

Constipation

For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time I had to take an injection of warm water once every 24 hours before I could have an action on my bowels. Happily I tried Cascoars, and today I am a well man. During the nine years before I used Cascoars I suffered untold misery with internal piles. Thanks to you, I am free from all that this morning. You can see this in behalf of suffering humanity. B. F. Fisher, Kosciusko, Ill.

LEADER PNEUMATIC WATER SUPPLY SYSTEMS FOR COUNTRY HOMES

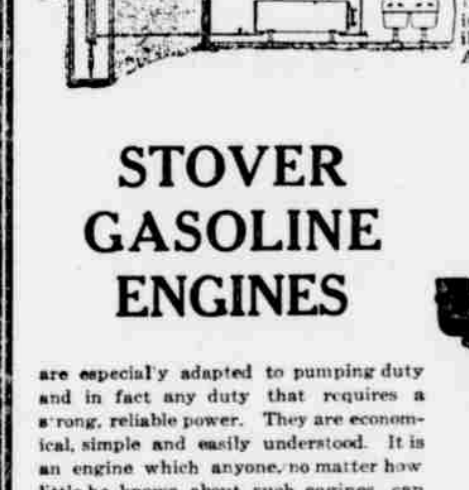

The best and most logical method of furnishing water yet devised. The tank is placed in the basement or in the ground near the house and keeps the water cool in summer and proof against freezing in winter. It never leaks. It is impossible for impurity to get into it. It outlasts the building in which it is installed. It costs a little more to begin with, but there is no second cost. We have a catalogue which illustrates and describes the Leader system. Ask us for it.

Just a Pleasant Run.

"Is it really only ten minutes' walk from the station to your house?" asked Cushman.

"What a ridiculous question!" exclaimed Subbs. "Nobody in lovely Swamphurst ever 'walks' to the station. I may say however, that it's only about eight and a half minutes' run."

An Intermittent Memory.

A small customer appeared at the grocery store, says a writer in the Century Magazine, and the smiling grocer asked him what he wanted.

"Please, mister," said the boy, "I can't remember what ma sent me for, but you can give me two cents' worth of peppermint candy, 'cause she said I could keep the change."

Curious Giant Cranes.

Australia, the land of oddities, animal, vegetable and mineral, has few more curious creatures than the giant cranes—often five and six feet in height, with beautiful blue-gray plumage—which are called native companions. These huge birds mate for life and, as mates, are singularly and touchingly devoted to one another.

Force of Habit.

"I beg your pardon," said the landlord, "but do you walk in your sleep?"

"No, sir," answered the guest, who had arrived the day before. "I hope I didn't disturb you last night, but the fact is I've been a country doctor for thirty years, and I'm so used to being called up two or three times during the night that unless I get out of bed and walk around once in a while I don't get any sleep."

Season Nowdays.

Tradition is a noble thing, but did you ever hear or see a graduate who'd say or sing: "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy?"—New York Mail.

O, yes, indeed, young man!

And say, if you were older you would know of the sweet girl grad, anyway. Who wrote that—empty years ago!—Chicago Tribune.

When We Tackle It in Earnest.

"I have read," said the visiting foreigner, "that when you celebrate your Fourth of July in this country the destruction of life and property in appalling. Don't the people take any interest in bringing about a reform in the manner of observing the day?"

"O, yes," said the native; "we begin a crusade for a safe and sane Fourth the next day after the celebration, and sometimes we keep it up for three or four weeks."

Heard in the Foyer.

"Well, how did you like the play?"

"There's one thing about it I liked exceedingly: the star didn't come on until the middle of the third act."

Momentarily Puzzled.

"Where do you scratch your matches?" asked the visitor, looking around.

"Why," stammered the hostess, "my husband always—O, I understand. On the under side of the mantelpiece."—Chicago Tribune.

Sure of Success.

"Bertha, where is my hat? I laid it down here a little while ago."

"Sure, missus, Fido's takin' a nap in it. Don't talk so loud, or ye'll wake the little darlin'!"

One of Many.

My wife says I'm a genius— Invent things while you wait; And my specialty is excuses When I chance to stay out late. —Yonkers Statesman.

The Question.

Where, oh, where has my waist-line gone; Where, oh, where can it be? With the waist cut short and the waist cut long— And now it's down to my knee! —Puck.

Fuller Particulars Desired.

"Mildred, it must have been late when that young man went away last night."

"Why, mamma, just as soon as the clock struck 11 he rose to go."

"I don't doubt that, child; but when did he get away?"

Old Favorites

The Old Granite State.

I have come from the mountains of the old Granite State, Where the hills are so lofty, magnificent and great; I have left kindred spirits in the land of the West.

When I bade them adieu for the far-distant West, Oh! thy mountains, Oh! thy valleys, In my old native State.

Oh, thy hills and thy valleys are sacred to me, No matter what in lands of others I may see, I may view scenes as sunny, as fair and as smooth, Then I'll think of my cottage that stands in the grove;

Oh! my childhood, Oh! that home-stead, in my own native State.

When I think of the fair one who once was my pride, As she roved among the mountains so close to my side, Then I sigh for the days that will never come back, For she sleeps on the shore of the bold Merrimac.

