The bunco business is said to be a prosperous recreation in Portland nowadays. The fraternity is well represented.

Not a single neck of a mazama has been broken this year nor have any of the progressive hunters shot any one for deer so far this season. Strange but true.

Walter L. Tooze is one of the active congressional candidates from the first district. Mr. Tooze is ambitious and able and would represent his district well. His strength in Marion county is growing.

At a bargain sale at a department store in Pittsburg 2,500 women made such a rush for the bargains that many of them were badly injured in the stampede. The sale was well advertised which accounts for the rush.

The rich Wallowa country is now elated over the prospects of a railroad. The O. R. & N. Co. and a company known as the Wallowa Valley Railroad Company are now both negotiating for right of way. There is lots of talk about the road, but this has been the trouble with former railroad building. Our great undeveloped territory is placarded with promises.

The fact that W. W. Cotton has declined the appointment of federal judge for the district of Oregon may result in some benefit to the state if rumors are true. It is said that the attorney has been given much more latitude in the discharge of his duties as head legal adviser which will have a decided influence on the future railroad policy of the state. His policy always has been liberal and progressive in opposition to the dog in the manger attitude of the higher officials which has predominated in the past.

In speaking of the federal judgeship appointment the Oregonian says: "What part Mr. Heney will take in the matter is not yet manifest. His veto to any man's appointment, it is generally believed, would hold with the administration and kill off that man's candidacy. Had he had cause to send in a veto against Mr. Cotton, the latter man would probably not have been chosen, for the president undoubtedly has full confidence in Mr. Heney's judgment."

Oh, who is Mr. Heney,
The greatest in the land
Who holds federal judgeships
In the palm of his hand.
Why he controls most of the business

Of poor old Uncle Sam
This same Mr. Heney,
The great I AM.
When it comes to Oregon's delegation,

Well, I should say n't
For in the poor old state, Mr.
Heney is IT.

There is 24 feet of water in the shallowest part of the Columbia river bar. It is estimated by government engineers that in another year the water at the shallowest place will be increased to a depth of 30 feet owing to the influence of jetty work which produces a greater current than that of the sea taking out the accumulation of sand and gravel to the ocean. Before the construction of the jetty the sea current was greater than that of the river leaving deposits which causes the bar. A depth of 30 feet will allow the biggest freighters to cross the bar without waiting for high tide. Improvement of this great water highway both at the mouth and on the upper river is of the greatest importance to the people of the Northwest.

HOOD RIVER'S PROSPERITY.

One hundred and eight cars of strawberries were shipped out of Hood River this season and what amounted to 71 cars were shipped out by express. In all there were shipped 114,040 cases which, at an average price of $1.75 case, yielded a return very closely approximating $200,000.

The results could not fail to be highly satisfactory to all concerned even though the crop was shorter than usual. Pretty soon the apple crop will be receiving the attention lately accorded the strawberry crop and then there will pour in upon Hood River another golden stream to make its people prosperous and its products famous.

Hood River is a section of the state of which all Oregonians have reason to be proud. — Portland Journal.

Good for Hood River. Such reports are gratifying to the people of the whole state of Oregon. The fact that Hood River has sold $200,000 worth of strawberries and will have a good apple crop will be known all over the country, and why. Simply because the people there are enterprising and proud of their productive valley and are letting the outside world know all about it. The consequences are that the Hood River valley is becoming thickly populated and the town of Hood River is growing and prosperous.

The Hood River spirit comes out with an interesting story. They pin it on the lapels of their coats. They put it on banners. They placard every car that leaves the town. They get in the newspapers. The people pull together. Their enterprise and the publicity that they give to their prosperity impresses the stranger.

A little comparison might make Heppner people think a little. The Hood River valley today probably has as much population as the entire county of Morrow. The town of Hood River has at least one-third greater population than Heppner.

Heppner this season has shipped out and sold $500,000 worth of wool. Who saw a single car placarded telling anything about it. On the long trip East how many people knew anything about these cars. Heppner wool brought $300,000 more than Hood River strawberries and wool money is just as good as strawberry money. We shipped $175,000 worth of sheep. How many heard about this, not to say anything about our horses and cattle which run into the thousands.

Then we have the advantage of a double shot, the same as Hood River. While Hood River is marketing her big apple crop this fall we will be selling a wheat crop that will make the fruit value insignificant indeed.

How will Hood River's bank deposits if the town is larger, compare with Heppner. Heppner has two strong banks. The last sworn statement of the First National showed deposits of almost $700,000.

We need a color bearer. We ought to be proud of our town. This would make other people proud of us. What is the matter with Heppner anyway. Prosperity is sticking out in every business house, it is written on every farmer's face. Come to Morrow county and help us enjoy it.

Closed For Season.

Operations ceased at the Pendleton scouring mill Friday afternoon. The sorters concluded their work Saturday, and many of them have left town. The remaining scoured wool will be baled by this evening and will be shipped at once to Boston. Wool in the grease has all been graded, work in that department having been finished today at noon.

The tubs have been at work washing the stained or discolored wool that is always left for the clean-up, and it is believed that this will all be scoured by tomorrow. So far this week there have been five cars of grease and two of washed wool sent to the eastern houses and about the same amount will be sent with the final delivery.

During the past season 2,500,000 pounds of wool have been sorted and placed in the tubs for cleaning, and of this amount 600,000 pounds of the finest kind of fleece wool has resulted. It will be seen that there is a loss of about 75 per cent from sand, tar, grease and other foreign materials in the wool as it comes from the sheep's back.

According to the figures of the management of the scouring mills wool approximating $380,000 has been handled by the scouring mill during the past year, to say nothing of the value of the grease wool that has been graded and sent to The Dalles and to Boston for scouring. It has been figured out that the handling of this wool in this section of the state has resulted in leaving about $375,000 in circulation among all concerned. The weekly pay roll at the local scouring mill has been $200 per week and this continued during the season.—E. Oregonian.

Wool Sold at Record Price.

Butte, July 26.—A Miner special from Great Falls says that a wool clip of fifty thousand pounds was sold this afternoon at 33 cents. This is the record price for the northwest, the nearest approach to the figure being 26 cents.
