The prospects for a bumper crop of wheat in Morrow county are extremely bright. The spring rainfall has been a great deal heavier than usual and all that is needed now is plenty of sunshine and a little rain later on. The wheat men in the south end of the county are wearing "the smile that won't come off," and are cheering up the sheep raisers who seem to feel rather blue over the market prices of wool and mutton. Both Heppner and Ione seem to look more prosperous than they have for some time, the merchants seem to be doing good business, and everyone seems imbued with the feeling that prosperity has come to stay.—Irrigator.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Roberts, of Toll Rock, were in town Saturday, making arrangements to leave Morrow County. They expect to start this week, overland, for California, and will be located for a time at Satter, in that state. Mr. Roberts states he is not leaving Morrow Co. because he is not satisfied here, but it is solely because of the condition of his son, Hugh, who cannot live in this altitude. Mr. Roberts has disposed of all his land holding in the Eight Mile section, and Mrs. Roberts sold off eighty acres of her farm at Toll Rock, and if they find things right in California, they will doubtless make their permanent home there.

Organizer Brink of the Order of Owls, states that the charter for this new organization in Heppner now contains the names of over two hundred. Organization takes place on Friday evening at the skating rink. Those who desire to attend the commencement exercises at the opera house are requested to present themselves at the rink at seven o'clock, at which time they can be obligated and then go to the entertainment of the High School graduates, returning to the rink later to participate in the final organization of the lodge. A special will be run up from Ione.

John Roberts departed for his home at Waitsburg, Wash., Saturday morning, after a visit of several days with his grandfather J. R. Simons. He is at work in a clothing store up there, and likes that part of the country very well. There is promise of very prosperous times in that section this season as crop prospects are fine, and many improvements of one kind and another are being carried on. The little city itself is now doing some extensive paving of the streets, which gives employment to some 300 men.

This week is the last of the school for this year and there will be a lessening of the population of Heppner to a considerable extent by people moving to their ranches in the adjoining country. The school has enjoyed good work on the part of teachers and pupils and the summer vacation will be followed by increased interest in class work this fall. The coming year should be the best in the history of our High School, and there should be a largely increased attendance.

Informal Afternoon.

Mrs. J. L. Wilkins gave an informal afternoon from 3:00 to 5:30, Tuesday, to which a number of her friends were invited. Her apartments in the Palace hotel were tastefully arranged for the occasion. At the gathering of the guests cards were presented on which numbers were arranged for answers to questions under the headings of sense of smell, sense of hearing, etc.; also a list of sentences and proverbs badly disarranged, which were to be straightened out and made to read properly. For correct answers suitable prizes were given. Music was furnished by Mrs. F. E. Boyden and Miss Virginia Crawford, and a delicate lunch of ice cream and wafers was served.

The primary object of this gathering was explained by Mrs. Wilkins in a very appropriate speech, and is to be considered as the initial step to organizing a club along literary and intellectual lines, as well as social, and the sentiment of the ladies present was in favor of the move. Those present were: Mesdames T. J. Mahoney, S. E. Van Vactor, M. L. Case, Dr. Tilton, of Roseburg, J. E. Lucas, W. O. Dix, A. M. Phelps, W. P. Dutton, N. E. Winnard, T. E. Childsey, V. Crawford, F. E. Boyden, D. M. Ward, and Miss Virginia E. Crawford.
