

When the Wintry Winds do Blow

Winter does not only mark the change of season but with it comes the constant shifting of fashion which demands the attention of all careful dressers. The styles which pleased us so well during the past summer must be discarded and in their place we have recently put in stock the latest ideas offered for the new season. The fabrics are new and the styles are changed enough to cause the buyer much interest and satisfaction.

Trouble Trouble Trouble

This is a combination of sounds that seldom occurs in connection with our clothes. You are sure to be fitted and by making satisfactory alterations if need be makes it a pleasure to be satisfied, for with us you would have it no other way.

Fall Styles.

There is a noticeable originality in the styles we offer this season which is secured without resorting to FREAK or exaggerated fashions. Not a style in our new stock violates the rules of good taste or good form, while they possess the snap and vim so much desired by up to date dressers. The sort of styles which sacrifice beauty for freakishness have no place in our assortment of high standard clothes. We are able to satisfy your every want, giving you good values and quality of material. Prices ranging from

$10.00 to $22.50

Give us a trial. Come in and Look over our line whether you buy or not.

A TUSK HUNTER'S ESCAPE.

So Close a Call the Native Really Thought Himself Dead.

Hunting elephants for their tusks involves courage, patience and infinite cunning. Frequently the hunter becomes the hunted, and the tables may be turned fatally. A writer in McClure's Magazine tells of an escape, vouched for by "an Indian dealer who never lied about anything and who claims to have seen this deliverance exactly as he reported it."

Some natives were hunting elephants in the neighborhood of Lake Rudolph, and he was with them for the purpose of trading cotton cloth for ivory. Elephants like old bunch grass that has become dry like hay, and a herd of them, attracted by "dry grazing," as it is called, came suddenly within an eighth of a mile of the camp.

One native, named Juma, from the coast, an unskilled hunter, observing that the wind was in such a direction that it blew news of the herd to him rather than blowing his whereabouts to the knowledge of the herd, ran out in the open with his rifle and aimed at short range at a powerful creature which was watering a straggling scrub with water he had taken in his trunk from the pond.

Once hit, the elephant was correspondingly furious and rushed at Juma after a deliberate scrutiny of the immediate foreground to discover his whereabouts. Having determined where his assailant stood, he tore along, crazy with rage, toward the shaking savage.

Juma, with an oriental's instinct of prostration before such an overwhelming force, merely threw himself flat upon the ground. The elephant rushed completely over him, but by accident left him safe, although choked and blinded with the disturbed and sandy soil. The great feet cleared him, and the tusks missed him.

Almost twenty-four hours passed before Juma dared believe himself alive and sound, and for the first twelve hours after the excitement he spoke of himself only in the past tense, as of one dead.

The Clothesline Test.

"Let me see her clothes on the line," said an old fashioned woman recently, "and I can tell if she is a good housekeeper." The test lies in the way the garments are hung. If the shirts are scattered around promiscuously the woman lets garbage stand on her kitchen table overnight. The shirts, like we men, should always hang together, shoulder to shoulder, and everything of its kind should hang in a row.—Attention Globe.

Not Dressed.

Having at moments pains got her dress, and with a thickness about right, the woman heaved a sigh of relief. "No fourth dimension in mine, if you please," she exclaimed with unmistakable feeling.

Some aver that the feminine mind is not attracted by metaphysics anyway!—Exchange.

Out in the Rain.

It is particularly aggravating when you get caught in the rain with your new hat to see by the official weather report that the precipitation was only six one-hundredths of an inch.—Ohio State Journal.

Lecture Course for Heppner.

All the arrangements have been completed to bring to Heppner during the fall and winter, a most excellent lecture and entertainment course. Four numbers of the very best attractions offered to the American people today, and one number supplied by home talent, will compose the course.

The course will be opened on October 25, by the Central Grand Concert Company composed of Maximilian Dick, violinist; Miss Edith Adams, violoncellist; Mme. Aubi Pearle Meyer, Soprano, and Adolph Knauer, pianist. The banding together of the notable artists who compose the Central Grand Concert Company is the achievement of a great triumph. Four such figures are not often assembled in one company.

The second number will come on December 10, a lecture by Lee Francis Lybarger. He is not merely an entertainer, but an orator. He speaks to enlighten, to persuade, to reform. His subject will be "Land, Labor, Wealth." An oration on the dangers and injustice of our "swollen fortunes." It shows the source of the trusts' wealth and power, the methods by which great fortunes are amassed, and the cause for the present concentration of wealth.

The third will be by Edward Elliott, a splendid entertainer. The fourth will be by Lurant, the man of many mysteries.

In bringing this course here I am seeking to render a service to the good people of Heppner.

I will not receive any remuneration from it. My time and efforts in this matter are given freely with the hope of bettering conditions in our town. I can assure you that every number is the very best of its kind offered to the American people today, and I hope every one who possibly can will patronize the lecture course.

WALTER L. AIRHEART.

John Taylor drove in from the East Side yesterday. He says all his neighbors are drinking Folger's Golden Gate Coffee and he took two 5-lb tins home with him.

J. H. O'Neill, traveling passenger agent, and John M. Scott, assistant general passenger agent of the O. R. & N. and Southern Pacific were in the city this week.
