Jim McGee came down from the mountains the first of the week. He says that there will be a good crop of huckleberries and that the berries are now ripening. The mountains are now cool and pleasant and a number of Heppner people are enjoying the ozone of the high altitudes.

One of the most attractive and best written advertisements that has appeared in the Gazette for a long time is that of the Portland Business College, printed elsewhere in this issue. The heading is strong and artistic, the wording clean-cut and impressive. Send for the catalogue mentioned in the advertisement. It is a beautiful production that tells all about the school and its splendid work. No educational institution in the Northwest is better known than the Portland Business College. Its principal, Prof. A. P. Armstrong, has been engaged in school work all his life, and has an enviable reputation as an educator. He knows the requirements of employers of office help, and can prepare any willing student to meet them.

NATURE'S CRUELTY.

The Ichneumon Fly Makes Its Natural Enemy Serve Its Purpose.
The ichneumon fly of Ceylon is the natural enemy of the spider. This insect is green in color, and in form resembles a wasp with a marvelously thin waist. It makes its nest of well-worked clay and then goes on a hunting expedition. Its victims are invariably spiders of various kinds, but all are subject to the same mode of treatment. A scientific sting injects some poison which effectually paralyzes the luckless spider, which is then carried off to the nest and there fastened with a dab of moist clay. Another and another victim is brought to this chamber of horrors. Then the prescient mother ichneumon fly proceeds to deposit her eggs, one in the body of each spider, which can just move its legs in a vague, aimless manner, but can offer no resistance.
This done, the fly returns to her work as a mason. She prepares more clay and builds up the entrance to this ghastly cell. Then she commences a new cell, which she furnishes in like manner and then closes; then she adds yet another cell and so proceeds until her store of eggs are all provided for, and her task in life being accomplished, she dies, leaving her evil brood to hatch at leisure. In due time these horrid little maggots come to life and find themselves cradled in a larder of fresh meat. Each poor spider is still alive, and his juices afford nutriment for the ichneumon grub till it is ready to pass in the chrysalis stage, thence to emerge as a winged fly fully prepared to carry out the traditions of its ancestors with regard to spiders.

ANTIQUITY OF FISHING.

The Art of Angling is as Old as the Human Race.
The art of angling no doubt had its origin in man's necessities. The earliest record of mankind makes reference to the taking of fish for food. There are frequent allusions to it in the Bible. Job, in the oldest book of all, says: "Canst thou draw out a leviathan with a hook or his tongue with a cord which thou lettest down? Canst thou put a hook in his nose?" Homer, in the "Iliad," speaks of fishing in these lines: As bearing death in the fallacious bait, From the best angle sinks the leaden weight.

And it is recorded in the "Odyssey": As when the angler, his long rod in hand, On a projecting rock assumes his stand, Casts to the ferry fry the baited snare, Then flings the wriggling captives in the air.

The Romans, Greeks and other races of early days around the Mediterranean practiced the art of angling. Plutarch tells of a prank played by the fair Egyptian, Cleopatra, while out fishing with Antony. "They wagered on their angling, and her divers did hang a salt fish on his hook, which he with fervor drew up."

The ruined walls of Herculaneum and Pompeii abound in frescoes of fishermen. All along the track of history are found traces of this gentle recreation, showing the gradual improvement from the hook of bone and rude equipment of the cave man to the elegant accessories and belongings of the modern angler.

Apple Cure For Drunkards.
"For ten years," said a physician, "I have advocated apples as a cure for drunkenness. In that time I have tried the apple cure on some forty or fifty drunkards, and my success has been most gratifying."

"Let any man afflicted with the love of drink eat three or more apples daily, and the horrible craving will gradually leave him. The cure will be greatly helped along if he also smokes as little as possible."

"I know a woman who cured a drunken husband without his knowledge by keeping always a plentiful supply of good apples on the dining table. The man ate these apples and finally stopped drinking altogether."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Practical Eye Wash.
A little salt and water used as an eye wash will cleanse and strengthen inflamed lashes and rest tired eyes. It is safe to use it at any time that irritation is felt. A New York surgeon prescribes the ocean for bad eyes, particularly young eyes. "Get off," he says, "whenever you can and let the salt and the sea breeze wash and blow around your eyes. It will do them good. It will dislodge the germs of disease, for the air breathed by half the world is germ laden, and sore eyes are more quickly caught than small-pox and more fatal. It will brighten and strengthen them and prolong their beauty and usefulness."

FIRST STRIKE ON RECORD.

It Occurred in Rome and Took Place in the Year 300 B. C.
Livy in his famous book, "The Annals," 8, 20, relates in the following suggestive words the story of a singular strike which occurred in Rome in the year 300 B. C. and was probably the first strike ever known:
That year occurred an event little worthy of being related and which I would pass in silence had it not appeared as involving religion. The flute players, dissatisfied because the latest censors had forbidden them to take part in the banquet in Jupiter's temple, according to the ancient custom, withdrew, every one of them, to Tibur, so that nobody was left at Rome to play during the sacrifices. This incident shocked the religious sentiment of the senate, and the senators sent messengers to invite the inhabitants of Tibur to make every effort in order that the players should be restored to the Romans. The Tiburtines, having promised not to neglect anything necessary for that purpose, caused the flute players to come to the place where the senate met and exhorted them to go back to Rome. Seeing that they could not prevail upon them to do so, they employed a stratagem in keeping with their character.
On a day of festival under pretext that music would increase the joy of the feast every citizen invited the flute players individually to his house, and wine, of which people of that profession are usually fond, was given to them in such quantities that they fell into a deep sleep. They were then thrown into wagons and transported to Rome. They only became aware of what had happened on the day after, when dawn surprised them lying on the carts, which had been left in the forum. A large crowd had assembled, and they were induced to promise that they would remain at Rome. The right of attending the banquets was restored to these flute players.

I will open a fruit and vegetable store in the Scribner restaurant building, July 1st. Will keep ice cream, candies, nuts, tropical fruits, cigars and tobacco, berries, fruits, jams and jellies, in Mason jars, put up by ourselves.

Rid Yourself of Unnecessary Burdens.

Don't bear unnecessary burdens. Burdens of a bad back are unnecessary.

Get rid of them. Doan's Kidney Pills cure bad backs. Cure lame, weak and aching backs. Cure every form of kidney ills. Lots of local endorsement to prove this.

C. Sutton, of 823 First St., Albany, Oregon, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have a wonderful healing power in cases of kidney trouble and backache. I know of no other remedy so prompt and effective. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at a drug store, and through using same found complete relief from a dull aching in the back that had been almost continual. They regulated the kidney secretions to a normal condition and added strength and tone. It is a pleasure to let other sufferers know of this remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's, and take no other.
