A Rogue River fisherman at one haul of the seine, near the mouth of the river lately, brought in 1800 silversides. Many of the gillnet fishermen have quit, as the fisheries are only offering 5 cents each for silver salmon.

Emmett Cochran has sold his entire supply of nearly 700 high grade bucks. The demand for these bucks has been enormous this fall and Mr. Cochran was able to supply only about half the demand. He states that he will raise over 1000 head next season.—Monument Enterprise.

Rev. E. P. Warren returns after an absence of 30 years to take charge of the M. E. Church South, as pastor. He spent the year 1878, as principal of the public school at Pendleton, arriving the same year in time of the Indian war, and can tell some thrilling stories about the Indian troubles. The year '79 he spent in the vicinity of Heppner, traveling by horseback over the hills, up and down the streams, and preaching wherever there was an opportunity. He collected funds from sheepherders, cow boys, farmers and business men, with which the church enterprise was started here. Mr. Warren has had a varied experience in this country. He is a man well preserved considering his knocks. He is an enthusiastic, energetic speaker and has made quite a record as an evangelist.

From a field of vetch a farmer near Scio obtained 125 sacks of clean seed which he sold for $700.

Pendleton hopes for a branch insane asylum and a thresher manufactory employing perhaps 100 men.

The Christian Endeavor society will give a mum social at the Christian church on Friday, October 22, 1909, commencing at 8:00 o'clock p. m. A mum program will be rendered and refreshments served. All are invited.

While the weather continues dry and warm, the water in Rhea and Willow creeks in the foothills is beginning to rise and good fishing is reported by Heppner sportsmen. The water is cold and pure and the trout are exceptionally fat and luscious.

Already some of the enterprising citizens have commenced to borrow ladders recently put up in convenient places by the city to be used only in case of fire. Some time ago the city distributed ladders to add to fire fighting apparatus and it was not long before all of the ladders were borrowed and not a single one was returned. If there had been a fire the loss of the ladders might have been a serious matter. Now the city has posted notices calling attention to the fact that any person removing any of these fire ladders except in case of fire will be fined $10. Also a reward of $5 will be paid for evidence leading to conviction of any one found removing or mutilating any of these ladders. The city authorities will use every effort to see that the law is rigidly enforced. Already some vandals have commenced to whittle on one of the ladders on Main street and one of the notices was also cut to pieces, but a weather eye is out and it may turn out the wrong kind of a joke.

The lecture course, the first number of which will be presented to the public within a few days, has met with such generous support on the part of the people, that it has been deemed advisable to have a permanent organization which will have in view the perpetuation of such work. It is hoped that a similar course may be provided each year. With these ends in view, a lyceum association has been organized by some of the business men of the town. While the course that will be presented this fall and winter has been arranged for and the support practically assured, this organization will do all it can to aid in making the course a complete success so that the public will feel encouraged to support similar courses in the future. The talent for the present course is of the best, and if we work together, we can assure such talent every year. The people of Heppner and vicinity appreciate something good in this line and are always willing to give their hearty support. The lyceum association will undoubtedly prove an excellent thing for the community.

IDLY WANDERING.

When the Overwrought Worker Cuts Loose From Care.

When a business man suffers from overstrain or a student from overwork sometimes, instead of taking to bed, he disappears. Suddenly he is missing, all trace of him lost. His family and friends invariably fear the worst. They imagine he has met with accident and is lying unconscious in a hospital or has parted with his wits and is confined in an asylum or has even taken his own life.

These things are all possible, but the probable thing is none of them. The probable thing is that the overwrought man has yielded to a natural impulse and instinctively has sought a cure by becoming a wanderer for the time. He has put the cares of the old life behind him and with them the people that recall the old life and has given himself up to the healing of the road. To drift with no well defined object, to see strange places and faces, ever to answer the call of the beyond—"die ferne," as the Germans call it—is more than a dream lying somewhere in the back of every man's mind, where it was lodged by some ancestor of the nomad period; it is one of nature's own remedies for the worries of life.

For the man with a great sorrow, for the man with a troubled conscience, for the man whose nerves are not treating him right, travel, change of scene, is one of the things the wise physician will prescribe. If it be a veritable tramp afoot the cure will be speedier and more complete and may work physical regeneration into the bargain.—New York Mail.
