

By Our Formula

We produce in Hood's Sarsaparilla a medicine that has an unapproached record of cures of Scrofula, eczema, eruptions, catarrh, ragumatism, anemia, nervousness, that tired feeling, loss of appetite, etc.

The combination and proportions of the more than twenty different remedial agents contained in Hood's Sarsaparilla are known only to ourselves, so there can be no substitute.

This medicine makes healthy and strong the "Little Soldiers" in your blood,—those corpuscles that fight the disease germs constantly attacking you.

NOTED PERSONS TAKEN

Death Has a Recent Harvest of Four People of International Prominence.

EACH WAS GREAT IN HIS LINE

Modjeska, Crawford, Hitchcock and Swinburne Had Carved Their Names in Halls of Fame.

An actress, a statesman, a novelist and a poet, each standing in the foremost ranks of those in his particular line, have been called from the various scenes of their brilliant earthly careers within a short period recently. Each was known and admired internationally and their deaths, all within three days, deprive the world of further great works which it had every right to expect from such fruitful lives.

A Great Tragedienne.

The death of Helena Modjeska closes the career of one of the most remarkable women ever seen on an American stage. As a tragedienne none of her contemporaries was her superior, and but few if any her equal. Her life father was Thomas Crawford, the noted sculptor whose "Liberty" is on top of the Capitol at Washington. His mother was a sister of Julia Ward Howe and of Sam Ward, the author. Young Crawford spent much of his life in Italy, where he was born, returning time and again after his wanderings over the earth, and there he finally married and made his home. He attended St. Paul's at Concord, N. H., and later entered Trinity College, Cambridge, still later going to Heidelberg. He made a deep study of many languages through his travels.

Though he spent most of his years after marriage in Italy, he made several visits to this country. His chief recreation was yachting and he held a professional master's certificate from the Association of American Ship Masters and from the United States Marine Board. He wrote an astounding number of novels, having produced one every year from the time he wrote the first in 1881, and sometimes three in twelve months. He wrote only one play, which was produced by Sarah Bernhardt in Paris.

English Man of Letters.

England's great poet and essayist, Algernon Charles Swinburne, died at the age of 72, at his home in Putney. One of the greatest poets of the Victorian period, all England expected Tennyson's mantle of poet laureate to fall upon his shoulders. But Swinburne was strong in his likes and dislikes and some of his works were tinged with his animosity against kings and priests. He created a style of his own and cared little for criticism. He was early inspired by Shakespeare and later became a devout worshiper of Browning. Upon leaving Oxford he spent some time in travel. He contributed a wealth of impassioned poetry to the English language and in addition was a keen critic. His strong personality has left an indelible mark upon literature.

A Burdened Man.

A certain small boy in grade number six was rapidly assuming manly ways. Not long ago, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, there was to be an entertainment at his school. Songs, recitations and a grab-bag were the principal features. The small boy waxed eloquent of the coming glories of this show, and more especially of the part he was to take.

On the morning of the entertainment his mother suggested that he should take his little sister, about four years old, with him. He hung his head.

"Don't you want to take her?" his mother asked.

"No, I don't," he answered.

"Why not?"

"'Cause there ain't none of the other fellows here to bring their children," was the reply.

Varying Impressions.

"The days are growing longer," said the man who keeps a lookout for the first robin.

"I don't notice any difference," said Sirus Barker; "they seem, as usual, to be getting longer if you count from one pay day to the next, and shorter if you figure the time between rent days."—Washington Star.

The indications are that under the new tariff law stockings will cost so much the old-fashioned industry of darning will be revived.

life our country has produced, breathed his last at his home at Sorrento, on the Bay of Naples, the evening of the same day as Mr. Hitchcock. Mr. Crawford had a training that gave him not only the secrets of language and literature, but an intimate knowledge of many peoples and of many lands. His

A BREAKDOWN AND FOUR TEMPERAMENTS.

