"It must be that there are to be some strange exercises at Astoria on July fourth, for the Astorian says: Astoria proposes to celebrate the day that never grows old in America with due reverence and acclaim and hand down a new record in the manner of its observance. The deathless theme it stands for is just as vivid and potent as it was 132 years ago and inspires the same devout recognition it has had year by year, since the immortal cause of it all took place.