Oh! that loved one, Oh! that graveyard in my own native State.

A mother dear I've lost; she's gone to the grave; She was the dearest blessing that God ever gave. Now I go to the spot where buried is the loved, And I seem to hear her singing with the angels above.

Oh! my mother; I bless her ashes, in my own native State.

Balld Stanzas.

I knew by the smoke that so gracefully curld Above the green elms that a cottage was near, And I said, "If there's peace to be found in the world, A heart that was humble might hope for it here!"

It was noon, and on flowers that languidly curld In silence reposed the voluptuous bee; Every leaf was at rest, and I heard not a sound But the woodpecker tapping the hollow beech tree.

And "Here in this lone little wood," I exclaimed, "With a maid who was lovely to soul and to eye, Who would blush when I praised her, and I weep if I blamed, How blest could I live, and how calm could I die!"

"By the shade of yon sumach, whose red berry dip; In the gush of the fountain, how sweet to recline, And to know that I sigh'd upon innocent lips, Which had never been sigh'd on by any but mine!" —Thomas Moore.

CHEMISTRY 4,600 YEARS AGO.

Employed by Chinese in Cure of Disease—The Philosopher's Stone.

Yu Tung Kwal, a Chinese delegate to the chemistry congress, read an interesting paper before a section of the assembly yesterday on the chemical industry of China. Alchemy, he said, was known in China at least 2,700 before Christ, and China still occupied an important position in regard to the chemical industries of the world.

The principal object of the practice of alchemy 4,600 years ago, he said, was the cure of disease. Efforts were also made to evolve a preparation somewhat analogous to the philosopher's stone, the result attained being known as gold pills.

Metallurgical work and dyeing were known in China from time immemorial, while the processes of making gunpowder, paper, glass and porcelain all originated in the same country, while it is admitted that the Chinese of the Seventh century had a clear knowledge of oxygen.

"Circumstances in China," said the lecturer, "have now changed. Since China has been known for thousands of years to be an agricultural country and to possess an enormous wealth of undeveloped minerals, attention has naturally been directed to the study of these two branches of applied science.

"A board of agriculture and industries has been instituted, composed of different bureaus, each bureau managing some department, such as land surveying, mine surveying, irrigation work, etc. Having its headquarters in Peking, the affairs of each province are controlled directly by provincial executive committees, and shortly, it is believed, government experimental stations will be established. Also in the formation of chemical societies provincial societies have been formed, which will constitute sectional branches. Agricultural societies too are being formed in good numbers, and the last few years have witnessed the establishment of 'commercial guilds.'"

"A characteristic feature about the teaching system of China is that chemistry, together with mathematics, is a compulsory subject in the elementary schools. This is insisted upon, not only that the pupil's mind may be trained, but also that the young student may acquire some elementary knowledge of natural phenomena."—London Standard.

THE BENTLEY BABY.

In the summer of 1887 Holman Bentley, accompanied by his wife and child, made a steamer journey on the Upper Congo, in Africa. Sir Harry Johnston, in his book entitled "George Grenfell and the Congo," recounts the result of the journey and the important part played by the Bentley baby.

The party went through the Bolobo district, which at that time had become excessively hostile to Europeans.

The temporary station of the Congo State had been burned to the ground, the chief, Ifaka, was dead, and when the steamer Peace, bearing the Bentleys, arrived in August, it was roughly ordered away. Before sheering off, however, an idea occurred to Bentley. Taking advantage of the steamer's halt, his wife and nurse were giving a bath to the Bentley baby.

As if by accident, the little white child was held up in view of the angry and excited people. Suddenly a hush fell on the assembled throng, gradually giving way to a shout of delighted surprise.

A few minutes afterward, in response to urgent invitations to come on shore, the Bentley baby, in a dainty white dress, was being paraded through the town, nursed and dandled by warrior after warrior, till his snowy frock was reddened with camwood dye or stained with greasy black marks from those who had stained their bodies with oil and soot.

Mrs. Bentley was equally an object of interest and admiration, as she was the first white woman who had appeared in those regions. Up to that time the white man had been looked upon as a sort of unnatural creature, who was not bred and born like ordinary human beings, a semi-supernatural being without a mate. The Bentley baby practically created the mission station of Bolobo, which has endured ever since.

The Wall-Paper Man.

Oh, I'd sing you a song of the wall-paper man, Who's with us once again, Who comes with the files and who everywhere hies

With his ladders and buckets ten; I'd sing of the ease with which bric-a-brac breaks

At the soft, gentle touch of his hand, I'd sing of the joy which it seems that he takes

In upsetting a jardiniere stand; I'd sing how he figures the cost of a job

To a dot (except extras worth ten), Of his tracks in the hall and paste buckets that fall.

And the way the new rug appears then; Oh, I'd sing of the wonderful litter he leaves

And the household he puts in a fuss— Yes, I'd sing of him now if I didn't somehow,

Have to pass up all singing to cusa. —Kansas City Times.

His Colors.

"What are your college colors?"

"Well," answered Farmer Corntosel, "Josh has figured so strong in hazing an' football, I should say they must be black and blue."—Washington Star.

It's simply impossible to love thy neighbor as thyself if he is an amateur cornet player.
