A CONCRETE BOAT.

One of the New Things That Can Be Manufactured of Stone.

The time has arrived when the simile "sinking like a stone to the bottom" must be abandoned. For eleven years, Daniel R. Banks, a local engineer, in charge of the Baltimore high pressure water service, has been sailing a two-masted schooner, 65 feet long, 18 feet beam, drawing 14 feet, the hull of which is stone. That is to say, that as concrete buildings are now made, so was the hull of his boat. He made a skeleton framework, reinforced it with light steel rods, and poured the concrete into the spaces. The result is now a hardened stone hull. Mr. Banks reasoned that if a steel boat would float and make headway a stone boat would do the same, and it has.

All this was brought out under the information that certain English boat-builders were testing concrete in the construction of sailing vessels. The application of concrete to house building long ago passed the experimental stage. It is growing into a wider and wider use rapidly. In the country districts concrete is taking place of lumber—in the cities, the place of brick and stone. Now it has been demonstrated that it will float, and it may not be long before steel will find a competitor in the construction of vessels, in concrete that will dispose it from popular use. It is some thing to think about.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Summons.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon for Morrow County.
Everett Sink, Plaintiff, vs. Wm. N. Froebe, H. F. French, B. T. Chamberlain, F. H. Meador, and Matthew Ball, Defendants.
T. B. T. Chamberlain, one of the above named defendants.

In the Name of The State of Oregon, you are hereby commanded and required to be and appear in the above entitled court on or before six weeks from the first publication of this summons, to-wit on or before the eighteenth day of March, 1909, then and there to answer the complaint of plaintiff filed herein against you and, if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, the above named plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for in his complaint, to-wit: For a decree of the above entitled court foreclosing that certain mortgage made and executed by Wm. N. Froebe to Everett Sink on the 12th day of November, 1906, to secure the payment of the sum of $8900 together with interest on said sum at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from said 12th day of November 1906, which said mortgage was given upon the North half of Section 10, all of Section 10 and the North half of Section 21, all in Township 2 South of Range 23 East of the Willamette Meridian in Morrow County, Oregon, and which said mortgage was duly recorded in Volume O, page 518 of the Records of Mortgages of Morrow County, Oregon; that the premises above described be sold in the manner provided by law and that the proceeds of said sale be applied in payment of the amount secured by said mortgage, to-wit the said sum of $8900 with interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from November 12, 1906; the further sum of $1000 attorney fees and plaintiff's costs and disbursements made and expended in the above entitled suit, including accruing costs and expenses of such sale and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem equitable and just.

This summons is served upon you by order of the Hon. C. C. Patterson, County Judge of Morrow County, Oregon, duly made and entered on the 4th day of February, 1909, by publication thereof in the OREGONIAN, a weekly newspaper of general circulation published at Heppner in Morrow County, Oregon, for six consecutive weeks, the date of the first publication of this summons being February 4, 1909 and the date of the last publication of this summons being March 18, 1909.

Poor Richard's Almanac.

Dr. Franklin himself in one of the last numbers of the almanac gathered together all the best sayings of Poor Richard, which for twenty-five years had amused and edified the country. These sayings are in constant use at this day. For example, "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise;" "Drive thy business—let it not drive thee;" "Help hands, for I have no lands;" "No gains without pains;" "Constant dropping wears away stones;" "Three removes are as bad as a fire;" "He that by the plow would thrive must himself either hold or drive;" "A fat kitchen makes a lean will;" "Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other." It was such homely maxims as these inserted in all the little gaps of the almanac that made it so popular. Franklin said he sometimes sold 10,000 copies in a year, a wonderful sale for that day. The first number of Poor Richard's Almanac appeared in 1732.

Not Well to Butt In.

"After the crash," imparted the first hospital surgeon to the second, "I ran over to where it lay on the pavement, and when I raised it up I saw at once that its ribs were smashed, while a gaping hole was torn in its"— "Pardon me, doctor," broke in the medical student, who had caught these words as he was about to pass by into the consumptive ward, "but if you have no objections I'd like to take a few notes on that accident case." He pulled his notebook from his pocket. "Was the case a child?" "No," the surgeon informed him to his embarrassment. "I was speaking of my umbrella."—Judge.

A Needed Change.

The navy department once received from the commander in chief of the fleet an official communication relative to certain changes recommended by him to be made in the uniform shirt of the enlisted men. In accordance with custom this letter was forwarded to various officials for comment or expression of opinion, the remarks of each officer being appended on an indorsement slip. Each indorsement introduces the subject matter of the letter in a brief, and one of them thus tersely explained the contents: "Commander in chief desires to change shirt."—Lippincott's.

Rhythm in Rowing.

Rowing means much more than mere exercise of muscles. Over it all lies the strong spell of ordered movement, the delight of pure rhythm, which the rowing man is perfectly justified in claiming must be experienced to be understood.—Field.
