE BULL SHOT.

Blooded Animal Belonging to Ben Swaggart Killed.

B. F. Swaggart, the stockman, sends by letter the following to the Gazette: "My fine Red Polled bull was shot to death within two miles of my place. In removing the hide which weighed over 100 pounds, I saved several balls, about .38-Caliber revolver or rifle balls. The animal was shot at least five times. I was hunting the animal to take home and found that he had just died, and as it had rained the day before the tracks showed plainly. I took a man with me and went on the back track and found that a horse had been following him and that he had been driven one-half mile before being shot to death and found to my entire satisfaction who did the shooting. I shall do all in my power and spare no means to see if the law can be brought to bear on the party that would commit such a wanton and brutal act. It is a well known fact that I go at once or send and remove any of my stock on notice of them bothering any of my neighbors, and there was no reason for the killing of this animal except for revenge.

B. F. SWAGGART.

Exceptional Ability.

The Georgia Harper Company is incomparably one of the best dramatic organizations that ever visited Heppner. The Gazette feels that it is hazardous nothing in making so flattering a comment. Even the professional "knocker" must yield the laurel to a combination of such merit as to play upon his emotions like a deft musician upon the strings of his instrument. The conspicuous ability of Miss Harper is shown quite as much in the little things as in the heavier emotions. An actress who can concentrate the attention of a large audience for several minutes in such a trifling matter as rolling a cigarette can with justice certainly lay claim to a high degree of merit. Indeed in the line of histrionic attainment it is the finish of detail in these apparent trifles that spell success or failure to many an enthusiastic devotee of the footlights. She charms audiences as well by such a rendition of commonplaces, for instance, as falls to the character of "Bessie" in "The Ride for Life" ("In Old Virginia"), as in her heavier roles. It was such indeed as to give rich promise that in such a test character as "Camille," to be given tonight, she will prove to be fully up to the expectations of her admirers. Miss Harper's costumes are also infinite in variety and elegance. Among her gowns are several made by Worth, an assertion which Miss Harper is glad to prove to any doubter by a standing invitation to investigate. She has strong support throughout. The company is well balanced and in the theatrical parlance there is not a "stick" in it. It is with the greatest confidence the Gazette assures the theatre-going public that they assume no risk in witnessing either of the three great plays which will be presented the remainder of this week.

Sheep Market Improving.

The sheep market is showing some activity and improvement.

Gus French, of this city, reports the best sale of the season so far. Last Saturday he sold a band of yearling wethers to Paul Hisler for $2.15 per head. Mr. French stated that he was not anxious to sell them at this price but was a little short of range.

N. S. Whalston made quite a large purchase in the Monument country in Grant county, buying 4000 head of mixed lambs for $1.55 per head. The sheep were bought from Wm. Sterret, Walter Davis and Emil Scharf.

The Steel Range Grafters are Here.

Residents of Pendleton and Umatilla county are now being harrassed by three or four steel range peddlers who have lately come into the country.

Under pretense of selling a good range at a "dirt cheap" price on easy terms, these peddlers sell an article that is inferior in every way to goods handled by home merchants, they take notes for the stoves sold, immediately sell the note to the local bank and leave the country, taking out good money that should be spent with local merchants.

Local merchants are residents here and help support the county and city governments, while these transient peddlers contribute nothing to the government. Local merchants sell a better article for less money on better terms and people should not be deceived by the plea that because these stoves are sold by peddlers that they are better or cheaper than the home article. Don't patronize a peddler as long as a home merchant carries what you need.—Pendleton E. O.

I have for sale twenty head of Merino bucks at $5.00 per head.
G. W. FRENCH.

The wool season of 1905 has opened in northern Montana with the purchase of the L. D. Pugsley clip by C. H. Merrill at 17½ cents. The clip will probably amount to 110,000 pounds. Mr. Merrill has also contracted to buy the next year's wool clip from an outfit of about 1,700 lambs near Chinook at 18 cents, and has secured the clip from about 2,000 head of ewes at Winona, Minn., at 16 cents, the latter owned by Albert Miller and to be sheared in March.

Ernest Livingston Tiffany will lecture at the M. E. church, South, Friday evening, October 14, on Christian Citizenship.

Friends of R. F. Hynd state that he was recently married in Scotland to Miss Brown. Miss Brown visited in Heppner some time ago.

"Camille" Tonight.

Do not fail to see "Camille" tonight. The Harper Company especially prides themselves on this performance, having played it exclusively last season at one-night stands from Chicago to San Francisco. Miss Harper's gowns are bewildering creations of beauty and value. The entire cast shows up to the greatest advantage in this great play and old-time favorite.

Dyspepsia

What's the use of a good cook if there's a bad stomach—a stomach too weak properly to digest what is taken into it?

The owner of such a stomach experiences distress after eating, nausea between meals, and is troubled with belching and fits of nervous headache—his dyspeptic and miserable.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and have suffered almost everything. I have tried many different remedies, but could get no relief until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the use of this medicine I could eat without distress, and today I am as well as ever, but I always keep Hood's Sarsaparilla on hand." Mrs. J. A. CROWELL, Canajoharie, N. Y.
