School Notes.

Last week, the writer visited the schools in five districts, Nos. 26, 27, 18, 23, and 50.

In No. 26, C. C. Calavan is the teacher. The school building is new. The furniture is up-to-date. The school is supplied with a globe, dictionary, set of maps, and set of charts. The blackboard is fair, and there is a fair amount of black board space. There are good shades for nearly all of the windows. The enrollment is 26. The pupils seem to be interested in their work.

Mr. J. E. Waid teaches in No. 27. He has an enrollment of 23. The school building is rather old and needs repairing. However, the teacher and pupils gave a "Pic social," last Friday evening, for the purpose of raising funds for providing a new floor and some new desks. The school has a good encyclopedic dictionary, a planetarium, and several library books. There is need of more blackboard, and the windows should have shades provided. The walls are decorated with some appropriate pictures. The teacher and pupils are enthusiastic in their work. I was greatly pleased with the singing at the opening of school.

Miss Grace Cypert teaches in No. 18. Only eight pupils are in attendance. The school building is new and well furnished, but as the pupils at present are all at one side of the district, the school is being held in the residence of Mr. Jos. Atkinson. The school is provided with an organ, which is a help both in the singing and the marching.

In No. 23, Miss Bella Miller is the teacher. This school is small, but the teacher and pupils are enthusiastic in their work. The enrollment is 12. The school building is new. It should be painted. More blackboard should be provided. There are good shades for all the windows. The school has a globe, dictionary, anatomical charts, and map of the United States. Several neat pictures are upon the walls. A wash basin and towels are provided. A new cistern has been recently constructed so as to have a supply of water for the school. The pupils of this school seem to be greatly interested in the use of the dictionary. They are also making good use of the library books.

Mrs. R. B. Rice teaches in No. 50. The school building has recently been repaired and repainted inside, the expense being met by the proceeds from a supper given by the teacher and pupils. The school is provided with a fair blackboard, a dictionary, a good set of maps, a flag, mirror, wash-basin, and good shades. An excellent bookcase has been placed in the room for the library books. The walls are tastily decorated. The pupils are diligent and orderly in their work, and the teacher enjoys the confidence of every pupil. The people of this district are justly proud of their school.

The library books are now ready for distribution. As the full amount of the fund was expended for the books, there is no money to pay for transportation of the books to the
