Much Old Injun Visits Portland.

Columbia Joe, heap good Injun, much old, wandered into Portland this morning after an absence of 20 years. Straight to Phil Metschan, Sr., who showed him kindness 20 years ago, the old fellow went, and "me no eat much long," he said, his leathery old face wrinkling with the pleasurable prospect of a square meal.

Columbia Joe is not only a type of a fast disappearing class of Indians friendly to the whites, but he possesses an individuality of his own. Other Indians settled down quietly enough on the reservations allotted to them by the government; he chose to wander. For more years than the records show Columbia Joe has footed it over the Pacific Northwest. Here and there where wild game is comparatively plentiful he has been seen. Much of the time he has lived on the wild game and fish, which he had marvelous skill in securing. But whenever he has become hungry and the hunt was not successful he has had no hesitation in squatting in a corner of a white man's house with the observation, "Me heap much want eat."

Like other notable visitors, Columbia Joe voiced his appreciation of the city, although not from the standpoint of aesthetic quickening affected by most of the others. He said: "Heap much pony in streets, tepees way high, me go way Monday, not be lost. All change since I been here." Then he grunted true Indian fashion, smiled, wrinkling his leathery visage, closing a sightless eye, then stalking as majestically as worn moccasins and skin clothing would allow off in the direction of the square meal that was preparing for him.—Oregon Journal.

Durum Wheat Yields Well

Seven miles from Billings on high bench land, T. J. Bouton of that city, has demonstrated the profitable results of applying dry farming principles in raising grain, says the Dry Farming Congress Bulletin. Mr. Bouton has a number of fields of grain in which the harvesters are at work, one of which is representative of the entire ranch.

This particular field was planted April 20 to durum wheat. The sod was broken only four inches deep, horses being used for plowing and that being the limit of depth to which the plow could be forced without a traction outfit. Mr. Bouton employed a Missourian to take care of this field, a man who had been accustomed to old fashioned methods of farming in the east and middle west. The grain came up with an unusually thrifty appearance. Mr. Bouton instructed the Missourian to keep right on harrowing and the easterner in astonishment told his employer that he would ruin the finest field of grain in Yellowstone county if he attempted to run a harrow over it, but Mr. Bouton, having faith in dry farming methods, ordered the harrowing to continue. The field was harrowed three times after the grain came up, once being after it had headed out. To the astonishment of the Missourian, instead of ruining the field the grain grew more prosperously and promisingly than anything he had ever seen. An ordinary spike harrow was used.

As yet very few people realize the great advantages Public Land scrip offers as a means of obtaining title to government land. Those who do are availing themselves of the opportunity and the records of the various land offices in the Northwest show that thousands of acres have been scripped in the past year, mostly by scrip issued under Congressional Act of July 1st, 1898, and usually known as Northern Pacific scrip. The N. P. Railway Co. has appointed the C.
B. Towers Co., of Miles City, Montana, who are acknowledged to be the most extensive scrip dealers of the Northwest, its agent in the sale of this scrip.

Livestock Barns, Oregon State Fair, Salem.

The twelve commodious livestock barns on the Oregon State Fair grounds at Salem are admirably adapted to the purpose for which they were constructed during the summer of 1907. Beneath their roofs hundreds of the grandest cattle, horses, sheep, goats and swine, have been displayed during the fairs of the past two years, and the indications are that the livestock exhibit at the coming fair, September 13-18, will be equal to if not ahead of any previous display in the department. Livestock breeding in the state and in the Pacific Northwest is being engaged in by numerous intelligent farmers, who have come to realize that the day for keeping scrub animals is past and it is better and more profitable to have the pure-breds. The purebred horses, cattle, etc., at the next state fair are going to be from the choicest herds and flocks the country affords, and the reader of this should arrange his plans to attend the fair on the dates mentioned and view the great progress the state is making in livestock.

Borg-Simpson.

Stevensville, Mont., Aug. 18.—In the presence of a few friends of the contracing parties at the home of the bride's parents tonight Frank Borg, one of Missoula's popular young business men, and Miss Blanche Simpson, one of the most popular young women of the Bitter Root valley, were united in marriage.

The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion with pink and white sweet peas, smilax and ferns. At 8 o'clock in the evening the bridal party marched into the parlor and stood under an arch of green and white, while the ceremony was performed by the Rev.
George McCombe, assisted by R. V. S.
J. Salesman of California. The bride was attended by her elder sister, Miss Bertha Simpson, and Oscar Borg, a brother of the groom, from Heppner, Or., was best man. The bride was attired in a white silk webbed gown of the Princess style and she carried a bou-quet of Bride's roses. The bridesmaid was attired in pale blue silk.

After the ceremony an elaborate supper was served and the young couple went to Hamilton, where they will stop at the Ravalli hotel until tomorrow, when they will start on a honeymoon trip to the Pacific coast. When they return they will make their home in Missoula, where Mr. Borg is engaged in the jewelry business.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Montana and formerly taught in the public schools of Missoula.

Mr. Borg is a son of Mr. and Mrs. P.
O. Borg, of Heppner. He was raised in this city and is highly respected by a who know him.

Advertising the Fair.

S. T. Warner, of Umatilla county, who is advertising the district fair to be held at Pendleton, was in the city Thursday.

Mr. Warner visited different points in this county. He travels by team and wagon and carries a large amount of advertising matter for the fair, which is distributed freely.

Mr. Warner was well pleased with the treatment and enthusiasm shown by Morrow county people.

Worth Eighty Millions More.

New York, Aug. 19.—Despite the general slump in stocks caused by reports of the serious illness of E. H. Harriman, Standard Oil stock reached a new high mark today, when it was quoted on the curb at 71 1/2.

At the time of the panic in 1907 Standard Oil fell rapidly, reaching its lowest mark on November 4, when it was quoted at 39 1/2.

The stock, therefore, with today's mark, has risen 32 1/2 points since the panic.

Wall Street experts estimate that this rise has increased the personal fortune of John D. Rockefeller by $80,000,000.
They figure that today he has $700,000,- 000, despite the fact that he has given to public charity $130,000,000.

If John D. Rockefeller lives to be 80 years old, the statisticians declare he will have a billion dollars.

It is declared that if Rockefeller should withdraw his fortune from circulation it would create a world-wide panic with most serious results.
