The school children are in their glory, and are taking full advantage of the joy and freedom that the summer vacation affords.

Miss Riddle left Monday for her home at Riddle Oregon. Miss Riddle has accepted a position in the Heppner schools and will be with us again next year.

Morrow county is not the only place where high water occasionally gets out of the creek banks. All things considered, we are living in one of the safest and most prosperous sections of the United States.

The able corps of teachers of the Heppner schools have been re-elected to the same positions for next year. So far none have resigned. The patrons of the school are well pleased with the action of the board of directors in this matter.

Mr. Maxwell, of Walla Walla, who is establishing a creamery at Lexington, was up to the city the first of the week, selling stock in the new enterprise. We welcome these new industries to Morrow county.

The recent heavy rain storm has been of great benefit to farmers all over the county, and especially to those in the dryer district. Crops will be greatly helped and much grain that was considered lost will now come out and be well worth cutting.

The recent soaking rains have brought a smile to the farmer's face that will not wear off. In 1897 the conditions were similar to this year. An early drouth made things look decidedly blue, but heavy showers set in and the result was a bumper crop. Morrow county will reap a bountiful harvest the coming fall.

Sheepmen have suffered losses from the storm. The long cold rain coming as it did so soon after shearing caused sheep to chill and heavy losses have been reported from several bands. At this writing the reports have not been confirmed and hope is entertained that the losses are not as great as has been reported.
