The wool scouring mills, the largest in the State of Oregon, will commence scouring next Monday, with a force of 20 men. For some time past a number of sorters have been hard at work on the wool, and the mechanics have also been busy putting up the machinery. A considerable amount of wool is now on hand ready for action.—Echo Register.

Joe Bush who was in the city the first week, claims the record in taking care of sheep. Out of a band of 2200 mixed yearlings which he has been herding for R. F. Wigglesworth, the yearlings when sheared averaged 11 1/2 pounds of fine wool, and he did not lose a single sheep during the winter, which is a remarkable record. Mr. Bush is an old and experienced herder.

All of the committees in charge of Heppner's Fourth of July celebration are enthusiastic in the work of making the big event a great success. It has been decided to make a display of fireworks one of the attractive features. The committee hopes to have a grand pyrotechnic display notwithstanding the great expense. There will be many new and novel features to entertain the people from the opening to the finish of Heppner's big celebration.

A Few Facts About Clothing

Of course we're partial to our own clothes. When we bought our stocks, we saw most all the styles and all the cloths that all of the important makers showed. We couldn't give you a better proof of our own belief in the garments that are here than our possession of them. Not that there aren't lots of first class manufacturers, but even in a group of excellent factories one product is bound to stand a little ahead, and as far as we can calculate