The Phlegmatic.

The Sanguine.

The Melancholy.

The Angry Blatter.

ONLY ONE OF HIS KIND.

Former Railroader is Now a "Traveling Man" for a Buffalo Hotel.

L. C. Clarke, the "only one of his kind," is in New York.

Mr. Clarke was formerly a passenger brakeman on the New York Central. Now he is something different and there is no name for him yet. His vocation is an entirely new one.

The liveliest hotel in Buffalo furnishes free electric cab service for its guests to and from depots, wharves or wherever else they may land or wish to depart from, and also around the city. Now it has added Mr. Clark, says the New York Morning Telegraph.

It is Mr. Clarke's business to travel, mostly to New York, but Pittsburg, Cleveland, Chicago and several other big cities are in his line. All he has to do is drop in on transportation agents, hotel clerks and folks like that and get acquainted.

If any person is leaving a New York hotel and going to Buffalo it is Mr. Clarke's business to know it. He gets acquainted, tells him all about the hotel he represents and assures him of personal attention if he will only come.

Mr. Clarke's efforts have resulted in from fifteen to fifty people going to the house that employs him every day since he has been on the job. He does not know what to call himself, but it was suggested that he be christened "the smiling front." He is certainly there with that good-natured smile of his.

"It's easy," Mr. Clarke said, when asked how he worked. "When a guest comes with my card he always hunts me up. Of course I look after him, see he is satisfied and that he has a good time while in Buffalo. I never thought of going out as traveling representative of a hotel before, but I like it. It certainly is something new. They'll all be doing it soon."

Recently Incapacitated.

There were some deficiencies in the early education of Mrs. Donahue, but she never mentioned them or admitted their existence. "Will you sign your name here?" said the young lawyer whom Mrs. Donahue had asked to draw up a deed transferring a parcel of land to her daughter.

"You sign it yourself an' I'll make me mark," said the old woman, quickly. "Since me eyes gave out, I'm not able to write a wurd, young man."

"How do you spell it?" he asked, pen poised above the proper space.

"Spell it whatever way you please," said Mrs. Donahue, recklessly. "Since I lost me teeth, there's not a wurd in the wurd I can spell."

Comfort.

"Don't talk to me about sensible clothes," announced the pretty girl. "I am never comfortable unless I know I look nice, and sensible clothes are not pretty. I yielded to persuasion this summer and bought a pair of so-called common sense slippers with low heels and broad toes—simply hideous! And do you know something? My feet were never so uncomfortable in my life."

An Opinion Ventured.

"Do you believe that ignorance is ever bliss?" said the erudite girl.

"I never studied the question," answered Miss Cayenne. "But I should say that a young person who doesn't know the difference between holy and mistletoe would have a decided advantage at a Christmas party."—Washington Star.

A Big Difference.

"Why did you take this job?" The other man offered you $10 to start with, too."

"The other man offered me $10 wages to start with; this man offered me $10 salary."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

At some period of her life nearly every married woman has thought seriously of leaving her husband

An American Statesman.

The death of Ethan Allen Hitchcock, Secretary of the Interior under Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, removed a statesman whose record for honesty and whose high sense of duty were recognized by his country. Mr. Hitchcock was the grandson of General

ETHAN ALLEN HITCHCOCK.

Ethan Allen of the Revolution. His death came April 9 at the age of 74. In 1897 he was appointed by President McKinley as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Russia, and the following year the post was raised to an embassy. In 1898 he was called home to become Secretary of the Interior, a place which he kept under President Roosevelt. He served until March 4, 1907, when he resigned to return to private life.

Secretary Hitchcock was a foe to land frauds and the most prominent of his reforms was the determined effort to put an end to such frauds on the Federal domain. He prosecuted many wealthy land grabbers among whom were men well known in public life and private business.

A Famous Novelist.

The great American novelist, F. Marion Crawford, one of the most pro-
