RHODES' HORSES RECOVERED

Found in Ayers' Canyon Beyond Little Butter Creek.

The four work horses belonging to Wm. Rhodes, which disappeared and were supposed to have been stolen, were located by Geo. Van Winkle in Ayers' canyon, beyond Little Butter creek, about 20 miles from Heppner, and the animals have been returned to their owner.

Geo. Van Winkle while riding in the Ayers canyon ran onto the missing horses. He put the animals up and informed Sheriff Sutt. The sheriff in company with Chas Jones went out and brought in the horses.

Wm. Rhodes, the owner of the missing animals has been working hard to get a trace of his property, and when the horses were found Mr. Rhodes was in the Deschutes country on the lookout.

Banker T. J. Mahoney went to Portland, Monday.

The Poultry Show at Pendleton.

Unabated interest continued in the poultry show until the doors finally closed Saturday night on one of the most successful exhibitions that has been held in eastern Oregon, and the only one that it has been the pleasure of Pendleton to witness. Every afternoon and night the rooms, in which the show was held, were crowded to the limit, at times the immense crowd being so packed around the coops that it was with difficulty the visitors could make their way from one end of the building to the other, says the Pendleton Tribune.

Night after night and day after day the visitors would return to view again the beautiful specimens of fowl caged in the large number of coops, acquainting themselves with the various breeds and in many cases making purchases of cockrels, when these were for sale, and at least giving orders for eggs for the spring hatching of chicks.

Farmers and chicken raisers from all over the county came pouring into town day after day, intending to go out the same day, but finally remaining over for a day more or perhaps longer. Not only were the chickens, ducks, geese and other fowls the object of attention, but the auxiliary for their share of interest. Many fine breeds of cats and dogs were on exhibition and the young of these animals when exhibited readily found sale when the fact was made known that they would be sold.

One of the pleasant attractions of the evening was the music furnished by the orchestra under the direction of Prof. Frank Curruth.

Far beyond the expectations was the success of the show and that it will be an annual affair in the future there is no doubt.

The prizes awarded were as follows to Morrow county exhibitors.

Single Comb Brown Lehigh, D. C. Gurdane, Heppner, 1st cockerel; 1st, 2nd and 3rd pullet.

Barred Plymouth Rocks, D. C. Gurdane, 1st on cockerel and hen.

White Plymouth Rocks, Wm. Hill, Heppner, 1st pullet 1st and 2nd hen 1st cockerel; 2nd pen.

O. E. Johnson, Irrigon, 2nd and 3rd pullet; 1st cock 3rd cockerel 1st pen.

J. F. Kurtz, Irrigon, 2nd cockerel.

At the annual meeting of the Umatilla-Morrow County Poultry association held Saturday morning and the election of officers resulted as follows: D. C. Gurdane, Heppner, president; Leon Cohen, Pendleton, first vice president; Earl Williams, Milton, second vice president; H. Dickinson, Walla Walla, third vice president; Charles Curtis, Sr., Hermiston, fourth vice president; L. B. Kicker, Irrigon, fifth vice president; R. W. Fletcher, treasurer; E. F. Averill, secretary, and Mrs. B. F. Williams of Milton, Fritz Bada of Freewater, and J. T. Brown of Pendleton, members of the executive committee.

The dates for the show next year were fixed for December 13 to 18 inclusive.

Blue Andalusians, Al Emerson, Heppner, 2nd cock.

A. M. Slocum, Heppner, 3rd cock 3rd cockerel 1st pullet.

Superintendent Notson Visits Schools.

On Jan. 13, I visited the primary room of the Lexington school. Miss Maude Cutsforth is the teacher. The walls and blackboard were tastefully decorated. The little folks were awake and interested in their work. They were doing excellent work in reading. Nearly all read with fluency and understanding. They were doing good work in their other studies also.

I also visited the room which Miss Wilma Burrows teaches. The pupils of this room were writing upon their examinations, hence I saw very little class work. The pupils seemed to be diligent and painstaking in their work. The walls of this room are decorated with some appropriate pictures.

I noticed that every window in the building is provided with a window board, making it possible to ventilate the rooms without compelling any pupils to sit in a draft of cold air. There are also ventilating flues which aid in the ventilation. However, at the intermissions and during the time of marching, the windows are thrown open to insure a perfect change of air.

Last Friday, I visited the lone school. Prof. Kaufman and the high school pupils are working hard, but seem to be enjoying the work in every particular. The pupils seem to regard school as a part of life and believe in making it a happy portion of life.

Mrs. Laura Hamilton teaches the 7th and 8th grades. The pupils of this room were just finishing up their examinations, hence the class work was not proceeding in the regular order. This room is in the new portion of the building, and the surroundings are very pleasant. There will be a larger eighth grade class than there was last year.

Mrs. Ina M. Hale teaches the 5th and 6th grades. These pupils were also engaged in examination work. After finishing their examinations, they engaged in a lively spelling contest, using the lists given in The School and Home.

Miss Ina Wattenburger teaches the 3rd and 4th grades. These pupils had just finished their examinations, and I saw some of their regular work. They are wide awake and enthusiastic in their work.

Miss Ernest Whitmore has charge of the primary room. The little people think Miss Whitmore is "just right." They sang a number of motion songs during my visit. These songs seemed to appeal to the hearts of the little people, and they certainly enjoyed singing them. They are doing excellent work in reading, which was the only class work I saw them do as my visit with them was short.

A number of schools report special interest in spelling contests. Some are using the School and Home Book just as Mrs. Hale's pupils are doing. Others have a sort of contest of their own planning, which extends over two or three months. The pupils in Miss Burrows' room at Lexington are engaged in such a contest. The losers are to furnish entertainment, including a supper, to the winners.

Owing to an error in the school law, many have supposed that an eighth grade examination should be held during February. The eighth grade examinations are now held in September, January, May, and June. The next examination will be held May 12-13.

Respectfully,
S. E. NOTSON, Co. Secy.

Beautiful View of Comet.

The weather conditions last Friday evening were ideal for the presentation of a magnificent view of comet A.

The celestial visitor first faintly appeared in the western sky shortly after dusk. At about 6:15, the comet presented a magnificent spectacle to the naked eye.

A number of people assembled on the hill at the public school building, and the ringing of the school bell brought out many people to see the strange visitor.

While not so brilliant as Venus, its nearest planetary neighbor, still the great tail reaching nearly one thirds up the arch of the sky toward the zenith, with its own light reflected light presented a sight long to be remembered.

Comet A is now estimated to be about 3,500,000 miles from the earth and is making a getaway at the rate of 41 miles per second. Astronomers have not yet been able to determine whether comet A is a new comet or an old one whose orbit has been changed.

Astronomers are as much puzzled over the visitor as are ordinary folk. They cannot predict how long it will be on exhibition here, for the reason that they do not know the comet's orbit, and are not certain, though almost so, that it has passed back of the sun and is swinging away from Old Sol.
